Auto Head Urges Liquidation of All Useless U. S. Projects.

Industrial Problem Is Re-employment

It Cannot Be Solved by Government Edict, Industry Told.

By Felix Bruner.
A Staff Correspondent.

New York, Dec. 4.—Alfred P. Sloan, jr., president of General Motors Corporation, called upon the New Deal here tonight to liquidate experiments which "have no part in our forward program." Among these he included the NRA, referring to the conference called in Washington next week by George L. Berry, co-ordinator for industrial cooperation, as "most unfortunate."

Sloan addressed more than 1,500 business leaders at the annual dinner of the Congress of American Industry, being held in conjunction with the fortieth annual convention of the National Association of Manufacturers. In the course of his speech he attacked the New Deal on many fronts.

The industrial problem, he said, is one of re-employment and it can never be solved "by edict, prejudice or threat, or by government spending."

Urges "Theory of Plenty."

"In other words, we must move toward a soundly based and widely distributed economic well-being. This is the 'theory of plenty,' as distinguished from the 'theory of scarcity,' which has dominated our recent economic thinking and policies. I believe this objective to be in harmony with the desires, the hopes, and the ambitions of everyone, the most selfish, the most liberal. It is a platform to which both labor and capital can wholeheartedly subscribe."

Sloan said there must be a yardstick by which can be appraised the proposals which promote "our objective" and those that retard progress. He gave this as the yardstick:

The reduction in the real costs and selling prices of goods and services.

Balance Chief Problem.

Sloan said the problem is to maintain a balance between the capacity to consume and the capacity to produce.

"Thus the problem is a broad one," he continued, "for statistics prove conclusively that the amount of profits per se that could possibly be distributed, no matter how far we went, in a practical sense is relatively unimportant. Taken together, our yardsticks mean that every worker, executive and wage earner must be made the most

Farley Issues Call for Parley To Plan for '36

National Committee Will Come Here in January in First Move.

By the Associated Press.

Making the first formal Democratic move in the already loudly rumbling 1936 campaign, Chairman James A. Farley yesterday called the Democratic national committee to meet here in the second week in January.

The meeting will officially set the stage for the intended re-nomination of President Roosevelt, generally considered a foregone conclusion. The Republican national committee already has arranged to meet here on opposition campaign plans three weeks earlier.

The big, ruddy-faced Democratic chieftain who also is Postmaster General, yesterday predicted renomination of President Roosevelt and Vice President Garner, and forecast that Mr. Roosevelt will carry as many States as in 1932.

In a jovial mood as he greeted more than 50 reporters crowded around his desk in the Postoffice Department, Farley said he was "thoroughly in accord with the President's views" on Senator Norris (Republican), of Nebraska.

Norris has attacked Farley because of his dual role as Cabinet officer and party chairman, but Mr. Roosevelt recently urged Nebraskans to keep the veteran liberal in the Senate "as long as he lives."

Norris Noncommittal.

When told of Farley's comment, Norris, who has not yet consented to be a candidate for re-election, chuckled and said he had "nothing to say."

Both the Democratic and Republican National Committee meetings here—the former January 7 or 8, and the latter December 16—will select next summer's convention cities. Chairman Henry P. Fletcher of the G. O. P. committee also has set the December 16 assembly as a rallying time for the move to raise a sizeable "war chest."

Meanwhile, J. Kenneth Bradley, director of the Young Republican division of the party's national committee, announced yesterday he had sent letters to more than 400 young party leaders in the 48 States to obtain their views on holding public discussion of probable issues. He

China Clipper Ends Flight to Honolulu

Makes 1,323-Mile Midway Trip in 10 Hours.

By the Associated Press.

Honolulu, Dec. 4 (via Pan American Airways radio).—The China Clipper completed the fourth leg of her first eastward transpacific flight at 5:27 p. m. (10:57 p. m., Eastern standard time), arriving here after a hop from Midway Island requiring 9 hours, 45 minutes.

Capt. Edwin Musick and his crew glided the 25-ton air-mail carrier to a landing, ending the 1,323-mile flight. Four hundred spectators saw the ship arrive.

The China Clipper has slightly more than 13,900 miles to her record since leaving Alameda, Calif., on November 22 for Manila to establish transpacific air-mail service.

The P.-A. air-mail charter allows 70 hours for the eastward crossing. It took about 60 hours flying time from Alameda to Manila—18,000 miles.

Tomorrow afternoon, at Musick's discretion, the ship will leave for Alameda. It is due "home" Friday afternoon.

Roper Shifts Board; Berry Hits at Rebels

Secretary to Replace 26 of Business Advisory Council Members.

Co-ordinator Denounces Trade Heads' Refusal to Join Parley.

While Secretary of Commerce Roper yesterday was announcing reorganization of his Business Advisory Council, admittedly to forestall resignations, on another floor of the Commerce Building Maj. George L. Berry, co-ordinator for industrial recovery, lashed out at businessmen and industrialists who are refusing to attend his industry conferences which begin next Monday, "because of an imaginary fear that the meetings are to be dominated by labor interests," and at a time when "millions walk the streets seeking jobs."

At the Roper conference it was announced that the Business Advisory Council, now reduced from its original 52 members to 42, would be reorganized and brought up to its full strength on January 1. Under the original plan the President in June, 1933, told its 52 members they were "drafted for the period of the war against depression."

All Questions Parried.

Under the new system, the 26 oldest members of the committee will resign January 1 and their places will be filled by new members. A number of those who under this system automatically would leave the committee may be induced to remain, and these, plus new appointees, will bring the council to its original strength of 52 members.

Henry P. Kendall, Boston textile manufacturer and the council's chairman, parried all reporters' questions as to differences of opinion between the President and members of his council. He said the rotating system of membership was installed simply to relieve members of the council, most of whom have served for more than two years, of the cares of their official duties. He admitted, however, that without the new plan, there would have been many resignations.

Reported differences between the Business Advisory Council and President Roosevelt led to resignations last May, when the President, following severe criticism of NRA by the National Chamber of Commerce, released a report indorsing NRA submitted by the Business Advisory Council. Members who then resigned complanied that their reports were being turned to political use by the Administration, which had suppressed unfavorale council reports on other New Deal policies.

No Provision Beyond '36.

Chairman Kendall yesterday took cognizance of rumors as to whether or not the council would continue, and what its relations with the President would be. He said the reorganization plan settled all doubt as to the council's permanency, but admitted under questions that it made no provision for continuing the council beyond 1936.

Kendall also said that all members of the council, of course, did not agree with all Administration policies, admitting that he, as a textile manufacturer, had "wept crocodile tears" when the Schechter decision on NRA put the textile industry "on the loose." Asked what recommendations the council had made to the President, Kendall disclosed that at the President's request it had made a recommendation on the future disposition of NRA, completed and submitted to him six weeks after the Schechter decision.

Kendall admitted that this report had never been made public and refused to discuss its contents. However, the council yesterday by resolution recommended that "the personnel and functions of the skeleton NRA be transferred to the Department of Commerce, where kindred activities * * * are conducted by trained career men, conversant with the background of business and industrial problems temporarily dealt with by NRA."

Discussing the council's relations with the Administration, Kendall

Boone Escaped Arrest By Going to Kentucky

Christiansburg, Va., Dec. 4 (AP). Two warrants for the arrest of Daniel Boone, famed American pioneer, and William Cowan, said to have been a relative, and an attachment on the estates of the two men were discovered today by a Pulaski historian indexing old Fincastle County records. On the back of one of the warrants was written, "Gone to Kentucky."

Both warrants, dated May 5, 1774, and August 15, 1775, charged the two men with owing Alexander Bain 45 pounds 18 shillings 10 pence.

In the attachment, dated April 19, 1775, Boone and Cowan were charged by Bain with absconding and with owing a debt of 22 pounds 19 shillings 5 pence.

Insane Trapper Attempts to Kill Neighbor's Wife

Young Mother, Returned to Civilization, Describes 4-Day Cabin Siege.

By the United Press.

Goldfields, Sask., Dec. 4.—While a crazed trapper raged outside, a young mother of the northern wilds barricaded herself and her 5-year-old son for four days and nights in their lonely cabin, she told authorities who returned her to civilization by dog sled today.

Armed with two butcher knives and a .22-caliber rifle which had only six cartridges, the mother, Mrs. Ira Allen, 25, was able to protect herself against John Harms, 65, a neighbor trapper, who camped outside the cabin after she fled when he lured her to his own hut, in which she found his partner lying dead in a pool of blood.

She described Harms "as half-crazy and drunk on home-brew." He has been arrested by Sergt. F. V. (Pat) Vernon, Royal Canadian Mounted Police, in connection with the death of his partner, Johnny Anthony, 31, on November 23. It took a week for news of the death to reach "outside."

Madman's Shot Missed.

Mrs. Allen was brought here from her to come to his cabin, as "the north shore of Athabasca Lake, in a two-day journey by dog train.

At sunset, she said, Harms appeared at the Allen Cabin with his dog train and asked for her husband. Informed that Allen was away on his trap line, Harms asked her to come to his cabin as "the kid was very sick." Mrs. Harms put on her parka, wrapped her child warmly and rode with Harms the 2 miles to the cabin at the old McInnes fish camp.

Harms entered first and slipped and fell in a pool of blood. Mrs. Allen almost fell over the body of Anthony.

Horrified, she seized her child and ran. Harms shouted, but she did not stop. He fired a shot which whistled past her legs. Through the darkness she heard him start his dog team and she hid, terror-stricken, in a thicket as Harms dashed past, until sub-zero temperature forced her to continue to her home.

Rescued by Husband.

There she found Harms, fast asleep in the carryall on his dog sled, a few feet from the cabin door. She barred the door and barricaded the windows, placed her weapons conveniently and lighted a fire.

Hours later Harms awoke and began his attempts to break in. Staggering and muttering, he built a camp fire. She heard him say he was going home for "more booze," and watched him depart. He made several such trips until he went away, November 7, when Allen returned home during one of Harms' absences.

Utilities Head Tells of Trap At Tax Trial

McCarter Accuses 3 of Plot to Defraud U. S. on His Return.

Had Machine to Record Alleged Offer to 'Fix' Levy Dispute.

A New Jersey utilities magnate told a jury in District Supreme Court yesterday how he set the trap that led to the arrest of a New York tax consultant and two former employes of the Bureau of Internal Revenue on trial on a charge of plotting to defraud the Government in connection with his 1932 income tax.

Thomas N. McCarter, the utilities tycoon, who said he was a director in 30 or 40 corporations, related how a sound-recording device set up in his office recorded for Federal investigators conversations between him and Frank B. McElhill, the tax consultant.

McCarter said McElhill offered to settle his $149,000 tax assessment for a 25 per cent commission. A deal was made on the basis of a $10,000 fee in lieu of the commission, McCarter testified, revenue agents having meanwhile been advised of the alleged conspiracy.

Garnett Outlines Plot.

The part the former Bureau of Internal Revenue employes, John W. Hardgrove and Henning R. Nelson, are alleged to have played in the purported conspiracy, was outlined to the jury by United States Attorney Leslie C. Garnett.

Garnett painted a picture of lavish dinners, of secret meetings and tapped telephone conversations with which, he said, the evidence would link the former Government employes with what Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau has described as "a plot to sell out the Government."

Ira Y. Bain, chief of the appointment section of the bureau, the first Government witness, said Hardgrove and Nelson had been employed by the bureau for many years prior to their removal on August 31, 1934, following discovery of the alleged conspiracy.

Garnett declared the evidence will show that McElhill "wined and dined" the former Government employes, that there were secret meetings between Hardgrove and Nelson, and mysterious telephone conversations among all three defendants.

McCarter's Income.

The trap that led to the arrest of McElhill and the Government men was laid after McCarter reported to Secretary Morgenthau an alleged offer by McElhill to settle his income tax case within three days.

McCarter said his gross income for 1932 was $380,672, but that he claimed a taxable income of only $32,000. Treasury officials disagreed with him, he said, over an advance made to his son, which he deducted from his tax returns. There was a dispute, he said, as to whether the payment was a gift from him to his son or was in liquidation of a bad debt.

Justice F. Dickinson Letts directed the Government to begin its case as soon as the jury was sworn in.

It was revealed for the first time yesterday that Richard E. Callaghan, who was associated with McElhill as a tax consultant, and who originally was included in the indictment, had been given a "nolle prosse" and would testify for the Government.

Because of the large number of Government witnesses called to testify, the case is expected to last into next week. The list of witnesses included several "wire technicians" and telephone company representatives. Presumably these were to testify in connection with wire-tapping activities.

New Peace Bid to Italy Offers Land Exchange; Rome Denies Oil Deal

Fuel 'Monopoly' for Standard Untrue, Declares Communique

Copyright, 1935, by the United Press.

Rome, Dec. 4.—The government today issued a communique purporting to deny that Standard Oil interests have agreed with the Italian government to supply all necessary oil in case the League of Nations votes an oil embargo.

The communique denied that an "oil monopoly" has been granted to "Standard Oil of New York." The United Press story last night said unimpeachable sources had revealed a "gentlemen's agreement" between the Italian government and the Soccieta Italo-Americana del Petrolio, subsidiary of the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey.

When the apparent discrepancy was called to the attention of the official press bureau, which issued the communique, the only response was, "Perhaps a mistake has been made."

Text of the government statement was:

"Certain American and British newspapers have printed a story regarding an alleged oil monopoly which the Italian government is alleged to have granted Standard Oil of New York. Such stories are completely destitute of foundation."

The communique does not deny

Ethiopia Would Cede Parts of Provinces, Receive Port.

League Would Pay To Build Railroad

Anglo-French Proposal Would Keep Native Kingdom Free.

By the United Press.

Paris (Thursday) Dec. 5.—An Anglo-French plan to end the Italo-Ethiopian war has been completed and submitted to Italy, it was understood today.

Maurice Drummond Peterson and Rene Doynel Saint-Quentin, British and French foreign office experts on Africa, respectively, were said to have finished sketching the plan on broad lines, leaving certain divergencies between English and French suggestions to be straightened out in negotiations at Rome.

It is believed Premier Pierre Laval communicated the plan to Italian Ambassador Vittorio Cerrutti during an interview last night.

Would Cede Port.

The plan provides:

Cession by Italy to Ethiopia of the Port of Assab, Eritrea, and a wide corridor in which Ethiopia could build a railroad for which funds would be provided by the League of Nations.

Modification of the Eritrean frontier, giving Italy part of Tigre Province in the north but leaving the Holy City of Aksum and probably Aduwa to Ethiopia.

Drawing of the Italian Somaliland frontier to give Italy Ogaden Province south of 8 degrees north latitude. The western limit suggested by the British is 40 degrees east longitude, but the French suggested 38 degrees east longitude.

Three-Fourths Increase.

(The British suggestion would increase Italian holding in East Africa by about three-fourths as much territory as Italian Somaliland now occupies. The northern Somaliland border would be approximately 100 miles from Addis Ababa.)

(The French proposal would add to that a fertile, rectangular strip of land, about 180 miles wide, extending south from within 70 miles of Addis Ababa to the British Kenya Colony frontier. The addition of this territory practically would double the size of Italian Somaliland, and also would give Italy access to the Sidamo Lake region.

(North latitude 8 and east longitude 40 cross in the approximate center of Ethiopia, while east longitude 38 is about 180 miles west of that point.)

The rest of Ethiopia will be independent, and not necessarily under international control, as proposed by the committee of

Three in Plane Hunt Redfern Above Jungles

Fliers to Plumb Explorer's Story of Strange 'God' Among Indians.

By the United Press.

Georgetown, British Guiana, Dec. 4.—An airplane search for Paul Redfern, American aviator missing since 1927, who is reported living with Indians in the tropical back jungles of Dutch Guiana, was begun today when Edward Sill, wealthy timber merchant, and Art Williams and Harry Wendt, American fliers, took off for Paramaribo.

Redfern was lost on a projected nonstop flight from Brunswick, Ga., to Rio de Janeiro in August, 1927. After leaving the North American mainland, he never was heard from again.

William Lavarre, American explorer, recently reported Redfern alive and with Indians in the Dutch Guiana back country. He based his reports on stories told him by Djuka Negroes inhabiting the region between the Surinam and Naroni Rivers, several miles inland from Paramaribo.

While exploring interior British Guiana, Lavarre also heard of the "white god" of Indians far to the east, who "could not walk on the ground." The Djukas, when shown photographs of airplanes, said the Indian god, who they explained was white and bearded, "rode that kind of bird."

Sill and his companions planned their search for Redfern after hearing Lavarre's story.

Williams has had considerable experience in flying throughout Guiana regions. He has done commercial flying as well as piloting the commission to fix the British Guiana-Brazilian frontier. While with the boundary commission he was within 100 miles of the spot where Lavarre reported Redfern living.

Several other expeditions to bring Redfern back to civilization have been planned since Lavarre's report, two of them being organized in Panama City. Lavarre himself planned an air search headed by Maj. Willis Taylor, U. S. Army flier. None of these yet has actually started inland from the Dutch Guiana coast.

Congress Fight Planned to Bar All War Goods

Hull Reaffirms His Aim to Block Abnormal Shipments.

By the Associated Press.

A new blow aimed by Secretary Hull at "abnormal" exports to Italy and Ethiopia yesterday turned new attention to possible moves in the coming Congress to authorize the embargoing of all "war materials" to belligerents.

The battle lines for a lively tussle over new neutrality legislation, into which this question will enter, already have been drawn on Capitol Hill with the tentative drafting in senatorial quarters of a measure much more drastic than the present law.

Whether the Administration will seek specific authority to ban or arbitrarily limit certain materials outside of arms and ammunition has not been disclosed. Official spokesmen, however, already have urged more authority for the President, and have suggested the imposition of a quota system on such exports.

Direct Query Parried.

Secretary Hull's statement yesterday that the Government had not changed its policy, and was determined to do all possible to hold down abnormal exports, was made at his regular press conference. It parried a direct question as to whether new embargo powers would be sought of Congress.

Presumably, such materials as scrap iron, copper and oil might fall under such a ban. The stir over the latter commodity largely had subsided yesterday, following Secretary Ickes' move on Tuesday to disavow advocacy of a voluntary embargo and align himself with the Administration's present policy of discouraging "excessive" exports.

Secretary of State Hull told newsmen he had received no information concerning the Standard Oil Co.'s position with regard to supplying Italy with much-needed oil. He indicated, however, that the State Department was looking into the matter.

The present neutrality law now

3 Children of Senator Clark Aid Post's Toy and Doll Fund

Twins and Brother Contribute Playthings, Money, For Third Consecutive Year; Taxicabs to Collect Gifts Without Charge.

Santa Claus yesterday had three helpers he probably wasn't counting on. They were Marsh and Kimball Clark, 6-year-old twins, and Champ Clark 2d, their 12-year-old brother, all children of U. S. Senator Bennett Champ Clark and Mrs. Clark.

They enlisted in the ranks of Washington children who are helping Santa with The Washington Post Toy and Doll Fund.

It was the third season that the Clark twins have pledged themselves to give Santa Claus a hand in raising money and collecting toys that other children, less fortunate, may find something besides empty stockings on Christmas morning.

The twins and their brother are awaiting the return of the Senator and Mrs. Clark from the Philippines, where they attended the inaugural of President Quezon.

Perhaps they were counting heavily on the likelihood that parents returning from faraway lands are pretty certain to bring with them strange and fascinating new toys. In any event, the twins were feeling prodigal with their old toys yesterday.

Furthermore, they were willing to help Santa Claus to the extent of digging into their savings and bringing out bright new quarters. They said it would be a good idea if other children followed their example.

The twins' grandfather was the late Champ Clark, former Speaker of the House of Representatives. Their father, Senator Clark, was the youngest colonel in the A. E. F.

The announcement of the opening of The Washington Post Toy and Doll Fund again this year was followed yesterday by many telephone calls from citizens who promised to help the fund, and from those who are to be recipients of toys bought through the fund.

Worried mothers welcomed the news because it meant their children would have toys this year. In many homes citizens began to sort over serviceable toys to send them

Quints Become Movie Stars; Neither Shy Nor Frightened

By the Associated Press.

Callander, Ontario, Dec. 4.—The Dionne quintuplets displayed no stage fright, camera shyness or even plain contrariness today in their motion-picture debut.

They did a successful day's work in their first appearance in the screening of the film, "The Country Doctor."

Director Henry King, his cameraman and the two adult stars, Jean Hersholt and Dorothy Peterson, were in the nursery with the quints for almost an hour, but the camera crank handle was turned for only 7½ minutes.

Scenes were shot of Hersholt and Miss Peterson, in the roles of doctor and nurse, watching the children at play and occasionally touching one of them caressingly. Otherwise they did not handle them, although it is understood they will do so in some future scenes.

Director King expressed delight with the first day's progress and said he hoped to complete the scenes with the babies within a week if they don't get temperamental.

London, Dec. 4 (U.P.).—Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe, the northern Ontario country doctor who brought the Dionne quintuplets into the world, was listed today in the 1936 edition of the British "Who's Who."

Dr. Dafoe's modest "half stick" of copy contrasts with that of Cornelius Vanderbilt, jr., whose addresses at Sutcliff, Eng., and Reno, Nev., are listed in his three-quarters of a column of biography.

Secretary of State Cordell Hull and Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace are the only United States Cabinet members listed.

Police Roped in on Roundup Of Calves Near the Capitol

Two policemen whose only qualification was that one of them had worked on a sheep ranch, and a dozen or so men and boys staged a cattle round-up along Pennsylvania avenue in the neighborhood of the Capitol last night.

Over the wide but rough terrain of Union square, Peace Monument and adjacent points they played hide and seek with 7 calves that escaped from a consignment of 30 bound in a truck for a slaughterhouse in Southwest Washington.

The tail gate of the truck gave way and the calves tumbled to the pavement at Pennsylvania avenue and Third street northwest. The entire load of 30 undoubtedly would have escaped, thereby prolonging the round-up indefinitely but for the agility and brawn of Earl Bailey, of Colesville, Md., the driver, and his helper, Arthur Frazier, 1819 Central avenue northeast.

They quickly stemmed the stampede of 23 bawling Herefords. Meanwhile, someone called police. The round-up was on.

The seven calves, round-up wise, immediately separated, thus complicating things for Privates William Thomson and Irving Lubore, of the First Precinct, and their volunteer [illegible] ers.

The calves ranged as far east as [illegible] Monument and the fringes of the Capitol grounds and as far west as Sixth street.

Albert Miller, 15, of 908 D street southeast, found a rope and made a lasso. In about an hour, six of the critters were rounded up, principally through their own exhaustion. A half-hour after the Capitol round-up, the seventh calf was caught 2 miles away in the 1300 block of N street northwest.

Capital Shivering, But Escapes Snow

Fair, Rising Temperature Forecast for Today.

Temperatures slid yesterday to a low point for the season in Washington and many other communities.

Throughout the East heavy snows were reported, but the forecaster said last night no repetition of flurries that swirled here early yesterday was in sight. Today in the District will be fair, with rising temperature, the Weather Bureau forecast last night, and tomorrow will be fair.

The Capital shivered and residents put on their heaviest overcoats and stoked their furnaces last night.

A low of 20 degrees was expected for this morning. The mercury began its drop from 35 degrees at midnight Tuesday and had reached 25 degrees at midnight last night.

Detroit, according to the Associated Press, reported its coldest December 4 in 62 years, with a minimum of 6 above.

Buchanan Aims To Chloroform '35 Social Act

Would Cut 30 to 40 Million From Fund, Eliminate Wheat, Cotton Loans.

By Robert C. Albright.

Left stranded in the Senate by a forced adjournment of Congress, the hopdooed $93,000,000 third deficiency bill, carrying funds for the vast social security porgram and a score of other emergency purposes, faces threatened "chloroforming" by the House Appropriations Committee when Congress convenes.

Economy bent, Chairman James P. Buchanan, of the House committee, wants to substitute an entirely new measure, slashing from $30,000,000, to $40,000,000 below total funds carried in the old one, he disclosed last night.

"If I had my way, the old bill now pending will be chloroformed, along with the 12-cent cotton loans and the 90-cent loans on wheat, attached to it in the Senate," Representative Buchanan said.

"I don't see why we should appropriate the full $90,000,000 for the Social Security Board to round out the present fiscal year. Three months have passed since that bill was drawn. The board has operated with little or no funds, and the Treasury should profit by this saving. I expect the bill to be cut by a third."

As for the cotton and wheat loans tacked on to the bill as a Senate rider, precipitating a bitter controversy that led to a forced adjournment, Buchanan predicted both would be eliminated. He anticipates little trouble from cotton members, but possibly some difficulty with the wheat bloc.

Deficiency Bill Snarled.

The ill-fated third deficiency bill, carrying appropriations for old-age pensions and child, blind and health aids under the social security act, as well as money for administration of the Guffey coal set-up, the Wagner labor board and the railroad retirement plan, meanwhile is involved in a parliamentary tangle that may take leaders some time to unsnarl.

Both the House and Senate have passed the bill, but in different forms. It was returned to the Senate last August, when the House refused to accept the Senate's cotton and wheat loan amendments. A motion to reconsider the amendments was pending in the Senate when Congress adjourned.

Several courses are open to the Senate. It can reconsider the loan amendments, and return it to the House, or it can send the bill back to committee, or it can ignore the measure entirely. Chairman Buchanan's mind is made up, when and if the bill comes back to the House.

To Draft New Bill.

He will move that the measure be returned to his own committee, and there he will let it die. On its corpse he will build a new measure, pruned of many millions of dollars, but providing sufficient funds to carry the emergency units through the next 6 months of this fiscal year.

Later he plans to introduce a third bill, carrying social security funds for the 1937 fiscal year, using the first ten months of the board's operation as a "yardstick" for later appropriations.

The Texan appropriations committee chairman, who has pledged himself to bring the Federal budget within $800,000,000 of balance next session, thinks social security funds sought last term were overestimates, particularly as regards contributary old-age pensions.

States must match Federal pension grants up to $15, else no Federal pension funds need be dispensed, he pointed out. States have been slow to enact legislation necessary to comply with the statute, and in many cases where they have the laws needed, have failed to appropriate the required funds, he said.

U. S.-British Trade Pact Is Explored

By the Associated Press.

Secretary Hull confirmed yesterday that there have been exchanges of views between the United States and Great Britain regarding possible negotiation of a reciprocal trade pact.

He added at his press conference that no formal discussions have been held and that the exploratory exchanges were in a very indefinite stage because of disturbed world conditions.

Similar preliminary studies are being undertaken concerning several other countries.

Hull said the United States is going forward as rapidly as possible with its program for trade and financial restoration and general economic rehabilitation, but that temporary abnormal conditions sometimes interfered.

Repeal Is Two Years Old and Grandma Feels Almost That Young; Townsend Smiles.

By Raymond Clapper

REPEAL is two years old today and is going strong. It has even turned up at least one unexpected benefit which President Roosevelt did not anticipate when he originally recited the gains that would come from repeal. That is the new freedom which repeal has given grandmother.

Old age has never been like this before. Elderly ladies, who grew up in days when a lady didn't drink, or who during the so-called prohibition era, when drinking became co-educational, were unable to keep the late hours which went with kitchen gin drinking, are now able to live their own gay lives.

The cocktail bar is their boon. They can drop in of a late afternoon, make away with a couple of sidecars, and still be back home in time to be tucked away in bed as early as the doctor orders. All that's needed to make life perfect for them now is the Townsend plan.

Repeal is managing itself much better than some expected. No hostile charges have been hung very tightly around its neck. True, the tremendous revenues which were expected from repeal have not materialized. But you might say that indicated repeal had not made us a nation of drunkards as many had feared. Automobile deaths have risen sharply in the last few years, but the friends of repeal have succeeded in confusing that issue sufficiently until it is not clear whether liquor, the fast car, or the congenital human sap is mostly responsible. As for the luxury of stomach ulcers which some of our best people are now enjoying, sentiment is about evenly divided as to whether the more sturdy ones, at least, are not mementoes of bad prohibition liquor.

But remnants of the older drys are not discouraged. They are talking about making the District of Columbia dry again, or as dry as it ever was. Federal District Judge Richard J. Hopkins, formerly a Kansas politician who cultivated dry votes, says repeal has increased bootlegging to a degree hitherto unknown. The Anti-Saloon League has just held its annual convention. Once this organization could be counted upon to make the Nation's mightiest politician tremble. Now it only evokes a weary smile.

Going to one of the most eminent of the prohibition-time wet States, the dry convention took the beautiful hymn of Maryland and set it to lines which begin this way:

"I will not eat my waffles brown
"Alongside one who gulps beer down."

Bishop Cannon, jr., was the most eminent and honored leader at the convention.

The trouble with the Anti-Saloon League is that its live workers have gone over to work for the Townsend plan, where the opportunities are greater.

In the reorganization of the President's Business Advisory Council, half of which has just resigned, there will be greater representation from the ranks of small business men. Some in the Administration feel that it has been too heavily weighted with "big-shot" business men. Most of these big business executives are violently anti-Administration. Some of the little fellows may be more friendly.

Leaders in the Business Advisory Council are privately urging the Government to move cautiously in extending the neutrality embargo to non-munitions material. They are not inclined to attempt to discourage the general policy. But they do not want the threads of foreign trade completely cut.

This appears to place them fairly close to Secretary of State Hull, who already has indicated that on raw materials—as distinguished from direct munitions—he favors cracking down on shipments in excess of normal. Let normal quantities move, but recognize that materials in excess would be used to feed the flames of war and should be prohibited.

One opponent of the Canadian treaty is raising a new constitutional argument against the reciprocal trade pact. In this act Congress voted away the authority of the Senate to ratify the trade agreements—which are in reality treaties. That action was taken by less than a two-thirds vote in the Senate and, since the Constitution provides that the Senate shall ratify treaties by a two-thirds vote, it is contended that it could only delegate this authority by a two-thirds vote. It's something to argue about anyway.

Democratic leaders are kissing Ohio good-by. Some of them say definitely it is lost to the Republicans. Democratic National Chairman Farley doesn't go that far. He does, however, foresee that the threatened Democratic primary fight might be fatal.

P. J. Croghan, who died yesterday, was an ideal Government press representative. He had been the Department of Commerce information chief since 1920. In later years, especially under the New Deal, practically all Government agencies set up press departments which in some cases became essentially propaganda bureaus.

Pete Croghan devoted himself to issuing trade and other data collected by the Department of Commerce and to ferreting out factual data requested by newspapers and other publications. He seemed somewhat old-fashioned amid the high-powered Government ballyhoo of the last three years.

As the time for the return of Congress draws nearer, the pressure behind the Townsend plan is increasing. One Southwestern representative says he has received more than 4,000 letters from his district urging him to support the plan. He has said "no" in answer to each letter.

The issue is honeycombing congressional and senatorial politics. On both sides national party leaders are hopeful they can keep it out of the Presidential fight. The situation is in danger of becoming so serious that a tacit agreement by all Presidential candidates to stand together against it may be the only way of indefinitely heading it off.

Farley Issues Call for Parley To Plan for '36

suggested they recommend to the party "those plans and policies which we believe would most certainly carry out our purposes and restore to the people that government and those benefits which are rightfully theirs."

Farley smilingly predicted the next Democratic convention would "just be a nice time" without any serious squabbles.

He indicated the Democrats would hold their convention some time after the Republicans who are expected to meet early next June.

Farley said no choice had yet been made, but his understanding was that Chicago, Philadelphia, and probably Kansas City and St. Louis would bid for the Democratic convention. He added that San Francisco might seek the meeting if it appeared to have a chance.

The national committees of both parties usually award the conventions to the city offering the highest amount — generally between $200,000 and $250,000—to help defray expenses.

Some Republican leaders have privately expressed a preference for some Midwestern city for their national parley, although there has been some talk of Atlantic City.

Answering a running fire of questions from reporters, Farley told them:

1. There is doubt about the renomination of Vice President Garner.

2. He is certain President Roosevelt will carry Pennsylvania, and he might carry New Hampshire.

3. He believes Mr. Roosevelt could carry Kansas against Gov. Landon, that Senator Borah of Idaho will not be nominated by the Republicans and that Herbert Hoover is a candidate but is not "getting anywhere."

Atlantic Airline Ready in Year, Farley Asserts

Experimental Flights Start Next Summer; Congress Gets Plans Soon.

Experimental flights across the Atlantic Ocean in preparation for the opening of a transatlantic air line will be started next summer, Postmaster General Farley announced yesterday. Regular passenger, mail and express schedules should be in operation in a year, he added.

Funds for the establishment of the system, which would carry American air-mail to and from Europe, will be asked of the coming session of Congress, Farley revealed.

The announcement came simultaneously with word that four foreign aviation groups had conferred with postal officials on the possibility of foreign co-operation in the development of the new trans-oceanic service.

Farley Cold to Plan.

However, Farley and his aids offered little hope to the visitors of developing a joint system. It was pointed out that under the law any contract for air-mail service must go to an American company using American equipment flown by an American crew. Any sub-contract to share the flights with a foreign concern would be "out of the question," Farley said.

The four foreign groups included representatives of the Royal Dutch Airlines, the German Lufthansa, Imperial Airways of Great Britain and an informal French mission.

Two general routes are available for the flights. The northern line by way of Nova Scotia, Newfoundland and Ireland is the shortest, but unfavorable flying conditions exist for several weeks each year.

Southern Route Favored.

The southern line, by way of Bermuda, the Azores and Spain, is somewhat longer, but has the advantage of better flying conditions.

Harllee Branch, Second Assistant Postmaster General revealed yesterday that at present the southern route is being favored.

The possibility of the development of two competing companies appeared yesterday when officials discussed landing rights in foreign countries.

Because foreign landing fields will be required, Farley said, "any arrangement made probably will be for joint operation by two companies, one American and one foreign."

Aviation operators were of the opinion, however, that the right to use foreign landing fields along the route, such as at Bermuda and the Azores, will be of little importance in a few years when longer-range planes are developed.

Clipper Shows Way.

They pointed out that the Pan-American Airways' China Clipper now flies 2,400 miles between California and Hawaii. One transatlantic line under consideration is from Seven Islands in the St. Lawrence River area to Cork, Ireland, a distance of 2,449 miles. Many experts feel that a plane such as the Clipper could fly this distance nonstop without any difficulty.

The longest hop on the southern transcontinental line would be from Bermuda to the Azores, a distance of 1,787 miles.

At least one American aviation official is now in Europe carrying on conversations with foreign governments. Maj. Eddie Rickenbacker, World War ace and general manager of Eastern Air Lines, has gone there with the announced purpose of "co-operating with the European air services in an American-European tie-up."

The northern route already has been flight surveyed by Pan-American Airways, operators of the South American system and the Pacific line. Col. Charles Lindbergh, technical adviser of the company, completed a series of exploratory flights in this area and is reported to have advised his company that for the time being it should concentrate on the longer southern line because of weather conditions.

said that in the past it had been embarrassed by the fact that Administration bills submitted to it for study had gone through Congress before the council's report was complete. He said the President now has in mind referring the bills to the council before they are offered in Congress.

Meanwhile, Berry in a statement emphasized that "unemployment and taxation will be predominant topics of discussion in the industry conferences which begin in Washington next Monday."

He branded as "ridiculous and untrue" fears of businessmen that labor would dominate the conference. "There is to be no dominant factor in these meetings," he insisted. "I can see no reason why some industry leaders prefer to indulge in a bad case of NRA jitters rather than face squarely toward the realities of the present and future.

"NRA is dead, indeed. No one faces that fact with more conviction than I, who devoted my time for two years without Government compensation to the battle to keep it alive and make it function.

"Regardless of past trials and errors, the struggle for fair play in business goes on. It will go on regardless of any vicious thrusts at a prostrate law, any loud lament about 'Government bureaucracy,' or any refusal to take part in a dignified and sincere[ly] arranged conference of industry, management and labor under Government auspices."

Hooverite Calls On Landon Stir Much Guessing

By the Associated Press.

Topeka, Kans., Dec. 4.—A parade of callers on Gov. Alf M. Landon, at least four of them now or at one time closely associated with Herbert Hoover, had observers guessing tonight.

Some wondered whether a busy week of conferences with party leaders presages formal announcement of a Landon candidacy for the Republican Presidential nomination.

Since Friday no less than six Republicans of national prominence have called on the Kansas Governor, mentioned for the Presidency largely because of State governmental economies.

Landon Remains Mum.

To date, however, Landon has avoided the role of a contender for the nomiation. He was silent today on the week's developments.

The four visitors now or at one time close to former President Hoover, enigma of the Republican Presidential discussions, are: Mark L. Requa, California national committeeman; Charles Curtis, the Hoover Vice President, and Hoover's running mate in 1932; former United States Senator Henry J. Allen, a White House adviser during the Hoover regime, and W. M. Jardine, Coolidge Secretary of Agriculture and Minister to Egypt under Hoover.

Others who conferred with Landon are John D. M. Hamilton, general counsel for G. O. P. national committee assigned to party headquarters at Washington, and Edward F. Colladay, national committeeman for the District of Columbia.

All save Requa and Hamilton gave statements or interviews boosting Landon. Hamilton has avoided discussing candidacies.

There was much informal speculation on the angles seeming to indicate men close to Hoover might be conferring closely with Landon backers. Ben Allen, close friend of the former President, reiterated yesterday in California a statement made many times—that Hoover's sole interest is in advancing the welfare of the party.

Landon was invited to visit Hoover's Palo Alto home last summer. He was unable to accept because of the illness of Mrs. Landon.

Fire on New Deal to Grow.

New York, Dec. 4 (AP).—Herbert Hoover will intensify his attacks on the New Deal during the coming year, says his former secretary, but not with the idea of gaining public office.

Theodore Joslin, writing in the current issue of Today under the heading, "He Wants Nothing for Himself," denies his former chief is building up a political organization for 1936.

"The blunt truth is," Joslin writes, "that he has no organization, political, personal or otherwise, today. And it is about the first time in 20 years that he has not."

Refreshed from his arduous days in the White House, Hoover is pictured as taking an increasingly active interest in public affairs. Joslin, who served him from 1931 to 1933, writes:

"He has one particular objective in life today. That is to get the absolutely fundamental national issues before the American people."

Free State Shelves Recognition Claim

By the Associated Press.

Dublin, Dec. 4.—A resolution demanding that the Free State government claim recognition of its independence by the League of Nations was defeated by a large majority today at the convention of President Eamon de Valera's Fianna Dail Party.

The resolution also would have required the government to withdraw from Geneva if recognition were not forthcoming.

Another resolution commending the present policy of the Free State government was adopted with only one dissenting vote.

Replying to a question in the Dail today, the president said reports of new negotiations with Great Britain were groundless.

City's Light Plant Burned.

Sutton, Nebr., Dec. 4 (AP).—This city of more than 1,500 persons faced several days without electric lights after a night fire destroyed the municipal power plant. The loss was estimated at $100,000. If electricity is obtained from Grafton, the nearest point, a 9-mile line would have to be built.

2 Army Fliers Die in Wreck At Bolling Field

Lieut. Geoffrey and Maj. Rice Killed in Attempt to Land Plane.

High, gusty ground winds, blowing in excess of 35 miles an hour, caused an airplane crash in which two Army fliers lost their lives as they attempted to land at Bolling Field at 10 a. m. yesterday.

Lieut. Harry H. Geoffrey, 30, pilot of the high-wing, high-speed, two-seated observation plane, a Douglas O-43, lived for a few seconds after his mangled body was removed from the wreckage. He died on the way to the flying field's Army hospital.

Nose Buried in Ground.

His passenger, Maj. George E. Rice, 37, was dead when nearby soldiers reached the badly damaged ship. Both men, veterans in the Air Corps, were attached to Mitchel Field, Long Island.

According to witnesses, the plane circled the landing field at Bolling, preparatory to landing, but the wind evidently made it impossible for Lieut. Geoffrey to bring the ship to earth. He attempted to lift it over a wooded knoll, bordering the field, but apparently failed to gain flying speed again because of the wind.

The plane was about 50 feet up when it was swept backward into the woods and dropped almost in a straight line. The nose and one propeller blade were buried in the ground. The right wing was badly crumpled and the fuselage was crushed. It was necessary to hack open the cockpits in order to free the bodies.

Although several witnesses said the motor was running when they reached the plane, there was no fire. Others declared the ignition had been cut off.

Geoffrey Native of St. Paul.

A board of officers from the War Department is investigating the cause of the accident.

An autopsy by Col. F. H. Foucar at Walter Reed Hospital yesterday afternoon revealed both fliers suffered almost identical injuries. Concussion of the brain was given as the cause of death in each case. Both also suffered compound fractures of the upper and lower jaws and multiple head injuries. The severe shock contributed to their deaths, Col. Foucar reported.

Dr. A. Macgruder MacDonald, District coroner, visited the scene of the accident and released the bodies to Army authorities.

Lieut. Geoffrey, a native of St. Paul, Minn., was graduated from West Point with the class of 1930. In that same year he was married in Washington to Fredericka Mertens, granddaughter of Mrs. Frederick A. Mertens, of 4900 Quebec street, whose late husband founded the Norfolk-Washington steamboat line.

Besides the widow he is survived by a 3-year-old son, Frederick Mertens Geoffrey. Mrs. Geoffrey and the boy, who have been residing at Mitchel Field, are expected to come to Washington today. Funeral plans will be made upon their arrival. Burial will be at West Point.

Maj. Rice, who was assigned last April to command the Ninety-seventh Observation Squadron, is survived by the widow, Mrs. Dorothy Wendell Rice, and two daughters. The Rices, too, live at Mitchell Field. The major was a native of Wyoming.

Lieut. Geoffrey enlisted in the Third Infantry in 1925. The following year he received his appointment to the United States Military Academy. After serving with the field artillery at Fort Des Moines, Iowa, and Fort Snelling, Minn., he was detailed to the Air Corps. From February 27 to April 30, 1934, he was an air-mail pilot. That was when the Government took over the air mail after Postmaster General Farley cancelled contracts of private lines following a controversy over rates.

Since 1933 Lieut. Geoffrey has been attached to the First Observation Squadron, Mitchell Field. He returned to that post after his air-mail service and has been there ever since.

Loring Murder Detective Nabs Fleeing Driver

Itzel's Auto in Crash Near Marlboro; Death Probe Turns Up Little.

Hunting the murderer of Corinna Loring, 27-year-old Mount Hainier stenographer, who was killed two days before she was to have been married, Lieut. Joseph Itzel, ace Baltimore detective, got into a chase for a hit-and-run driver last night.

The car in which he was riding was sideswiped by a truck half a mile above Upper Marlboro, Md. A quarter-mile chase resulted in the capture of a man who identified himself as Wilmer Richards, 35, of Marlboro, against whom Itzel placed charges of driving without lights and leaving the scene of an accident. The man was freed on $200 bond.

No one was hurt in the collision, and the car occupied by Itzel, owned and operated by Edward Freeman, a Baltimore reporter, was only slightly damaged.

On the murder hunt, the only development was a show of interest by Itzel and other investigators in a re-check of the alibi of a former suitor with whom Miss Loring went riding three weeks before she disappeared on November 4 and with whom she was reported to have scheduled an engagement before her intended marriage. On the basis of information given them by an acquaintance of the girl yesterday, the investigators said they would begin a re-study of this man's alibi today.

Itzel may attend a preliminary hearing at Mount Rainier tonight in the case of Victor Redmond, charged with attempted assault on a girl in Mount Rainier a week ago last Sunday.

District Loses Weighing Case Against A. & P.

Fails to Prove Its Charge of Short Weight by Identifying Clerk.

The Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co. yesterday was acquitted of the first of 24 charges of selling short-weight poultry by a jury in Police Court.

The verdict followed the statement of Caruthers Ewing, of New York, defense counsel, that the Government failed to identify the person from whom two chickens were purchased at a store at 3228 Wisconsin avenue northwest August 2.

Ewing also pleaded that there could have been an error in computation, which he claimed was not a criminal offense.

The 24 charges against the stores are based upon alleged shortweight purchases made in 17 of the company's 180 stores here by the District Department of Weights and Measures.

In the case tried it was alleged that Mrs. Helen Exley, acting for the department, bought two chickens and that the chickens weighed approximately 5 ounces less than the weight paid for.

Bank's Runner Slain in Holdup; $15,000 Seized

Canada Bandits Stop Car; Gag, Murder Youth in Getaway.

Hull, Quebec, Dec. 4 (AP).—A helpless bank employe, bound and gagged, was slain by robbers today, who then escaped with $15,000 in bills of the Banque Provinciale du Canada.

In an apparently carefully planned coup, the robbers commandeered an automobile near the heart of Ottawa in which two employes were transporting the money to the main office of the bank in Ottawa.

Armand Nadeau, 18, one of the employes, was shot three times, twice in the head, and died later after the automobile had been ordered driven to a lonely spot on a side road some miles outside Ottawa. Paul Lafleur, 20, the other bank employe, was not injured.

Lafleur said he was driving the car and was within one block of the mint in Ottawa when he was stopped by a traffic light. A man jumped on the running board, covered him and Nadeau with a pistol, he asserted, and got into the back seat. The man directed him to drive back to Hull, across the interprovincial bridge, and then into a side road, Lafour continued. When they stopped, another car which had been following them drew up and two men got out.

Lafleur and Nadeau were seized and tied to the steering wheel of their automobile, he continued.

"The next thing I heard was three revolver shots," he said, "and I could hear the men leaving the back seat. I could feel Nadeau leaning against me and I felt blood trickling on my arm."

Lafleur said he broke his bonds within a few minutes and summoned help. The robbers, whom he could not describe well, were believed to have fled eastward along the Montreal highway.

CCC Worker Jailed.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Cumberland, Md., Dec. 4.—Hercules P. Northcraft, a member of CCC Camp S-52, was arraigned yesterday in People's Court on four traffic charges, including driving while intoxicated, and committed to jail for 65 days in default of $136 fine.

2 Are Indicted In $8,750 Theft From Bank Aid

Charged with the theft of $8,750 from Enoch G. Johnson, a messenger for the Commercial National Bank in 1928, Michael F. Callahan was indicted by the District grand jury yesterday in one of 43 indictments returned to Justice Daniel W. O'Donoghue in the District Supreme Court.

Named with Callahan was Michael Preston, 55, who has not been arrested, though a Nation-wide search is being made for him. The two are accused of jostling Johnson as he returned to the bank from the Treasury Department on the morning of March 30, 1928. The messenger did not notice the robbery until several minutes had elapsed and he started to check up his receipts.

In their haste to make a getaway, the two men, it is alleged, overlooked $10,000 in cash Johnson carried in another pocket. Callahan was arrested in Providence, R. I., last month when a Philadelphia detective, who had arrested him in 1932 in connection with the robbery, only to have him slip through his fingers when he was released on bail, met him in Providence. Although for years he remembered his face he had not seen Callahan and arrested him.

Manslaughter Charge.

In another indictment presented yesterday, Charles E. Smith, 25, 1363 Somerset place northwest, whose automobile allegedly struck and killed Muriel V. Weinberg, 16-year-old Roosevelt High School student, was charged with manslaughter. Smith's machine is said to have struck Miss Weinberg at Sixteenth and Upshur streets northwest, October 14, shortly after she had left her home at 4211 Sixteenth street to study with a classmate nearby.

Dr. James W. Hart was indicted on a charge of performing an illegal operation on a girl who died in the Emergency Hospital, and Nejib Hekimian, who until recently was the proprietor of a rug store on Connecticut avenue, was charged with having failed to return to Capt. George C. McDonald, U. S. A., two rugs valued at $2,500 which were entrusted to him for cleaning and storing.

Other Indictments.

Those indicted are:

James Rudolph West, Bernard Crozier Baker and Benjamin Harrison Hinton, joy riding; Earl Rodgers, William C. Thomas, Emmett Waller, Melvin J. Buchanan, Harry Taylor, Horace Lucas, Jasper Shepherd, Richard Epps, Samuel McBride and Philip Castro, housebreaking; James E. Chappell, Arthur Johnson, Edgar H. Richardson, Frank E. Wallace, and Roosevelt Campbell, grand larceny.

Morris I. Bernstein, larceny from the United States; Arthur Washington, larceny from the District of Columbia; Nejib Hekimian, embezzlement and grand larceny, and violation of section 851-b, D. C. code; Thomas P. Wharton and Homer E. Stozger, false pretenses; Michael F. Callahan, Michael Preston, Taylor Sullivan, Henry Scott, Andrew Davis and Vernon Brown, robbery; Willie Bailey, Herman Bailey and James Bailey, blackmail and assault with intent to commit robbery.

Richard Clark, Romolo Gentilucci and William B. Fletcher, violation of the liquor taxing act of 1934; Joseph P. Munitz and William B. Fletcher, receiving stolen property; Elmer W. Dodson, assault; Charles C. Davis, Ellison Clayburn and Rudolph Tuckson, assault with a dangerous weapon; James Anderson and Thomas C. Arnett, violation of the motor vehicle theft act; John B. Catoe, perjury; James W. Hart, abortion, and Charles E. Smith, manslaughter.

Livermore Boy Does Not Want To See Mother

Statement Dims Prospects of an Early Meeting With Parents.

Santa Barbara, Calif., Dec. 4 (AP).—Jesse Livermore, jr., recovering from a bullet wound allegedly inflicted by his mother, tonight said he did not want to see either her or his father, Wall street speculator, until he "thinks things over."

The statement of the 16-year-old son issued through his two physicians, dimmed prospects of an early meeting with his mother, Mrs. Dorothea Wendt Longcope, charged with an attempt to murder the boy.

"I don't want to see either my mother or my father," the youth said. "I want to lie down for a week and think things over. I don't want to see the district attorney."

He does not know his mother has been accused.

Questioning Postponed.

Prosecutor Percy Heckendorf said in deference to the youth's request he would postpone questioning planned for tomorrow, to get more detailed information about the Thanksgiving night shooting, alleged aftermath of a drinking party.

The physicians sent hopeful letters concerning the boy's condition to his mother, father and the district attorney today, revealing that Mrs. Longcope continued "apprehensive about her son."

The father, divorced from Mrs. Longcope, is in seclusion here after a plane dash from the East.

Drs. Neville T. Ussher and Irving Wills wrote that young Livermore's condition "is better today than at any time during his illness." Mrs. Longcope had a nervous breakdown yesterday and is seriously ill herself.

Hearing Scheduled.

Despite the boy's improvement, there appeared to be no possibility that the mother's preliminary hearing, scheduled for next Monday, would be held for at least two weeks.

Livermore, sr., and his third wife have remained in their hotel since their arrival here. The financier, at the request of doctors, has not attempted to talk to his son, nor has he talked to his divorced wife. Paul, his other son, is staying at the hotel.

Reports persist that Livermore will attempt to regain custody of his two sons, awarded the mother by a divorce decree in 1932. He refused comment.

Deportation Is Urged By Fish for Alien Reds

Winston-Salem, N. C., Dec. 4 (AP). Deportation of aliens who would destroy the American Government and its institutions was advocated here today by Representative Hamilton Fish, jr. (Republican), of New York.

Addressing the American Legion Luncheon Club and other Civic Club members at a luncheon, Fish vigorously defended the American system of government and expressed belief that a bonus bill would be passed by Congress by the middle of next February.

Land Planning Urged At Interstate Parley

Savannah, Ga., Dec. 4 (AP).—Saving of millions of dollars through long-time planning was pictured as possible today by speakers before the Southeastern Planning Conference.

The meeting, the first of its kind ever held in this country, considered land use problems in connection with the rehabilitation of millions of acres of worn-out farms and cut-over land.

Morton L. Wallerstein, chairman of the Virginia State Planning Board, said planning made it possible for Virginia to save $4,000,000 a year without impairing the efficiency of departments.

Potted Palms, Scared Doe Ruin Window

Necedah, Wis., Dec. 4 (AP).—Otto Mattas surveyed the ruins of a big plate glass window in his restaurant today and vowed that the next time he decorated it he would not use potted palms and ferns.

For many years Otto's window was his pride. It housed his favorite collection of shrubs, nursed and groomed until they gave forth the appearance of a young forest, and that's what caused all the trouble.

A doe appeared in the downtown business section. Seeking familiar protection of thick underbrush among the buildings, the deer saw what looked like a haven. It headed toward it—and crashed through the window of Otto's restaurant.

Hill Boy Killer Of Father Given 'Even Chance'

'Pretty Good Case of Self-Defense,' Says State's Attorney.

By Virginia Lee Warren.
A Staff Correspondent.

Wise, Va., Dec. 4.—While Edith Maxwell languishes in the old red-brick jail here, hoping a new trial will save her from a 25-year prison term for the murder of her father, another young patricide from the Cumberland Mountains, Haugeman Falin, stands "an even chance" of being released from his cell within a few days.

Young Falin, who says he is 16, but appears considerably older, was locked in the Wise County Jail, only a few cells away from the Maxwell girl, last Saturday.

He will be given a preliminary hearing Monday before Trial Justice J. T. Hamilton, on a charge of slaying his 59-year-old father, Lilburn N. Falin. Commonwealth's Attorney Fred B. Greear, who prosecuted the Maxwell case, said today the Falin boy "seemed to have a pretty good case of self-defense" and that he stood "an even chance" of being exonerated at the preliminary hearing.

Edith Maxwell had no preliminary hearing. She didn't realize, her defense attornyes said today, that she could demand one at the time she was taken off to jail last July, from her home at nearby Pound. No attorneys were engaged for her until after the grand jury had indicted her for murder.

Self-Defense Claimed.

Both the Maxwell girl and the Falin boy claim they attacked their fathers in self-defense. The youth emptied both barrels of a shotgun at the elder Falin last Friday night, after an argument over responsibility for a breakdown of the family car. The father, according to the son's story, was drunk and was advancing upon him with a pistol in his hand.

Edith Maxwell declares her father also was drunk at the time of their trouble last July. She whacked him on the head with a high-heeled slipper when he pursued her with a butcher knife, pulled her around by the hair, tore off most of her clothes, and threatened to break her neck. An hour after he was hit on the head by the slipper in his daughter's hand Trigg Maxwell died, according to the autopsy report, from a blood clot.

Edith's struggle with her father was caused by his anger at her staying out after dark with a neighbor boy.

Both young persons' stories have been substantiated by other members of the Maxwell and Falin families. In each instance the mother has said her child acted in self-defense.

While the slayings have been considered similar by the country as a whole, Wise County regards them as totally different. Sentiment here is bitter against Edith Maxwell, a 21-year-old school teacher, but the same people who declare "that cold-blooded murderess got just what she deserved" are sympathetic toward young Falin.

"There's no similarity between the two cases," Commonwealth's Attorney Greear said today. "Trigg Maxwell was a good citizen and always had been. Falin had always been a bad actor."

The difference in standing of the two fathers in this coal-mining section of the mountains accounts for the difference in public sentiment, Greear added.

"The thing that turned folks against the Maxwell girl," he continued, "was the way she tried to cover up the crime. At first the family claimed Trigg Maxwell hurt his head by hitting it against a meat block as he fell while he was drunk. It was two or three days before she or anyone else in the family would admit she'd hit him with a slipper."

Greear admitted Edith was locked in jail July 21, while the struggle with her father was at midnight July 20.

Asked how Edith happened to be taken to a cell on a murder charge when it was several days before the State could learn she struck her father the Commonwealth attorney said:

"Well, we suspected she done it."

Motion Pending.

The Maxwell girl's lawyers—A. A. Skeen, former State Senator R. P. Bruce and W. W. Dotson—expect to learn on December 12 the ruling on their petition for a new trial. They now have a motion pending to set aside the former verdict.

If Circuit Court Judge H. A. W. Skeen, who sentenced the young school teacher two weeks ago to 25 years in the penitentiary, refuses the request for a new trial, defense attorneys will take the case to the Court of Appeals. In that event Edith will be in the red-brick jail here at least until June.

Should Judge Skeen, a distant relative of one of the defense attorneys, grant the request for a new trial, Edith Maxwell will have a chance in March to tell again the story of that sultry, turbulent midnight in July when she hit her father with a slipper as he tried to beat her for staying out after dark.

The Edith Maxwell defense fund is still growing. Yesterday 23 persons, who believe the mountain girl was unjustly sentenced for killing her father with a shoe heel, sent $35.58 to The Post, swelling the total to $452.73.

And the letters coming with the donations continued to brand the verdict of the Wise County (Va.) grand jury "unjust" and "medieval." Excerpts from some of the letters received yesterday follow:

"Justice in Pound, Va., seems less akin to that of the rest of the United States than it does to that of Italy in the Middle Ages, when a father had absolute control over his children, even unto death."

"Please accept this small donation for $1. Wish it were $1,000, as my heart aches for Miss Maxwell."

One person, not a contributor, however, disagreed. On the back of a postcard she wrote:

"My donation is advice: Keep out of all court decisions. If more parents corrected their children, we would have better men and women. Make an example of several and possibly others will not be so hot-headed. Parent."

Chicago Pair Wins Bridge Tourney

Chicago, Dec. 4 (AP).—Louis J. Haddad and Mrs. Hortense Evans, both of Chicago, were crowned champions of the mixed pairs' play at the American Bridge League's ninth annual tournament here tonight.

They won the title and the Olga J. Hilliard Trophy with a score of 1,077½ points out of a possible 1,848, defeating such masters of contract as Ely Culbertson.

Another Chicago pair, Robert F. Rubel and Miss Allyne Paris, won second place with a score of 1,045½. In third place were M. J. Blake and Mrs. Florence Stratford, Cleveland, with 1,044.

Culbertson and his partner, Mrs. George U. Harris, New York, placed thirty-fourth in the field of 45. Their score was 879.

Ahead of them in thirtieth place was Mrs. Josephine Culbertson, who played with Mrs. Harris' husband and won 909½ points.

Competition for the league's team-of-four open championship began tonight.

Police Patrols Bar Picketing In Strike Riots

25 Hurt in Night-and-Day Clashes at Detroit Accessory Plant.

By the Associated Press.

Detroit, Dec. 4.—Patrolling police guards enforced a "no picketing" order tonight at the plant of the Motor Products Corporation after strike violence had brought injury to five persons there last night and today.

Officers of the Automotive Workers Association, sponsoring the strike, withdrew their forces after a sharp clash today as a new shift went on duty in the plant, and announced they planned to seek a court injunction to establish their right to picket.

The strike has been in progress almost a month, but no disturbances developed until last night, when leaders addressing a mass meeting of 2,000 workers near the plant, urged them to march on the gates.

500 in Battle.

Police estimate that more than 500 men participated in the brief but bitter clash after guards tossed tear gas bombs into the strikers' ranks. Eighteen strikers, two policemen and a woman were injured and 11 strikers were jailed.

A second clash between pickets and police was precipitated early today when a new shift went on duty and police guarding the gates ordered pickets to retreat across the street to avoid an encounter with the workers. It was estimated 75 pickets participated in the clash today.

Two policemen were struck by flying bricks and two strikers were bruised when the officers swung their sticks to drive them back to the union headquarters a block from the main gates.

A Motor Products Corporation official, asserting the strike ended last week, said the plant force was at full strength. The plant continued at normal production today.

Members of the Motor Products local of the United Auto Workers Union, American Federation of Labor affiliate, returned to work last week. They said the Automotive Industrial Workers and the Mechanics Educational Society of America, another independent union of skilled tool and diemen, had called the strike without consulting them.

Today, however, Francis J. Dillon, president of the A. F. of L. Union, said members of the Motor Products local would vote Sunday on joining in the strike.

Divinity Student Faces Grand Larceny Charge

Rochester, N. Y., Dec. 4 (AP).—A divinity school student in charge of boys' work at the fashionable downtown First Baptist Church sat bewildered in a police headquarters cell tonight, unable to raise $2,000 bail set after he pleaded innocence in city court to charges of burglary and grand larceny.

He was brought in this morning by two detectives, who said they found him trying to enter the back door of a residence with a duplicate key. He identified himself as S. Atwood Allen, 29, formerly of Binghamton, a student at the Colgate-Rochester Divinity School, and a member of the class of 1934 of the University of Rochester. He is married.

Captain of Detectives Anthony Andrews said Allen broke down under questioning and admitted ten burglaries in the past few weeks.

Ickes Halts Arizona's $23,000,000 Project

By the Associated Press.

Secretary Ickes yesterday ordered suspension of work on the $23,000,000 Gila Valley reclamation project in southwestern Arizona, but no reason for the action was announced.

Ickes was in Detroit and declined to discuss the order until he returns here today.

Reclamation officials denied the suspension might have been ordered because of Arizona's recent filing in the Supreme Court of a suit asking for an equitable distribution of the waters of the Colorado. Arizona for years has argued that her neighbor, State of California, was encroaching on her rights on the river, aided by huge Federal appropriations.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas blats up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

Laxatives are only makeshifts. A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. Oil 'Monopoly' For Standard Denied in Rome that an agreement has been made with the S. I.-A. P. whereby this American-controlled company agrees to furnish Italy petroleum if the League shuts off such supplies, needed to continue Italy's war in Ethiopia.

All that is denied is the "monopoly" angle. Possibly this term was not used in the reported "gentlemen's agreement" which would give the S. I.-A. P.—government-controlled company for exploitation of oil in Italy—a market for all the petroleum it is able to produce. In the eyes of experts, this is equivalent to monopoly.

The government denial, which followed a disclaimer from Walter C. Teagle, president of the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, in New York, was expected by the sources which revealed the agreement to the United Press.

Continues Oil Sale.

New York, Dec. 4 (AP).—The Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey said today it was continuing to supply oil to its Italian subsidiary.

Walter C. Teagle, president, however, denied "unequivocally" a published report that through its Italian subsidiary it had guaranteed Il Duce a supply of petroleum for the duration of the war in return for a valuable monopoly.

Teagle issued a statement saying the report sounded like "a preposterous piece of propaganda." He said:

"I can unequivocally deny that any such arrangement has been considered. So far as I know it has not even been proposed to our Italian company. The officials of that company are aware that such a contract would not only be impossible of fulfillment, but also would under no circumstances be accepted by us."

Won't Interfere.

In response to inquiries as to the status of the company's relations with its Italian subsidiary, Teagle's officer referred to his statement of October 18, in which he said he saw no reason to interfere with the regular commercial oil business between Standard and its Italian company.

At that time, Teagle's office issued this statement:

"Persistent press comments that major oil companies are discussing a possible world-wide embargo of petroleum sales to Italy brought forth from the Standard Oil Co. (N. J.) a flat denial of knowledge of any such decision.

"An Italian subsidiary of Standard Oil Co. (N. J.), Societa Italo-Americana del Petrolio, has been marketing petroleum products in Italy for more than 40 years."

The statement concluded that Standard had not been approached with any suggestions that it restrict regular shipments to its Italian subsidiary and that Teagle saw "no reason under existing conditions to interfere with the regular commercial business which had been carried on in Italy."

Tighter Rules Urged.

Reports of an oil deal between Italy and a Standard Oil of New Jersey subsidiary last night brought Congressional echoes here for more rigid Federal control over industry.

Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney (Democrat), Wyoming, author of a bill for Federal licensing and incorporation of all industry, asserted that the reported deal reveals "the necessity for a Federal system of charters and licenses for corporations engaged in foreign commerce or commerce among the States."

O'Mahoney's position was made known as an investigation disclosed that numerous American oil firms are in a position to supply belligerents in the Italo-Ethiopian conflict with oil from a dozen countries even if supplies were embargoed from the United States.

Supplies Over World.

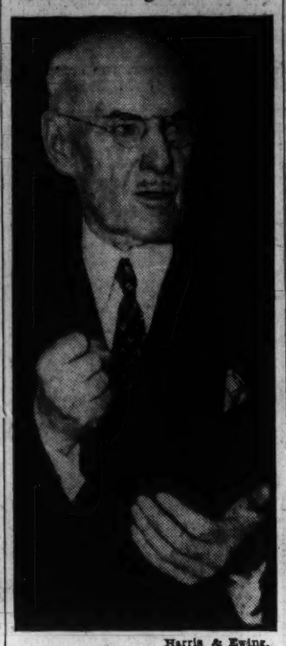
Standard of New Jersey, through subsidiaries and affiliates, has access to oil supplies in Rumania, Argentina, Bolivia, Canada, Colombia, Java, Mexico, Peru, Poland, Sumatra and Venezuela. Other large American firms, such as Standard Oil of California, Gulf, and Texas Corporation, have foreign oil sources.

It was emphasized that shipments of oil from the foreign sources undoubtedly would be dependent upon action of governments of the producing nations, regardless of United States action.

O'Mahoney said that while he had no doubt that denial of the Italian-Standard deal by Standard officials was "altogether accurate," legislative steps for the future are necessary.

"It still remains true," O'Mahoney added, "that the Standard Oil or other large corporations could enter into agreements affecting the commerce power of Congress and over which the Federal Government could exercise no supervision."

Sees a Rough Session



Harris & Ewing.

REP. EDWARD T. TAYLOR, (Democrat), Colorado, and acting House majority leader for the Seventy-fourth Congress who, despite President's plan for a short session, denies it can be done.

Rickett Flying to Africa.

Paris, Dec. 4 (AP).—Francis M. Rickett, British promoter, was reported by his pilot today to be en route to Ethiopia, where last summer he negotiated a huge oil concession from which American interests withdrew after consultations with the State Department.

Rickett arrived by airplane, flown by Lee Smith, an American. Except to say he was "en route to Cairo and farther," Rickett would not comment, but Smith said he was going to Ethiopia.

Later in the day they took off for Rome.

Emperor Haile Selassie last month expressed belief the Rickett-negotiated concession for oil rights between Ethiopia and American interests would be taken up again when the war is over.

The concessionaires "never canceled the concession," he said, "but merely withdrew temporarily at the suggestion of the State Department for the worthy motive of promoting international peace."

Berlin Church Defies Decree Curbing Rights

By the Associated Press.

Berlin, Dec. 4.—An official edict removing authoritative and administrative rights from Protestant church groups opposing the government's administration was declared unacceptable to protestantism at a meeting today of the confessional provincial synod for Berlin-Brandenburg.

Some 180 Lutheran delegates unanimously adopted a resolution saying the decree by Hans Kerrl, head of the government department of church affairs, was "contrary to assurances given, and violates the internal life of the church and its freedom in expounding God's word."

Obedience to Kerrl's order would mean a "betrayal of God's trust," the delegates said.

Beside the regular delegates, about 500 guests attended the meeting.

Secret service men, finding the session orderly, did not remain.

Confessional circles expressed the belief the unequivocal "no" given as an answer to Kerrl by the Berlin-Brandenburg synod will lead other provincial synods to make similar replies.

Police Questioned In Flogging of Trio

Two Seriously Hurt by Mob After Tampa Arrest.

By the Associated Press.

Tampa, Fla., Dec. 4.—Authorities investigating the flogging, tarring and feathering of three men here questioned at least eight members of the Tampa Police Department today after a statement by one of the victims that policemen took part in the affair.

State Attorney J. Rex Farrior and County Solicitor J. C. Hardee conducted the investigation, which was speeded by demands for action against the floggers from Norman Thomas, one-time Socialist candidate for President, and the American Civil Liberties Union. They made no announcement of their findings.

Joseph A. Shoemaker was the most seriously injured of the floggers' victims. His doctor said the man was "horribly mutilated." W. F. Poulnot also was in a serious condition. Sam Rogers was said to be recovering. They said they were arrested Saturday night for questioning about "alleged communistic activities," but were released only to be seized by members of the mob just outside the police station.

Tyler Brooke Divorced.

Los Angeles, Dec. 4 (AP).—Testifying Tyler Brooke, stage and screen actor, visited her in a hospital intoxicated on several occasions, Mrs. La Runa W. Brooke, fromer actress, obtained a divorce today.

Tokyo to Protest Chinese Activities

By the Associated Press.

Peiping, Dec. 4.—A spokesman announced that Maj. Gen. Mayao Tada, Japanese military commander in north China, plans to protest to Chinese authorities against a renewal of activities of anti-Japanese organizations.

This statement followed the curt assertion of Gen. Sung Cheh-Yuan, Chinese commander of the Peiping-Tientsin garrison, that he is "taking no orders from any foreign power."

Gen. Sung said he expected reforms in north China, approved by the Nanking government to forestall creation of "another Manchukuo," to become effective soon.

Nanking's minister of war, Gen. Ho Ying-Chin, was understood to be conferring in Peiping today with Gen. Kenji Doihara, Japanese military leader.

A new council, official circles said they believed, would be created in the five provinces patterned on the semi-independent Mongolian political council, which has controlled inner Mongolia for two years.

Italy Conceals Finance Status; Fliers Enlisted

By the Associated Press.

Rome, Dec. 4.—A royal decree masked Italy's financial situation with official secrecy tonight.

Amid an apparent tightening of the kingdom's home defenses, the order suspended publication of treasury figures, statistics on the public debt and statements of the Bank of Italy.

The last Bank of Italy statement was issued October 20. Then the bank had nearly 4,000,000,000 lire in gold (approximately $324,000,000).

Subsequently, Premier Benito Mussolini was given authority to withhold all statistical information which might give aid or comfort to Italy's economic besiegers—the "sanctionist" states of the League of Nations.

Following upon the reported withholding of all naval leaves, well-informed persons said certain troops which had been destined to sail for Italian Somaliland, the southern African war base, still are in Italy.

Observers wondered if these men were being held at home in preparedness for eventualities that might arise from the existing European tension over sanctions.

The cabinet has ordered, too, that all vacancies in the kingdom's powerful air force be filled. Already the army has reached a peak of efficiency with the cancelation of leaves for 100,000 men.

Navy Believed Preparing.

Informed persons believed some of the nation's naval strength was being concentrated at vital points to guard against the possibility of trouble in the Mediterranean Sea.

As for the conflict in Ethiopia, official sources said Mussolini was going on with his war without waiting for Great Britain and France to propose peace.

Those who professed to know said the dictator wants both territory and a smashing victory before he listens seriously to peace terms.

Marshal Pietro Badoglio, the new high commander of the African armies, was pushing his penetrations as rapidly as he could. But today he cabled tersely: "There is nothing of note to report on either the Eritrean or the Somaliland front."

On the sanctions defense front at home, a newspaper syndicate decided to refuse further contributions from writers of "sanctionist" nationality. An organization of private schools barred textbooks published in "sanctionist" nations.

Royalty Gives Up Rings.

Rome, Dec. 4 (AP).—Italy's monarchs showed the people today they stand with Premier Mussolini in his fight against the 52 nations applying sanctions.

Queen Elena wrote Il Duce, promising that the two royal wedding rings would be turned over to the government on December 18, the date set by Italy's women for a collection of wedding rings throughout the country.

King Victor Emmanuel canceled the traditional New Year's reception to diplomats and governmental officials. The sovereign thus will avoid shaking hands with the ambassadors of the besieging countries.

Fascists construed these two actions as a definite effort to show the public that the monarchs approve Il Duce's invasion of Ethiopia and his defense against League of Nations penalties.

The women who organized the wedding ring movement expect it to yield 1,000,000,000 lire (about $80,000,000).

The Prince and Princess of Piedmonte followed the example of the sovereigns in presenting their wedding rings to the federal secretary at Naples. They also contributed a considerable quantity of gold melted down from their personal possessions.

The prince, whose name is Umberto, is the son of the King and Queen and the heir apparent to the throne.

30 Are Fingerprinted In Search for Slayer

Fresco, Calif., Dec. 4 (AP).—More than 30 business and professional leaders submitted voluntarily to fingerprinting today in the hope of speeding up the hunt for the slayer of Mary Louise Stammer, 14, by the elimination process.

The plan was launched by the Fig Garden Men's Club, whose members reside in the vicinity of the W. H. Stammer home where the girl was shot 10 days ago.

makes it mandatory for the President to embargo arms, ammunition and "implements of war" on the outbreak of hostilities between other nations. Usually well-informed quarters, however, have expressed the belief that it does not now empower him actually to embargo other items and that further specific congressional authority would be needed for this.

No official so far has committed himself publicly on this point. This has led to speculation over whether the Government might not have considered the possibility of applying the definition "implements of war" to certain "war materials," thus placing them in the embargo category, should American shipments of such items exceed limits that might threaten this country's neutrality.

Admittedly, Secretary Hull regards the present act as inadequate in that it does not provide the wider discretionary powers which some believe necessary to provide better safeguards for American neutrality in foreign hostilities.

Meanwhile, with officials still dissatisfied over the lack of success of the indirect pressure they have applied to stop abnormal trade with the belligerents, attention was being given to a report by Representative Ludlow (Democrat), Indiana, that some shippers of goods to Italy and Ethiopia were camouflaging their real identities behind fictitious names. He proposed full publicity as a weapon.

Four Taken to Hospital In Trolley-Train Crash

Memphis, Tenn., Dec. 4 (AP).—Many persons were injured as a railroad tank car and several box cars crashed into a trolley containing about 50 passengers, mostly WPA workers, today. The accident occurred at a street intersection in suburban Memphis. Four men, all WPA workers, were taken to hospitals.

Selassie Vows Ethiopia Won't Give Territory

Emperor Answers Reports of Peace Moves; Plans Trip Toward Front.

By the Associated Press.

Addis Ababa, Dec. 4.—Although Europe is buzzing with reports of possible new peace moves, Emperor Haile Selassie sent word today that Ethiopia never will surrender "a single foot of land" under any plan.

The Emperor, who is at Dessye, telephoned Foreign Minister Herouy here, "We will never give up any part of Ethiopia."

Advices from Dessye said the Emperor would leave there within a few days, either returning to Addis Ababa by airplane or going by caravan to the north.

Dessye, Ethiopia, Dec. 4 (AP).—Emperor Haile Selassie, a close adviser said today, will leave Dessye within a few days, either going overland to the north or flying back to Addis Ababa.

In any case, it was learned, he will not proceed more than 50 miles toward the northern battle front, probably going to Magdala to meet his three northern commanders.

Minter Suit Dropped.

Los Angeles, Dec. 4 (AP).—Suit for $41,008 against Mary Miles Minter brought by two financial concerns over a note she signed in 1929 has been dismissed.

Filing of the dismissal in Superior Court indicated a settlement had been reached between the former actress and the Mortgage Guarantee Co. and Security-First National Bank, holders of the note.

Italians Clash With Ethiopian Advance Guard

Outpost Fights Indicate Long-Waited Battles Are Imminent.

By the Associated Press.

With the Italian Troops at Makale, Ethiopia, Dec. 4.—Two strong Ethiopian columns, marching toward the Italian front south of Makale and along the Takkaze River, engaged Italian outposts in combat today.

Italian officers predicted the long-awaited major battle would be fought soon.

In one clash southwest of Makale, at Debri, four Italian white soldiers were killed, and there was another encounter on the western end of the front near the Takkaze River.

The Ethiopian northern army, reinforced by regular troops from Addis Ababa, equipped in European style, appeared determined to give battle in an attempt to turn the Italian flank.

Prelude to Battles.

An Italian military communique stated:

"The announcement of the approach of enemy masses toward the Takkaze line and of the encounters bravely fought by our advanced posts on the Makale front and at the fords of the Takkaze River constitutes a perlude to battels of varying intensity.

"The adversary will attempt an outflanking movement, probably in order to lessen the pressure which the movements of our troops are accentuating in various directions."

Asserting the Ethiopians are now strongly armed, the communique said Europeans had equipped a munitions factory at Addis Ababa to manufacture hand grenades, airplane bombs, cannon, anti-aircraft projectiles and other war materials.

Armaments Listed.

The communique gave many figures indicating the extent of Ethiopian armaments which must be reckoned with.

Italian reports said the Ethiopians recently received 7,500 Belgian rifles, 350,000 cartridges, and 150 Mannlicher and 750 Hotchkiss machine guns.

In another recent shipment, the figures showed, there were 200,000 rifles, 1,000 pistols, 400 machine guns 200 trench mortars and 500,000 hand grenades.

The Ethiopian army was also said to have 300 Maxim light machine guns, 500 Maxim heavy machine guns, 25,000 Mauser rifles, 10,000 automatic rifles and 15,000,000 cartridges.

It was reported 2,800 Vickers machine guns and 500 Lewis machine guns have been ordered.

Don Seitz, Veteran Scribe, Dies at 73

By the Associated Press.

New York, Dec. 4.—Don Carlos Seitz, newspaperman and author, died today at his home in Brooklyn, N. Y. He was 73.

Seitz, a former business manager of the late New York World, had been ill only a short time. He was born at Portage, Ohio, and received his A. M. deree from St. Lawrence University in 1906.

Seitz was successfully reporter, Albany correspondent and editor of the Brooklyn Eagle during the latter part of the nineteenth century. In 1894, he went to the World as advertising manager to remain with that newspaper until 1926.

He was the author of biographies and historical treatises, as well as a poet. A former president of the Authors Club, he was a member of the Grolier Club and of Phi Beta Kappa.

Sanctuary in Ireland Proposed for Pope

Dublin, Dec. 4 (AP).—A sanctuary in Ireland for Pope Pius in view of the Italian sanctions situation was suggested today by Eoin O'Mahoney, Cork city delegate to the convention of the Fianna Fail Party.

"I believe that as a result of sanctions, Italy will be smashed," he said. "If Mussolini goes, the Pope will have to go, too."

Ethiopia Would Cede Parts of Provinces, Get Port, in New Plan.

five. However, Emperor Haile Selassie would be permitted to conclude a treaty of assistance with Geneva.

The French believe the plan will be acceptable to Premier Mussolini, who is expected to realize that it will be the last offered. They stress that the exchange of territory will be an act of complete sovereignty on the part of both countries, not recognizing Italy's conquest since the cession of a port to Ethiopia would compensate for territory given to Italy.

It was announced that the departure of English warships from the Mediterranean is considered a conciliatory gesture contributing greatly to chances of Mussolini accepting the solution.

Officers Retained By Oldest Natives

70th Anniversary Will Be Marked Saturday.

The Oldest Inhabitants Association of the District of Columbia met in their headquarters on the second floor of the old Union Engine House at Nineteenth and H streets northwest, last night and solemnly re-elected for another year the same slate of officers who have held their positions for an average of a decade.

The 30 members present then listened to plans for their seventieth anniversary banquet at the Raleigh Hotel Saturday night and referred to a committee a resolution opposing the teaching of communism in the schools.

The following officers were re-elected: Theodore W. Noyes, president; John Clagett Proctor, first vice president; 12 other vice presidents; J. Eliot Wright, secretary-treasurer; James F. Duhamel, corresponding secretary; John R. Mahoney, financial secretary, and Frank W. Dowling, marshal.

Transit Firm Hearing Is Ordered Postponed

The Public Utilities Commission yesterday postponed from next Thursday to December 16 public hearings to consider defects in the operation of the Capital Transit Co.

William A. Roberts, People's Counsel, had sought to have the hearing postponed beyond the first of the year. That much time, he said, would be required for representatives of various civic and business organizations to get together records of specific complaints. Mr. Roberts called a meeting of such representatives for 8 p. m. December 14, at which evidence of poor service will be discussed.

'Fascist' Issue May Overthrow Laval's Cabinet

'Popular Front' to Press Demand for Action Against Leagues.

By the Associated Press.

Paris, Dec. 4.—Premier Pierre Laval's government faced a new threat of overthrow on the tense "Fascist" League issue tonight.

Edouard Herriot, former premier, told his radical Socialist colleagues he would withdraw from the cabinet unless a majority of the powerful party is satisfied with the premier's action against semi-military leagues such as Col. Francois de la Rocque's "Croix de Feu."

The minister of state's declaration, in a party meeting, was considered by parliamentary sources to indicate M. Laval must actually satisfy the radical Socialists on the rightist league question, instead of seeking a vote of confidence by a narrow majority.

The radical Socialists asked Herriot to get the premier's promise to take recruiting of France's mobile guard out of the hands of the Rightist minister of war, Col. Jean Fabry, and to place it under Minister of the Interior Josef Paganon, a radical Socialist.

They urged, also that two reports on the semi-military leagues be discussed in parliament before Christmas, and asked that newspapers, which they said were publishing articles inciting to "revolt and murder," be prosecuted.

France's Chamber of Deputies, scene of a turbulent debate on the League only yesterday, will resume its discussion tomorrow. Many believed Laval would make the strongest possible promises to keep a majority of the radical socialists in line.

Leftists, preponderant in the chamber, are demanding "disarming and dissolution" of organizations such as the Veterans of the Fiery Cross.

They were not appeased by the premier's recent decree requiring the leagues to give police advance notice of political meetings, even private, and stringently controlling the possession of firearms.

Much depends on the attitude of the radical socialists, the strongest party numerically in Parliament.

U.S. Figures Fix Total of Jobless At 10.9 Million

5,000,000 Employed Since 1933, Semiofficial Statistics Show.

By the Associated Press.

Semiofficial estimates on unemployment, which have been in use for some time by the Government but were kept a secret until yesterday, declare that 10,815,000 persons were jobless last September.

They also say that 5,000,000 persons, formerly jobless, have found work since March, 1933.

The figures originally were compiled for President Roosevelt's committee on economic security by Robert R. Nathan, its consultant on unemployment statistics. Since that committee completed its work last spring he has kept them current unofficially.

Many Federal agencies have used the estimates and they have been highly credited by Government economists. But they have never before been disclosed because of the Administration's reluctance to give official standing to any unemployment figures.

Although 5,000,000 persons had found work by September, according to the estimate, the unemployment rolls had been cut little more than 4,000,000 because nearly a million new recruits were added to the employable population between March, 1933, and September.

Nathan estimated the peak of unemployment at 15,071,000 in March, 1933. His final figure for October has not been determined, but preliminary calculations indicate it will show a substantial reduction from September's figure of 10,915,000.

The estimates are "no more than rough approximations," Nathan said, contending at the same time that they were the best available. They will soon be published in the International Labor Review, publication of the International Labor Organization at Geneva.

Though several unofficial estimates of unemployed are made from time to time, none is published in such detail as those gathered by Nathan. The committee on economic security used them in drafting the social security legislation.

They showed that in September the bulk of unemployment was in the manufacturing, building, transportation, wholesale and retail and service industries.

Extension Seen.

A possible extension of the 3½ per cent emergency rate on Farm Credit Administration loans was seen in Washington last night as the result of President Roosevelt's demand that private mortgage rates be cut to such a figure.

Under present law, a 4 per cent rate becomes effective for FCA loans next June. By contrast, prevailing private rates were reported by officials here to run from 5 to 8 per cent, depending upon the locality, with the charge even higher in some sections.

At the same time, Mr. Roosevelt's reported indorsement of the Bankhead bill to help tenant farmers purchase the areas they cultivate brought encouragement to the Western and Southern group which backed the measure last session.

The bill providing a billion dollar fund for low interest loans, repayable over 30 to 50 year periods, was approved by the Senate, 45 to 32, last session, but failed of action in the House. Its status carries over, however, and House approval alone will make it law.

Less than a month ago the President commented at a press conference on high rates for bank loans, especially for home construction.

End Experiments, Is Sloan's Plea

efficient producer as well as the maximum possible consumer."

The General Motors president said that in applying the yardstick emergency measures must be separated from those that will stand the acid test of time.

"We must liquidate these experiments, which have no part in our forward program," he said. "Whatever purpose they may have served is ended. It is one thing to pool our resources for economic recovery, and quite a different thing to be willing to sacrifice those same resources and our future opportunities to force fundamental changes of permanent character, the outcome of which we cannot contemplate with any degree of confidence."

Enterprise Versus Business.

Sloan said that the people must ask thmselves whether wealth-creating agencies are to be based upon private enterprise or political management.

"I cannot see how any intelligent observer can have any possible faith in the capacity of political management to provide either stability or progress, if it should set out to operate the agencies of wealth creation, particularly industry," he continued. "It is my firm conviction that any form of 'government regimentation of industry' is bound to result in an ever-increasing interference with the broad exercise of initiative—the very foundation of the American system.

"I hold that political management, irrespective of degree, can have no other result than lowering the ceiling of industry's ability to contribute toward human progress."

Sloan referred to the conference of industry and business called to meet in Washington next week by George L. Berry, co-ordinator for industrial co-operation, as "most unfortunate."

Warns of Confiscation.

Discussing Federal taxation, Sloan said:

"I have already remarked that the 'theory of scarcity' has been a dominating influence in many of our economic policies. In the case of taxation, however, there is involved the 'theory of plenty' and there must now be evolved a 'theory of plenty more.'

"There must be brought home to the consciousness of all that the more the Government takes, the less each one has—no one can possibly escape."

Attacking proposed labor legislation, Sloan said that "industry certainly has a sound appreciation of the fallacious theory that we can increase employment by reducing the hours of employment per person."

He pointed out the necessity for maintaining a balance of purchasing power between the agricultural and industrial communities, but attacked a policy of "paying something and getting nothing."

Earlier in the day, W. B. Bell, president of the American Cyanimid Co. and chairman of the finance committee of the Republican National Committee, told the manufacturers that the Townsend plan represented a real menace and that the movement had grown so strong that it must be actively opposed.

Bell declared the Federal budget can be balanced "without any privation of food or clothing or shelter to people who ought to have it." He said that all that is needed is an appropriation for relief of $1,-

Underwood & Underwood.

DR. HAROLD G. MOULTON.

250,000,000 in co-operation with State and private charities and that with the appropriation held down to this figure the budget can be balanced.

Other business leaders pleaded for tangible evidence from Washington that industry will be allowed to go ahead free from the uncertainty occasioned by Government experimentation and from excessive taxation made necessary by continued Government spending in excess of income.

Speaker after speaker sounded a call to arms. There was every evidence that the more than 1,000 leading industrialists attending the meeting were determined to carry out the proposal of some of their number to "gang" the New Deal.

While speakers were expressing themselves, in sometimes almost violent language, the resolutions committee of the convention was meeting in continuous session putting their ideas into form for adoption tomorrow.

Forced into Politics.

Opening the convention, C. L. Bardo, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, declared that "whether we like it or not, industry, much against its will, has been forced, in sheer self-defense, to enter the political arena or be destroyed as a private enterprise."

"In the inner recesses of our minds," he said, "we no longer feel that America must submit to guardianship, that we must choose thralldom instead of freedom."

Business, Bardo said, must "find a sound middle ground between the anarachy of irresponsible individualism and the tyranny of state socialism, between Caesarism and laissez faire run wild."

While admitting that some Government regulation is necessary in interstate business, Bardo added that "I am one of those who absolutely reject the trustee theory, the guardianship theory."

No Interest in Hearings.

"There seems little interest in the projected congressional hearings to consider new regulations to supplant the NIRA. The 'breathing spell' was announced with the conceded recognition that experiments had retarded recovery and re-employment."

As examples of legislation that he said retarded recovery, Lund cited the NIRA, the agricultural adjustment act, the securities and exchange acts, the holding company act, labor legislation and the "soak the thrifty" tax bill.

James A. Emery, general counsel for the N. A. M., followed the arguments used by Lund.

He said there had been some "revival of liberty" and that as a result "the natural forces of recovery have gained a new level, despite intervening obstruction, and, in the doing of it, have maintained, in the face of the most distressing conditions, high labor standards."

Repeating that the natural forces of recovery are apparent on every hand, Emery continued:

"But they test the security of every foundation over which they advance. The double quick to the music of assurance. For who will build while the earth trembles?

Constitutional Freedom.

"Make all combinations look alike to the law and hold each equally responsible for its own conduct and that of its agents. Abandon the Federal effort to expand central authority at the expense of local self government. Restore the shattered concepts of constitutional freedom. With our future clarified, confidence restored, initiative revived, we will with new courage face the risks of enterprise and disenthralled and regenerated American industry will advance rapidly and efficiently in every field of endeavor."

Building Trade Rift in A.F. of L. Finally Settled

Contractors Granted Right to Dictate Apportionment of Work.

Settlement of the 18-month building trades split in the American Federation of Labor, described by President William Green as "the most vexing internal and jurisdictional question which had ever arisen in the A. F. of L.," was announced last night.

President Green said the terms of settlement will prevent future jurisdictional disputes in the building trades, which have proven costly to contractors and slowed down construction.

Although full terms of the concord were not made public, Green said in the future the contractor will say whether the bricklayer or the carpenter should do a given job. Any of the dissatisfied crafts could appeal to a special building trades committee. If the matter was not settled there, a Federal judge in the district where the trouble took place, would act as arbiter.

Two building trades factions sent contesting delegates to the last A. F. of L. convention, and as a result, no building trades business was done. As a result of the settlement, a building trades convention will be held in Washington February 6, when organization matters will be worked out. Pending the convention, George M. Harrison, president of the railway clerks, as personal representative of Green, will select from the two factions a president and a secretary of the reorganized building trades department. The group will choose its own officers at the February convention.

An Unconventional Daughter.

As long as Bryn Mawr College stands, the name of M. Carey Thomas will be remembered. That institution embodies a monument to her vision, her energy and ability. Indeed all higher education for women owes a debt of permanent gratitude to the great educator who died in Philadelphia on Monday.

It is appropriate to refer to Miss Thomas—she disdained the other titles due her by virtue of the several doctor's degrees she had earned and been accorded—as a pioneer. While her career as president of Bryn Mawr for 28 years is itself remarkable, her story is only half told without consideration of the odds she faced in developing the first college for women. Winning a bachelor's degree at Cornell in 1877, she gained admittance to advanced courses at Johns Hopkins only on condition that she sit behind a screen at lectures.

She proceeded next to the University of Leipzig where, after three years' work in Greek, English, Teutonic philology and philosophy, she was refused a doctorate because of her sex. Appealing to the University of Goettingen, again she was rejected on the same count. At last the University of Zurich consented to pose her an exceedingly rigid examination which she passed so successfully that she received her degree summa cum laude, said to have been the highest scholastic honor achieved by a woman at that time.

After another year of study at the Sorbonne, she returned to this country at the age of 28 to become dean (the title was imported for the first time from English universities) of the newly founded Quaker college for women near Philadelphia. Within a few years she succeeded to the president's chair. Here her outstanding ability as an executive, coupled with her unusual academic talents, served to develop the college into the leading institution of its kind in the country, a position in which it is now rivalled rather than displaced.

Some conception of the daring of this educator's vision may be had from the words of an acquaintance who wrote at the time of her graduate study abroad that "family friends were preserving a sort of hush concerning this unconventional daughter in the presence of her mother, and hardly spoke of her, as if she had brought some sort of disgrace upon the family and was to be mentioned barely above a whisper."

Today, half a century later, due to her perseverance, she is mourned as the preeminent leader of a cause recognized and indorsed by the entire country and virtually the world at large.

American Undefiled.

The worm of the Middle West, which is to say the accent thereof, has turned at last, and none too soon. Some while since, the traditional New England scorn of all alien speech reached a laboratory climax. Having "photographed" the voice of a Wisconsin colleague, a Harvard professor compared it to the "random noise" of a vacuum-cleaner. Now a savant of Kansas State College retorts with a charge that Yankee vocalization is an oral irritant. The ensuing caustic controversy raises a question as to the criterion by which "accent" is to be judged.

One of the makers of the Oxford Dictionary said that the standard of good English pronunciation and inflection is the pronunciation and inflection of educated Englishmen in or about Surrey, although any Irishman will tell you that the best English is spoken in Dublin. How, then, are Americans to decide? If only beauty were the test, the soft and slow speech of our Southern States would be a favorite. But that Kansas scholar—whose name, by the way, is H. Miles Heberer—defends Midwestern speech because it is "easier to understand" than certain other forms. And he evidently refers to pronunciation rather than any natural simplicity in the thought of Kansans.

It is to be hoped that Prof. Heberer will submit to a compromise: some accent mildly pleasant to the ear while clear to the intelligence. And perhaps—for his name has a Pennsylvania-Dutch turn to it—he will agree that the compromise might be the too-little-appreciated accent, inflection and phraseology of the Pennsylvania Dutch. There would appear to be the ideal vernacular. Its gentle rise and fall relieve monotony, its vowels open the throat and exercise the larynx. Nor is excessive mental effort required to understand what little Goldie Schlegelmilch means when she summons her tardy brother to dinner:

Rational Neutrality Policy.

There is an underlying value to Secretary Ickes' fumbling disavowal of intent to bring unauthorized pressure against oil shipments to Italy. It helps to reveal the glaring deficiencies of the present misnamed neutrality law, and thereby to point the way to more thoughtful legislation on the subject when Congress reconvenes.

As is amply demonstrated by the current export statistics in basic munitions, the United States is neutral only in name in the Italo-Ethiopian war. We are not selling Mussolini the arms and ammunition which his factories are abundantly equipped to produce. But we are furnishing him the raw materials out of which he can manufacture these implements of war more cheaply than they could be purchased here. While the terrible arms manufacturers have been deprived of "blood money," equally gory funds are flowing with facility to rather more smug purveyors of munitions.

Beyond that, we are actively engaged in weakening, if not sabotaging, the efforts of the League of Nations to force an aggressor state to observe its treaty obligations. The ability of Italy to turn to an open American market obviously hampers and discourages the League members in their efforts to force a negotiated settlement of the present war. If continued, this American policy is likely to lead to one of two alternatives. On the one hand, sanctions may break down altogether, in which case the United States will stand defined as a nation which very effectively encouraged aggression and assisted treaty violations. Or, on the other hand, a League blockade may be attempted to stop the flow of American munitions, in which case Italy is likely to strike out in desperation and we shall have helped greatly to bring about another world war.

This is the unhappy dilemma into which the Administration is forced by the present neutrality legislation. And it cannot be said that an alternative now frequently suggested is much of an improvement. The proposal is to extend mandatory neutrality provisions so that the President would have to embargo not merely guns but presumably shipments of all basic munitions—cotton, coal, oil, trucks, shoes, clothing, food, etc.—destined to all belligerents in any future war. Such sweeping provisions might of course go far to wreck our national economy. And still they would not achieve neutrality. In the present war, for instance, to send increased shipments of oil to Italy is to aid in the conquest of Ethiopia. But to withhold all oil from Italy is to aid Ethiopia by shattering Italy's domestic economy.

It follows that the only rational neutrality policy—in fact, the only one at all worthy of that name—is one which provides a control system enabling the Administration to check abnormal shipments of basic munitions to a belligerent. This would be no easy matter. It would involve the establishment of export quotas to belligerents and might even require a licensing system similar to that already applied to the arms manufacturers. But if neutrality is the objective it is along this line alone that progress can be made. For neutrality will be gained neither by pretending that the only "merchants of death" in modern war are those who distribute bombs, nor by any impossible attempt to cut the United States off from the world in the event of another general war.

As Secretary Hull has several times pointed out, a rational neutrality policy is one which seeks to shorten war and thereby improve the chances of keeping the United States unentangled. That implies active co-operation with other non-belligerents who are also seeking the same end by pacific means. If we have not the sense to see that such co-operation assists the cause of neutrality, at least we should recognize that to oppose collective action for peace is the surest way of sliding into war.

Referendums In D. C.

Potentially, Commissioner Allen's bill to authorize referendums on important issues confronting the District is the most significant piece of legislation suggested by local officers in recent years. Whether or not it actually becomes a major influence in the conduct of local affairs will depend not only upon its reception in Congress, but also upon the manner of its application, if approved. Certainly the idea is stimulating. It remains to be seen whether it could be practicably worked out in Washington, one of the most unique political units in the world.

No objection to the theory of the plan can be made if critics are realistic enough to admit that it is at present the only possible alternative to complete disfranchisement of District residents. Every American citizen expects and should have the right to vote. Residents of Washington are denied that privilege only because of the peculiar status of this city as the seat of Federal government. If the handicaps of disfranchisement can be modified by the Allen plan a distinct gain in civic consciousness as well as in responsive local governnment should be made.

Mr. Allen advances his bill as a means of keeping the Commissioners informed of public opinion on vital issues. Actually it would strengthen the hands of the Commissioners in presenting their program to Congress. At present the heads of the local government can make no claim of speaking for the District. If they could determine the will of the public on important issues, and shape their legislative proposals accordingly, Congress could not reject those measures without flagrantly distorting a basic principle of American government.

On the practical side it should be asked whether the referendums would cost more than they are worth. Preliminary estimates indicate that it would cost Washingtonians about $20,000 to go to the polls in this manner. Benefits resulting from the balloting process could not, of course, be accurately measured in dollars and cents. If this plan should bring about active campaigns in behalf of, or against, proposed measures; if it should greatly increase the interest of citizens' associations and similar groups in community problems, and if it should give public officials a sense of being in some degree responsible to the will of the people, the cost of holding referendums would be insignificant in comparison to their real value. At the moment a fair ballot on demanding oaths from teachers would be valuable both for the city and the Nation.

Since the Board of Commissioners attempted to use the referendum in the establishment of liquor control regulations for Takoma Park, it probably views Mr. Allen's suggestion in a favorable light. Nevertheless, it is unfortunate that a matter of this importance should be actively sponsored by only one member of the board. Before the bill reaches a Congressional committee it is highly desirable that it should have more than individual sponsorship.

Letting The Roads Compete.

Twice within a week the I. C. C. has permitted exceptions to be made to the so-called long-and-short-haul clause of the interstate commerce act, which forbids lower charges to be made for longer than for shorter hauls in the same direction over the same route. A few days ago the commission decided that rates on citrus friuts from Florida to certain Atlantic ports might during four days each week be reduced below the charges for shipments to intermediate points. Now permission has been granted to reduce rates over circuitous rail and rail-and-water routes between central territory and seaboard cities, leaving all-rail charges from intermediate points at a higher level.

These modifications of the long-and-short-haul clause may be made at discretion within certain limits fixed by law. But generally speaking the Commission has used its power to do away with existing discriminations, except when it can be indubitably shown that strict enforcement of the long-and-short-haul clause handicaps a road in competition with other railroads, water or motor carriers. In lowering the rates on citrus fruits, for instance, it is expected that the railways will be enabled to recapture some of the business recently lost to waterways and trucks.

Unquestionably enforcement of the long-and-short-haul clause has corrected many gross abuses that sprang up during the years of unregulated activity, when the roads were able virtually to build up or destroy towns and cities by their opportunistic rate-making practices. In those days, exceptionally low rates to distant centers reached by competing carriers could be offset by charging unduly high intermediate rates to compensate for the inadequate returns from the long haul. As a result the railways were enabled to exert a tremendous influence upon the distribution of industries and the location of population.

Today, however, the situation is radically altered by the inroads upon rail traffic of bus lines, trucks, and water carriers. The roads have been prevented by law from changing their rates freely to recapture lost traffic, while the I. C. C. has been handicapped by its inability to regulate competing transport agencies.

With control over motor carriers assured by a law passed at the last session of Congress, the I. C. C. is now in a position to secure a fairer deal for the railways. This first step toward establishment of a co-ordinated unified system of control over the Nation's transportation agencies is an incentive to relaxation of the prohibitions of the long-and-short-haul clause, when desirable, to enable the railroads to operate on a basis of greater equality with competitors. However, the ultimate solution of the railway problem lies not in the liberal interpretation or the modification of the provisions of the interstate commerce act, but in an effective extension of that regulation to embrace all kinds of competing interstate transport agencies using waterways and highways built up by taxpayers' money.

The object of such control, as Co-ordinator Eastman says, is "not the protection of the railroads only, but the proper protection of every form of transportation. They all have their parts to play, for each one of them can do certain things better than any other agency." Only a well-coordinated national system of control offers a basis for a form of competition among rival transport agencies that will insure the survival of the economically fit, and the elimination of those that represent an economic waste.

Again On The War Path.

From the St. Louis Post Dispatch.

The Anti-Saloon League has again chosen St. Louis as the site from which to launch its second "Nation-wide drive against alcohol." It was in this city, back in 1908, that it formally declared for national prohibition and sounded the marching order which culminated in the eighteenth amendment to the Constitution.

But the Anti-Saloon League has a powerful ally. It was the liquor traffic that armed and equipped the Anti-Saloon League in the first war. It is the same liquor traffic that is now providing the guns and ammunition for the second war. The league's leaders are confident history will repeat itself. Neutral opinion, if there is such a thing, is wondering whether the drys are right. Most of us doubt that the country can be cajoled or driven into another ghastly experiment with constitutional prohibition. Just the same, the liquor traffic is on paroie and seemingly does not know it. Much of it is behaving as if it had been pardoned and guaranteed immunity forever. If the dry movement becomes formidable, the blame will rest squarely on the failure of the liquor traffic to profit by the plain lessons of experience.

Career Service For D. C.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your editorial, "Misplaced Emphasis," takes the stand for the "creation of a career service" in governmental affairs and deserves commendation.

At the last meeting of the Federation of Civic Associations a resolution was passed that proposed creating a local civil service commission which would certify only one person, the highest rating eligible, for each position, in the District of Columbia government. It was also proposed that the local residents would receive the same percentage of positions as the amount of money they contribute to the cost of the local government bears to the total cost. This would give then about 90 per cent of the positions.

This would eliminate the practice of using our local government as a dumping ground for Congressional patronage, especially those not capable of passing Federal civil service examinations.

In our local government we could establish a model "career service" which would put the Federal civil service to shame and by its success compel the abandonment of the spoils system in the Federal departments. By eliminating the incompetent we would increase the efficiency of our local government and thereby reduce taxation.

Somnambulant G. O. P.?

To the Editor of The Post — Sir: If the Republican Party does not endeavor to draft former President Herbert Hoover as the Republican nominee for President in 1936, it will go on record as the most outstanding somnambulist in American history, and will perhaps never recover from the deep slumber into which it fell in 1932.

As it appears now, only politicians are available in those who are offering themselves from the Republican ranks, and it is a foregone conclusion that politicians and showmen have long since lost their usefulness in creating and administering sound governmental policies which eventually lead nations out of difficulty into the restoration of confidence and stability.

Mr. Hoover is not and has never been a politician or a showman in any sense of these words. He is an executive and a patriot who has been proved able to place principle and national welfare above personal and party interests, and stands firmly against an unbalanced budget and extravagant schemes and destructive legislative panaceas which eventually destroy national credit and mortgage the incomes of countless generations. Not The First.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: When I read in The Post of Sunday, November 24, of the acclaiming of Miss Ethel Leginska as the first woman to direct a performance of her own musical construction in Chicago, I felt like saying "Is that so?"

I would like to ask Miss Leginska and Mr. John Charles Thomas if they have any knowledge of the existence of Miss Emma R. Steiner, who died in April, 1929? She was born in 1855 and was the first woman composer of operas and director of them in the United States. The writer has in his possession a program dated April 30, 1925, commemorating her fiftieth anniversary as American composer and orchestral director at the Metropolitan Opera House in New York.

Juries And Public Opinion.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Our people no longer have respect for law, and this extends to our courts and juries. The gravest crimes are decided by "public opinion," judgment is passed without any other knowledge than that afforded by some smartaleck reporter making a romance of crime at the expense of truth.

The present hysteria of women's clubs and of the hoi polloi, far and wide, regarding the murder in Wise County is an illustration. The new freedom of women seems to mean that they are privileged to be as bad as men; that they may walk the streets at night and any father that would seek to prevent this by punishment should be killed, especially if drunk.

In this wild and muddy overflow of sickly sentimentality, there is one outstanding, redeeming fact that shows hope for our Nation. A responsible committee was duly appointed by high authority in women's clubs to go to Wise County and thoroughly investigate the case. It reported that the real facts do not justify any such criticism as made, nor any interference with the due course of law.

The safest and best means of arriving at a just judgment are an impartial judge, who knows the law, and an impartial jury of men of the neighborhood, who know the witnesses and their credibility, who have been approved before trial by the accused's own lawyers, and who deliberately consider, after taking an oath, the sworn testimony—all of which occurred in the case referred to.

The mischievous and hysterical outcry over our land from a thoughtless, self-constituted jury of busybodies, who clamor without having heard one word of sworn testimony, can only result in further undermining our jury system—the greatest protection for the individual citizens against injustice ever devised in the history of man.

On Brick Sidewalks.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Permit me to make a few comments about the brick sidewalks in the older sections of our city. In some parts of Washington there is block after block of old, worn-out brick pavements. In my opinion these brick walks are as obsolete as old gas street lamps. They belong to the era of 1835, not 1935. Some people, it is true, like brick walks for historical and sentimental reasons. These people, fortunately, are in the minority. A brick walk may have a place in a garden, but surely not on the streets of a modern city.

Brick sidewalks are a nuisance in several ways. During the spring and summer months they harbor a collection of a hundred kinds of weeds. When rainy weather comes along the depressions in the bricks, and they seem to be without number, fill with water and make walking sloppy as well as dangerous. In winter, when ice forms on all pavements, brick walks again hold the records for being mean. Ice forms quickly on them, lasts longer and is more slippery. A concrete walk absorbs more heat, thus the ice on it will not last as long when the sun comes out.

Much money has been and is being spent to improve our streets for modern traffic. I say "good work," but why not also improve the sidewalks in the older sections of the city? IVAN K. GULDEN.

A Conference Of Peace Pact Signers?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The recent radio talk of the president of the Norwegian Parliament may incite the United States to help enforce the Paris pact, which was signed by 64 nations. He told how his country and Geneva responded to the moral and spiritual leadership of the Oxford group which originated in America. He called upon the United States to lead the world to a moral and spiritual renaissance as the only road to permanent recovery.

The time has come for the united churches and synagogues to defy corrupt politics and urge that the United States is in honor bound to stop Italy and Japan from violating the Paris pact. They can assist in bringing Italy and Japan to their sense of honor and end the war in a better way than the League desires.

In 1928, under President Coolidge, we instigated the Kellogg-Briand peace pact as better than the League of Nations and led 63 other nations to enter into a solemn international treaty obligation, that the settlement of all disputes among nations shall never be sought except by pacific means. The League took no offense. Most of the 55 members signed the Paris pact.

As the eyes of the whole world are looking to the United States to do something to prevent the lawless acts of aggression of Italy and Japan, we ought to consider ourselves as under obligation to invite the 63 signatory nations each to send an authorized representative to a conference to determine how to deal with Italy and Japan. As the pact of Paris is based upon a treaty promise to renounce war as a national policy, it provides an international law against war. Each signatory nation surrendered that part of its national sovereignity which, before the pact, justified it in declaring war against another nation. Therefore, the pact would enable the proposed conference to refer international controversies to a supreme court for a final decision.

The conference might decide that the penalty for any nation violating the pact would be that all signatory nations should sever all diplomatic, economic and social relations with it. Such action would not involve us in war but would treat Italy and Japan as outlaw nations, which, by their own choice, have decided to live alone rather than in friendly intercourse with their neighbors.

The Post Impressionist

To Be Let Furnished.

Post Office, Thursday.

NO sooner had this Column commended the League of Nations for hiring an up-and-coming real-estate agent than there dropped on our little desk a little letter from a real-estate agent who is not exactly——

Well, he is an English real-estate agent.

Or, rather, he isn't a real-estate agent: he is an "estate-agent." For, you know, that's what they've been calling themselves over there since ever so long before ours became "realtors."

Anyhow, it is fitting that the British species should possess a name of its own. It is preeminently what a great German philosopher called a Thing-in-Itself.

This agent offers for rent a beautiful house and grounds. The house is historic—full of literary associations, once the home of a great poet who played host to other eminent people. The agent's major anxiety is to advertise these facts to possible American clients—you and the Post-Impressionist among the number.

How does the agent go about it?

He goes about it thus:

"We think it will be of special interest to your readers to know that, during the absence of Lord and Lady Tennyson in California, FARRINGFORD, the home of the world-famous Poet Laureate is to be let furnished."

In other words, the agent starts right out with the all-British method. It includes, of course, modesty, not to say understatement—he merely thinks you'll be interested.

He does have one moment of Americanism: remembering his audience, he gaspingly leaps to a single adventure in capital letters. And he does remind his transatlantic cousins: "As you know, Tennyson has always had a large following in America."

But that's all. Race will tell. And here it tells in the statement immediately following: that, although "the house is entirely the same as when occupied by the poet"—containing "a most interesting museum of articles connected with his life and works"—it has been somewhat modernized "by way of Companies' services."

Why, "at Farringford Lord Tenny son did much of his best work, and its name is irrevocably associated with his, for it was during this period of forty years (in residence there) that he acquired a prestige and held a position such as no other poet in the world's history has ever known during his lifetime."

Don't try to tell this agent that Goethe enjoyed such prestige. Tennyson "was admired by his own Sovereign, Queen Victoria," and—honor's crown of honors—"was visited at Farringford by the Prince Consort."

Nevertheless, it is a lovely place—and the Post-Impressionist confesses to an unmodern admiration for its famous owner, who never wrote an unlovely line, even if he did write some poems that might better have been written by worse poets.

* * *

The place rises above Freshwater, in the Isle of Wight, on Telegraph Hill. Once it was "Prior's Manor," an appendage of the Abbey of Lyra in Normandy, and many of its fields still bear the names the old monks gave them: "Prior's Mead," "Abraham's Mead," "Clerks' Hill" and "Blessed Maiden's Croft." Now, where the white road winds by to Alum Bay, the trees Tennyson loved remain as impressive as when they were seen by Prince Alamaya, son of Ethiopian Selassie's predecessor Theodore. That ill-starred youngster warned his guards:

"Look out! There must be elephants in such a forest!"

Tennyson came upon Farringford in 1853, rented it immediately, bought it in 56. He loved it for its solitude—the Isle of Wight being then unknown to tourists. Yet when they did arrive, he, though he hated them, lost none of his affection for Telegraph Hill. He and Darwin used to quarrel there; Holmes and Longfellow have written of their visits; Garibaldi planted a Wellingtonia, still standing in the garden. The drawing-room once echoed to the voice of Jenny Lind, and in that same apartment the Laureate had a throne built of Farringford ilex to receive Queen Emily of Hawaii.

We hope the estate-agent can offer, along with the other attractions of the place, some old retainer with whom Tennyson talked. We also hope this one will tell more of Tennyson than the only Tennysonian gaffer with whom we ourselves ever spoke.

* * *

He had been a blacksmith on the Hindhead highway when the poet was living over there. On his every teatime stroll, Tennyson used to stop and smoke a pipe at the smithy.

"And what did he talk about?" we asked.

"Well," said the blacksmith, "mostly 'e was a great un to talk about the weather."

Tentative Disposition.

Genoa, Dec. 4.

AFTER 48 hours in Genoa I am not quite ready to prepare complete and final disposition of the subjects of Fascism, Ethiopia and the effect of sanctions on the ordinary life of Italians. Those who can speak enough English to make themselves understood to me mentioned the name Mussolini in a peculiar way. Unlike Germans, they do not regard their dictator or leader as God, for they are Catholics, and so are many leaders of the Fascist party. It was wisely recognized that God, as a phase of life of the Italian people, was adequately covered by their old standard faith.

But neither do I find that they regard Mussolini as a terrible oppressor. Instead he seems to be looked upon as a great force of the state—the boss and general manager, who will give them plenty of hell if they step out of line, but will treat them as kindly as pressure of his plans permits him to as long as they obey orders and don't attempt to cheat.

Everything is up to Mussolini and everybody is relieved of all responsibility in the management of this country. There is no need to worry about candidates or elections, and the Italian citizen spares himself the trouble of standing in line in a dirty cigar store to drop a ballot into a polling box, which is then tossed into the river, or pull levers on a machine whose gadgets have been fouled with chewing gum or hairpins, as in the United States of America.

EVEN if he were permitted to vote every now and again, as freemen are in democratic lands, he would be sure to elect his routine proportion of grafters, barflies, ignoramuses and sockless nuts, all to the detriment of the nation and in the long run of himself.

They have neither Jimmy Walkers nor Big Bill Thompsons in Italy. They have put it all up to a tough mug who knocked their heads together and took charge. Mussolini, he built this road. Mussolini, he stopped beggars and put them in hospitals, or put them to work, or put them in jail. Mussolini, he made hotels publish their rates, and he built big steamships to carry the flag and pride of Italy into New York.

He went into Sicily and smacked down the same sort of hoodlums who almost took over Chicago a few years ago. He slaughtered those he couldn't catch, threw others into dungeons for life and threw the fear of God into the rest.

SICILY, that notorious land whose vicious sons carry on in New York with their Unione Siciliano to this day, is a peaceful island now, barring storm and earthquake, for which a dictator who doesn't claim to be God can hardly be held responsible.

Perhaps in Germany, where a dictator took in all the territory there was and is now described in all solemnity as a German God and German Holy Ghost, Adolf Hitler will have to answer for those catastrophes which are described by insurance companies as acts of God. Being God and Holy Ghost, why shouldn't he?

There was a big fat-faced youth of 30 running a concession in the crater of little Vesuvius at Naples who said with beaming pride that he had sired four children up to now and promised to breed at least seven—"for Mussolini." Healthy and dutiful, he might sire dozens in a full life, although, to be sure, it might be necessary to get him a new wife from time to time. He didn't mention his wife or say anything about the future of the seven children. But he was comparatively exempt from duty with troops in Abyssinia, and the more he bred the more remote became the possibility of his being called to the colors in future wars.

PEOPLE have to die somehow some time, and Mussolini, with his Vesuvian oratory, has insisted that it were better to live heroically and die young than to be unborn or, being born, to spend three-score years and ten in stupid, timid routine. It's a subject which climbs 'way up into the lofty question of the whyness of the whatnot.

You get his idea, though you may not agree. Nathan Hale was what? Perhaps 25. And Chauncey Depew was what? Ninety. Which would you rather have been? I was surprised, though, at the freedom with which certain Italians, who had no way of knowing that I was not a flycop, expressed themselves on the subject of the privilege of dying heroically of fever in Abyssinia.

One young man was due to go away soon, and he was afraid because he had no wish either to free slaves or to fertilize Italy's new empire with his martyred physique. Another who had one child of 15 months was dreading the call and wishing he had at least four. He realized, however, that the element of time was against him, unless triplets should honor his humble home within the next few months. But there was no favorable symptom, and he was downcast and wished he could be in Brooklyn, where he knew some people.

It seems just barely possible that 48 hours is not enough to analyze the situation. I will report further.

Amiable Revolt

National Young Republican League Disregards Old Guard Orders, Implying Rebuke For Inaction Of Eastern G. O. P.

By Hilding Siversen,

Special Correspondence of The Post.

Des Moines, Iowa.

ON Armistice Day in Des Moines there ended a meeting of the National Young Republican League, and its president, George Olmsted, of Des Moines, had been reelected, despite opposition of the Old Guard, as personified by emissaries of Chairman Fletcher, of the Republican National Committee.

The convention adopted a declaration of principles which obviously condemned New Deal policies, but which protested the loyalty of the Young Republicans to progressive ideals. Specific New Deal measures were not mentioned, but all inferences were plain.

As an aftermath of this meeting, it can be said that the sentiment of this orga..ization, and its official acts, are of far more importance than the organization as such.

The importance of the attitude of the league consists in the fact that it reflects substantially and faithfully the sentiments of the rank and file of Republicans of the Middle West, both old and young. Whether it also reflects the attitude of the rank and file in the East is not for the present writer to judge.

Talk to any nonpolitically minded and thoughtful Republican in this part of the country and he is more than likely to express a great deal of resentment at the inert policy of the National Committee.

• • • •

"THE OLD GUARD, dominated by Eastern conservatism, seems to think that the Republicans are going to win the 1936 election by default," said one of these average Republicans. "Fletcher and his crowd seem to think that the New Deal is slipping so fact that all that is necessary is to sit tight and do nothing and the people will vote for any candidate that is nominated by the Republicans—the same old crowd of one-time office-holders will get back into power, the same old tactics will prevail, and the same old crowd will be in the saddle."

Everywhere is heard the lament that the Republican Party, now furnished with the most extraordinary and stupendous job lot of political ammunition ever handed to the "outs," is nevertheless sitting around twiddling its thumbs and following Micawber's tactics of waiting for something to turn up. Once in a while the National Committee emits a feeble squawk, but the ineptitude and feebleness of the attack serves only to emphasize the lack of an aggressive, driving force such as is necessary to win the most portentous Presidential election in 50 years.

"What a pity! By this time there ought to be a definite plan of battle, a marshaling of forces, a campaign of publicity with heavy artillery at work, instead of desultory sniping." This is a very general opinion.

• • • •

THE Young Republican League was brought into being because of the need for such aggressive leadership and the desirability of shaking off the Southern Republican machine which has long exercised a paralyzing effect on the party.

The revolt is still an amiable one, for the young Republicans are keenly aware of the undesirability of a split in the party, and are anxious to work in harness with the present titular leaders. They correspond, in some measure, to the Progressive wing once led by President Theodore Roosevelt, but have no present intention of starting a new party. However, they are deeply dissatisfied with the Old Guard, and intend to keep working until the party veers around to a more aggressive and forward-looking program.

Whereas the Old Guard shows no symptoms of working out a constructive plank on the subject of an agricultural policy, the young Republicans are actively seeking a solution and probably will have something to offer before many months have gone by.

To imagine what the tactics of the National Committee should be, as contrasted with what is actually doing, one has only to imagine what the late Theodore Roosevelt would be doing now if he were living. It goes without saying that he would be breathing words of fire, and would actually have the whole New Deal army on the defensive on all its fronts, desperately trying to cover up its glaring errors, whereas, at present, there is no comprehensive dramatization of the potential Republican issues except those given out at infrequent intervals by Herbert Hoover.

• • • •

THE recent speech of Herbert Hoover was hailed with great satisfaction, but the majority opinion among Republicans is that if he were nominated it would put the Republican Party just where it can least afford to be—on the defensive again. This opinion is expressed even by many of his warmest admirers—men who deeply resent the accusation that Hoover was responsible for the depression.

The candidacy of Col. Frank Knox is mentioned in friendly vein, but he does not seem to capture the imagination of the midlander. So also with Vandenberg, except that he is considered more of an Easterner, with an industrial background.

The potential candidacy of Gov. Landon, of Kansas, is showing the greatest promise, but his wise refusal to make any announcement up to this time automatically keeps him from becoming the nucleus of a definite movement.

Senator Borah is recognized as an able crusader—a lone knight—but he is seldom taken seriously as a Presidential candidate by those who pause to consider the set-up, because he is notoriously unable to work with an organization, and, besides, he has adopted certain policies that do not square with the obvious Republican tactics for 1936.

• • • •

THE circumstances regarding potential nominees are such as to preclude the dramatization of any of the above individuals just now. When the time comes for Gov. Landon to issue his important statement, there will be a chance for a strengthening of the lines of battle. Whether the National Committee will be able to fit itself to the necessary strategy is still problematical. Every straw in the wind now, however, points to the necessity of a Middle Western candidate.

If the Old Guard knew the temper of the people and realized where the best opportunities of success lay, they would welcome the Young Republican League with open arms and co-operate with it in every possible way. However, it is not likely that they will realize what it is all about until it is too late.

There is still the possibility of a dark horse—either as a Presidential candidate or as a general political campaign manager. Rank and file Republicans who are prayerfully hoping for a defeat of the New Deal in 1936 are still scanning the horizon. But there is a very predominant idea that something new and startling has got to happen before long, otherwise the country will have to live in alphabetical soup kitchens for another four years.

WPA Workers Strike; Key West Aid Halted

Key West, Fla., Dec. 4 (AP).—Key West, the city Federal relief money revived when it became financially ill, apparently faced a relapse today as all Works Progress Administration projects were suspended after employes struck for higher wages.

State WPA headquarters instructed M. E. Gilford, Key West administrator, to close down the projects when 1,500 employes, who walked off their jobs yesterday, refused an offer which would have increased their working hours as well as their pay. They turned down the WPA's offer to pay them $7.50 for five days' work.

Don't Mention It.

Sound And Fury

By Karl Schriftgiesser.

Where Once Was Thunder.

ONE of the sadder sights in a world none too filled with gayety and laughter is the drab and threadbare figure of King Henry the Great doddering about the ruins of a world that has passed him by. Once a fine broth of a man with fire glinting from his pale blue eyes and a chill fury frosting his breath, he charged through the hordes of the unrighteous, berating them to the right and to the left with telling effect. But now, it grieves me beyond measure to report, the strength has gone from his good right arm, there is a trembling in his voice and one turns his head from him tearfully, both in anger and in sorrow.

Henry was in the King class when many of us were very young, when Charles Angoff, the scoffer, was a red-headed Harvard boy, and Isaac Goldberg was dividing his time between the melodies of Gilbert and Sullivan, the life and thought of Havelock Ellis, and the collection of data anent the Baltimore tory whose sound and fury signified much to us, then. We read his edicts, all of us, as something handed down from Sinai, despite the warnings of that American Hazlitt, the late Dr. H. T. Parker, who admired our Mencken, but knew the shallowness of the sources of his wit. In those days, life, although we didn't know it, was simpler than it is now; and we were eager to battle with him against his Monsignors Cannon, the Babbits, and the boobboisie.

EVEN now, reading over the yellowed clippings of that glorious if quixotic era, we are able to make the windmills seem like furious enemies again and Mencken like a captain af cavalry charging against the embattled ignorant and the Cossacks who would strike our books from our hands and deny us the right to the intelligent life. I recall with a thrill the day when Mencken and myself were marched along Tremont street by the late Oliver Garrett, vice squad chieftain, later jailed for grafting from the pavement angels and the bootigs. Mencken had been arrested for the heinous crime of selling The American Mercury and Boston Common and I was quivering with indignation at this horrible happening and quite forgetful of the fact that John Mullen, the Mercury's circulation manager, had arranged the whole affair.

It was, to myself and perhaps to Mencken, more than a publicity stunt; it was the only thing to do and it was done, not in the name of circulation, but of personal liberty and the right of any man to read what he wanted, even The Mercury. It was a grand battle, if not bloody, and the only regret I have now is that the spirit in Mencken's breast, which made the struggle possible, is directed still against the same forces of unrighteousness of 1926, and not against the far more important causes abroad in the land today.

Mencken knew so damned well what prohibition and censorship were leading toward and, in those days, his ardor for the Bill of Rights was a lone and loud voice ringing through the countryside and echoing from the stone walls of the institutions dedicated againt change. But now his shrill and trembling falsetto pipes from the same battlements against which it once thundered, At a time when the thump of his prose is needed to lend full body to the whining string orchestra of protest, he sits in a corner toying with a piccolo completely out of tune.

• • • •

AND this is sad and makes his old friends angry. Once he summoned up from his learning phrases and figures that thundered across the wasteland like a herd of wild elephants. Now he sits alone in Baltimore, toying with words and turning his genius to the invention of a dollar sign consisting of a B truck with two bar sinisters to indicate the "boloney dollar" which that other sad gentleman, Mr. Al Smith, gave name to in one of his fits of jealous despair. Not one word does he raise in behalf of liberty, except that on which the American Liberty League has a mortgage, and he bleats in exasperation against the Administration with all the impotence of that former President whom he did more than any other writer to deflate.

All his old enemies are beaten. Prohibition has passed on, Bishop Cannon has retired from prominence, most of the Babbitts are on the breadline, and hunger has taken the place of sex in the minds of millions. Nobody wants to hear about Beethoven again and none reads Joseph Conrad or cares to hear repeated his generous praises of James Gibbon Huneker. Without beer, bishops, of Beethoven to rile him, Mencken has gone into an uneasy slumber and sees a communist under his bed every night. Like Gen. Fries, now retired from the Army, he has little to occupy his mind and so goes gadding about on meddling errands,

Some of his younger sergeants dream at times of these old wars, too, fought when Henry was the king. But they think of beer and the Bible belt, censorship and Scopes and they say, "So what?" Nor are they amused at his feeble jibes at the more abundant life. For they feel that Mencken, in his time, was fighting for that very same thing, and they are sad because his grand, thumping and resonant music has turned to thin pipings and meager squawkings for the old regime.

Reserve Limits Reappointment To Two Months

Bank Board's Action Will Permit New Body to Make Own Choice.

By the Associated Press.

Clearing the way for the increased control which the new Federal Reserve Board will assume February 1, the present board of governors yesterday limited the reappointment of chairmen and deputy chairmen of the 12 Federal Reserve banks to two-month terms.

An official said this was done so that the new board to be appointed by President Roosevelt under provisions of the 1935 banking act "may be free to make its own designations." Ordinarily, the appointments, effective January 1, are made for a year.

In addition to naming the chairmen and deputy chairmen, the new board of seven, which will replace the present nine-member Federal Reserve Board, will have the power of veto over the selection of "presidents" of the various banks.

Were "Governors."

Under the old law, these "presidents" were known as "governors" of the banks and were not subject to the approval of the board of governors. They must be chosen by the banks by March 1.

Mr. Roosevelt already has said that Chairman Marriner S. Eccles will continue as head of the new Federal Reserve Board. Others mentioned as possible appointees have included John Henry Williams, economic adviser to the New York Federal Reserve Bank; Joseph E. Broderick, former superintendent of New York State banks; Lewis Williams, a former official of the Federal Reserve Bank of Cleveland, and Herman Oliphant, general counsel for the Treasury.

The old board also announced yesterday the reappointment of all class C directors whose terms expire December 31, but who have not served six or more consecutive years, the maximum under the new law.

Young Dropped.

Class C directors unable to qualify under the service prohibition who consequently were not reappointed included Owen D. Young, chairman of the General Electric Co., and a director of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York.

Directorates of the Federal Reserve banks consist of nine members. Class A directors consist of three members chosen by stockholding banks; class B of three members actively engaged in commerce, agriculture or some other industrial pursuit, while the three class C members are designated by the board of governors in Washington.

"In order that the new board, which takes office on February 1, 1936, may be free to make its own designations of chairman and Federdal Reserve agents at the same time that it is required to pass upon the selection of the newly elected presidents of the Federal Reserve banks," said the formal announcement, "the present board of governors has decided to have the designations of all chairmen and Federal Reserve agents expire on March 1, 1936, and has also decided for the same reasons not to fill existing vacancies."

"Make Own Choices."

"The new board will thus be enabled to be represented at the different Federal Reserve banks by chairmen and Federal Reserve agents of its own selection, chosen in accordance with its views as to how the chairmanship may best be made to fit into the changed organizations of the Federal Reserve system."

There are "existing vacancies," of chairmen at the Federal Reserve banks of Cleveland, Atlanta, Kansas City and San Francisco. The following chairmen (who also are known as Federal Reserve agents) were reappointed for a two-month period: Boston, F. H. Curtiss; New York, J. H. Case; Philadelphia, R. L. Austin; Richmond, W. W. Hoxton; Chicago, E. M. Stevens; St. Louis, J. S. Wood; Minneapolis, J. N. Peyton, and Dallas, C. C. Walsh.

These deputy chairmen were named for two-month terms: Boston, Allen Hollis; Cleveland, E. S. Burke, jr.; Richmond, F. A. Delano; Atlanta, W. H. Kettig; St. Louis, Paul Dillard; Minneapolis, H. P. Clark; Kansas City, E. P. Brown; Dallas, S. B. Perkins, and San Francisco, W. N. Moore. There are vacancies at Philadelphia, New York and Chicago.

E. S. Burke, jr., of Cleveland, and J. R. Stanley, of Evansville, Ind., whose terms expire December 31, were reappointed as class C directors of the Cleveland and St. Louis banks, respectively.

Young, who has served nine years as class C director and who previously had served four years as class B director; James Simpson, of Chicago, who has served 18 years, and E. R. Brown, of Dallas, who has served six years, were not reappointed.

These directors of branches of Federal Reserve banks were reappointed: Louisville, J. B. Hill; Helena, J. E. O'Connell; Omaha, R. E. Campbell; Portland, Oreg., H. M. Haller, and Spokane, S. A. Easton.

Miami Air Maneuvers Solve Attack Problems

Miami, Fla., Dec. 4 (AP).—Crack pursuit pilots of the Army's general headquarters force dived into the midst of a squadron of attack planes northeast of Miami today, to prevent the destruction of an imaginary airdrome on Sand Key.

Leaving the victory to be decided later, they sped northward to intercept bombardment planes returning from "demolishing" a theoretical supply base at Fitzgerald, Ga.

These two objectives furnished the problems of the air force's second day of maneuvers, designed primarily to test the fleet's ability to communicate by radio the position of "enemy" planes, and mobilize in defense.

Roosevelt Seeks Cheap Loans For Relief of Tenant Farmers

President Favors Bankhead Bill to Set Up Fund and Lower Interest Rates, Georgia Growers, Reveal After Talk.

By the Associated Press.

Warm Springs, Ga., Dec. 4.—President Roosevelt was represented today as favoring further agricultural aid in the form of lower interest rates on mortgages and in land purchases by tenant farmers.

A group of fellow Meriwether County farmers who called at the "Little White House" on Pine Mountain said the President expressed himself during a discussion of farm problems which lasted almost an hour.

The farmers, described as "substantial landowners," were invited to the Presidential cottage at the instance of the Rev. W. G. Harry, mayor of Warm Springs.

Mr. Roosevelt frequently has expressed the opinion that interest rates of private companies are too high and he was said today by Judge Render Terrell, of Greenville, one of the delegation, to have favored a maximum rate on farm loans as low as 3½ per cent.

Federal land banks had reduced rates from 6 to 5 per cent and further relief is sought through the Frazier-Lemke mortgage act which is under fire again in the courts.

Judge Terrell said he believed the President intended to seek early remedial legislation to plug any loop holes found in the Frazier-Lemke bill by the Supreme Court which declared the first act of this kind for mortgage moratoria unconstitutional.

"Mr. Roosevelt told us," he continued, "that he hopes to see passed the Bankhead farm tenant bill, which provides for loans to tenant farmers to buy lands from the big landowners so they may become independent and also so the big farmers may liquidate enough of their lands to save them."

The President, who owns a farm near here, is preparing a thorough exposition of his agricultural policies to be delivered in an address next Monday before the annual convention of the American Farm Bureau Federation at Chicago.

After today's chat, Mr. Roosevelt again took the wheel of his open car and motored down the hillside to the swimming pool for the regular daily plunge of an hour.

By noon the bright sun had warmed out so much of the chill of the December air and the afternoon was comparatively warm, permitting another drive about the community.

He expects to leave Sunday morning by special train for the North, with Chicago the destination early Monday morning. From there he goes to Notre Dame University at South Bend, Ind., Monday afternoon to receive an honorary degree, thence to Washington where he arrives Tuesday morning.

Wallace Holds Farm Control Is Permanent

8 Alternatives Listed in Case Supreme Court Ends AAA.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Dec. 4.—Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace today envisaged the AAA as a permanent institution, regardless of the stand the Supreme Court takes on the constitutionality of its present structure.

The Secretary disclosed he was prepared to carry out President Roosevelt's mandate that the Agricultural Adjustment Administration continue to control the Nation's farming industry, and declared acceptable substitutes were ready and would be pushed into the breach should the high tribunal knock the whole AAA, or any part of it, out of the New Deal structure.

He specifically enumerated eight available alternatives for the processing tax, topped by a general sales tax and higher income taxes.

Speaks With Enthusiasm.

Wallace spoke of the AAA with enthusiasm. "It has worked better than I anticipated," he said. "The farmers' co-operation has been wholehearted.

"I venture to say that no matter what party is in power, something of the sort will continue."

He made his assertions in the big amphitheater housing the Thirty-sixth Annual International Livestock Show. Brawny farmers from most of the States of the Nation ambled by as Wallace revealed his plans to interviewers.

The processing levy has been attacked in scores of suits by packers, millers and other processors. The Supreme Court is expected to decide the issue at its current term. The levy is the core of the Administration's farm program. Through the tax the AAA raises funds for paying benefits to farmers to enable the Government to regulate crop production.

Substitutes Mentioned.

These are the substitutes Wallace mentioned:

1. Raise the money for acreage control by a general sales tax.
2. Raise it by higher income taxes.
3. Control production by compulsion, giving each farmer a quota and taxing each farmer if he markets more than that quota.
4. Use a combination of stabilization purchases and loans to farmers on commodities in years of large crops and low prices.

Given an initial capital of a $1,000,000,000, perhaps more, a Government agency might offer loans above the market price, much as has been done with the 1933 corn crop, provided that borrowers agree to reduce acreage by some specified amount the following year, and that enough farmers accept loans to make the plan effective on supply.

Wallace Radio Talks Top All Officialdom

By the Associated Press.

Secretary Wallace led the Capital's officialdom in the number of radio speeches over the National Broadcasting System in the first ten months of this year.

The Secretary made 16 addresses to President Roosevelt's 15, the system reported.

Wallace is trailing, however, in the number made since March 4, 1933. Since taking office, Mr. Roosevelt has spoken over N. B. C. 56 times, Wallace only 48.

So far this year each member of the Cabinet has spoken at least once, as have 146 members of Congress. But Vice President Garner has talked into a microphone only once—the day he was inaugurated.

Long's Aid, 4 Others Face Tax Charges

By the Associated Press.

New Orleans, Dec. 4.—Four men, one a close political associate of the late Huey P. Long, and two officials of a quarry company that did a huge business with the Louisiana highway department, were indicted today by a Federal grand jury for alleged conspiracy to defeat income tax payments.

Indicted were Seymour Weiss, president of the New Orleans Dock Board, already named in two previous income tax indictments; R. S. Wilson, Little Rock, former president, and Chauncey D. Nichols, Oklahoma City, former vice president of the Louisiana Quarry Co., and H. F. Schiff, Oklahoma City public accountant.

The four are charged with conspiring to avoid income tax payments assertedly owed by the quarry company and the late Sam M. Beasley, purchasing agent for the State highway department, and his wife.

Weiss' bond was fixed at $1,000. Bonds of $10,000 were prescribed for each of the others. Weiss is also under $20,000 bond on other Federal indictments.

Financial Files Fail to Identify 'Great Bankers'

By the Associated Press.

New York, Dec. 4.—President Roosevelt's tip as to the identity of bankers who advised him that the national debt might be boosted as high as $55,000,000,000 to $70,000,000,000, failed to enlighten Wall Street today.

The President, at Warm Springs yesterday, suggested a look at financial journals of the period of the banking crisis of 1933. Wall Street files were duly combed, but searchers were luckless.

Winthrop W. Aldrich, chairman of the Chase National Bank, was found to have been in Washington at that time, but he said today:

"Neither I nor anyone connected with the Chase National Bank ever advised Mr. Roosevelt that the public debt might safely be enlarged. Rather, we have always maintained that the national budget must be balanced."

Dr. Jules I. Bogen, editor of the Journal of Commerce, found a front-page article of February 25, 1933, recounting an exchange between Charles E. Mitchell, then head of the National City Bank, and Senator Couzens, of Michigan, which he thought might be significant. But Mitchell said today, "as far as I can remember, I never gave any such advice as that Mr. Roosevelt cited."

The article recounted that Senator Couzens asked Mitchell if the national debt might be increased by as much as $35,000,000,000 or $40,000,000,000. Mitchell was quoted as replying he could not fix a figure, but the size of the debt would be dependent upon balancing income and outgo.

Files of the Wall Street Journal failed to reveal the bankers who, President Roosevelt said in his address at Atlanta last Friday, advised the Administration back in the critical days of 1933 that the country might support a debt of $55,000,000,000 to $70,000,000,000, in contrast with the present debt of less than half the latter figure.

Some Wall Street leaders expressed the opinion that the advisers referred to might have been Middle Western bankers. They insisted they could not think of any Wall Streeters who might have held such an opinion.

Germany Forbids Marks' Importation

Decree to Increase Flow of Foreign Currencies.

By the Associated Press.

Berlin, Dec. 4.—The German government forbade the importation of Reichsbank notes in a renewed effort today to get more foreign exchange with which to buy raw materials.

The long-standing export ban on the notes proved inadequate to prevent large scale smuggling, an official announcement said.

Foreign purchasers of German goods have been paying with these smuggled notes, bought at a discount, instead of with foreign exchange, which the country needs.

The Jewish Telegraph Agency, in a Berlin dispatch, said new exchange regulations will permit German Jews willing to emigrate to Italy to take with them as much as 30,000 marks in cash, provided they agree to accept the sum in a Reichsbank check exchangeable for Italian lire.

The agency said this exception to the stringent laws prohibiting withdrawal of capital from the country was the result of Germany's inability to realize on its large lira credits in Italian banks, the value of which is decreasing.

Man Pays 53d Fine; 'Rent' for Parking Place

Denver, Dec. 4 (AP).—L. B. Davis paid his customary "rent" today for the privilege of overparking. He mailed a $1 check, the fifty-third this year, after receiving a ticket yesterday.

So far he has never appeared in court to pay, but remits promptly upon receipt of a police ticket.

Traffic court officials, who call Davis the "best cash customer," once theorized that he overparks because his fines cost him no more than parking lot privileges.

Pat O'Brien, Popular Film Star, to Appear in Person at Earle, Week of Dec. 13

Also Has Lead In the Week's Screen Feature

Only Appearance in East; Premiere Not Private; Amusement Notes.

By Nelson B. Bell.

Pat O'Brien, popular Warner Brothers screen player, will appear on the stage, in person, as headliner of the vaudeville portion of the bill at the Earle Theater for the week beginning a week from tomorrow, Friday, December 13.

This will be the only personal stage appearance made this season by the versatile Irish actor who has been vacationing in the East. He is one of the "surprise personalities" referred to in the Warner executives' recent announcement of the Earle's "Pre-Holiday Show Parade."

Not only will Pat O'Brien top the stage portion of the entertainment on Thirteenth street week after next, but his amiable activities also, to a large extent, will dominate the screen, on which the major feature will be "Stars Over Broadway."

James Melton, the handsome tenor so well known to Washington audiences; Jane Froman, popular canary of the airwaves, and Jean Muir are prominently cast in Mr. O'Brien's support in this latest flicker, completed shortly before his departure from the West Coast for his present outing on the opposite seaboard.

Filmed With Cagney Again.

The last picture completed before his vacation was "Ceiling Zero," the screen version of the stage play by Commander Weid which had its premiere in the National Theater a season or two ago with Osgood Perkins in the principal role. James Cagney once again will be teamed with O'Brien in this subject. They already have shared honors in "Devil Dogs of the Air," "The Irish in Us" and "Here Comes the Navy."

One of the most distinguished performances Pat O'Brien has brought to the screen, and the one that proved him an actor of serious capabilities as well as a comedian of the first flight, was his impersonation of the idealistic and doggedly faithful hero of "Oils for the Lamps of China," in which the leading feminine role was played by Josephine Hutchinson, to be seen tomorrow at RKO-Keith's in "The Melody Lingers On."

Mr. O'Brien, announces Zone Manager John J. Payette of the Warner forces in Washington, is only one of several similar surprises to be exploded in the faces of an unexpectant public between now and the first of the year.

Fair enough. Only now the public will be expectant.

So comes another western-union from Divisional Manager Carter Barron of Loew's, Inc., explaining that everything in his earlier wire concerning the gentlemanly columnar bloodletting at the Carlton, in compliment to The Post's "Broadway" specialist, Mr. Ed Sullivan, still stands except the day—which is today instead of the much busier tomorrow. So we won't have to borrow your thermos bottle after all. We may be able to get theirs to absorb our own inspiration!

"By Any Other Name."

Speaking of telegraphic windfalls, it is Mr. Billy Rose who takes his Mackay Radio in his lap to dash off the following generous item to this desk: "Would like to have you review 'Jumbo' at your earliest convenience. Will pay your transportation and Pullman expenses. Please advise by press agent, Richard Maney, well in advance of date you wish to see performance, that desirable seats may be reserved for you. Submit expense items immediately on return and payment will be received immediately. BILLY ROSE."

Billy Rose, as of course you know, is the adventurous young man who took a troupe on the road during the depths of the depression and "mopped up," in the argot of the profession, thus demonstrating that there still was a road there for those who had the nerve to go look for it.

Is Mammoth Hit.

Now, after many postponements, his musical comedy-circus-colossus (which is so big that when an irate gentleman asks Jimmie Durante where he got the elephant, Jimmie naively inquires, "What elephant?"—which somehow recalls the fellow who lost a bass drum in a telephone booth) is packing them in at the Hippodrome, in New York.

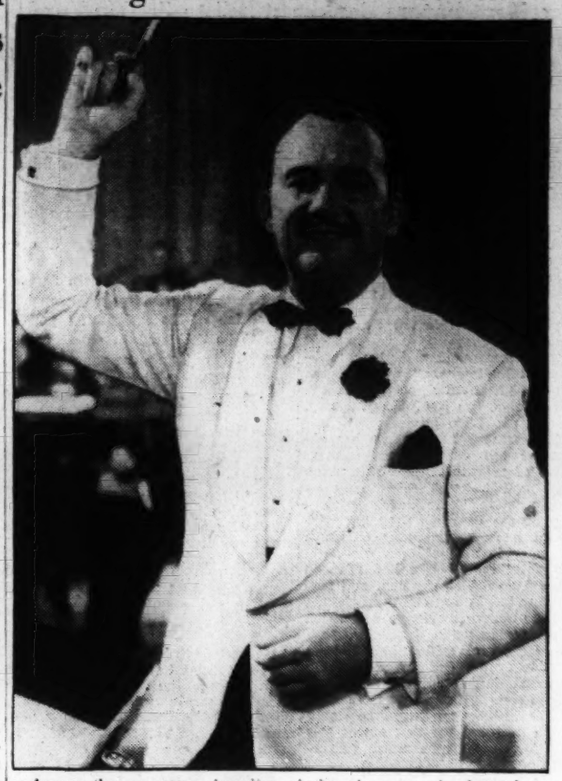
Mr. Rose was privileged to invest a considerable fragment of the Jock Whitney bankroll in his present enterprise which, much to everybody's surprise but his and Mr. Whitney's, has been largely paid off in the first three weeks of the engagement.

But, getting back ot Mr. Rose's invitation, we might be able to make it in a week or so, at that, if the family moth has left anything of our overcoat and spats!

After having garnered bales of publicity on it under the working title of "Shoot the Chutes," Samuel Goldwyn now makes known that the title of Eddie Cantor's sixth screen production under his aegis will be officially called "Strike Me Pink." Under the direction of Norman Taurog, "Strike Me Pink" is rapidly nearing completion on the West Coast. Ethel Merman, who originally had the Benay Venuta role in "Anything Goes," now at the National, and Sally Eilers have the leading feminine roles, with Parkyarkarkus cast as Cantor's chief comedy support.

That title of "Strike Me Pink" should interest Gracie Barrie, coming to the National next

Brings His Orchestra to Screen



Among the numerous favorites of the airwaves who have been proselyted to the cinema to participate in the diverting action of "Thanks a Million," opening tomorrow at Loew's Palace Theater, is Paul Whiteman, so-called "father of modern American music." Maestro Whiteman, pictured above, brings his entire orchestra to the enlivenment of the film, along with Ramona, one of the contemporary theater's most engaging specialists. Fred Allen, Rubinoff, Dick Powell and the Yacht Club Boys are other radio stars in the cast.

Monday night in George White's twelfth edition of the "Scandals," it was the name of her hit song in the revue which after the Washington premiere engagement, and another try-out week in Pittsburgh, adopted it as its own production name for the New York run.

Mr. Goldwyn didn't think it up. He bought it, no doubt, in the thought that it would wyn gold.

Not a Private Party.

When "Crime and Punishment" has its Washington premiere in the Warner Brothers Metropolitan Theater tonight at 8:30, it will be viewed by a distinguished and highly critical audience.

Among the guests who have been invited to witness the first public projection of this picturized story of conflict among an "intellectual criminal," the forces of law and order, a girl of the streets and the murderer's conscience, are J. Edgar Hoover, the country's No. 1 G-man; Maj. Ernest W. Brown, Superintendent of Police; Police Inspectors L. I. H. Edwards, Edward Kelly, Frank Burke and Edward Lamb; Lieut. Joseph Itzel, in charge of a local murder investigation; District Attorney Leslie Garnett and District Commissioners Melvin Hazen, George Allen and Lieut Col. Dan I. Sultan.

Tonight's special, single, premiere unspooling of the film, beginning at 8:30, is not a strictly private, invitational affair, as some seem to think and resent, but is open to the general public, with the regular house tickets on sale at the regular house scale of prices.

"The Rainmakers," starring Wheeler and Woolsey, will be shown for the last time beginning at 3:45 p. m. today. The box-office will close at 4, to reopen at 7:30 this evening for the sale of "Crime and Punishment" admissions up to the complete capacity of the Metropolitan. So that settles that. I hope.

Personal aside to Mr. Frank Lord Burnet, 1449 Fairmont street, who likes to write letters: "Quite a picture" is right.

Mr. Newman's Final.

On next Sunday afternoon in the National Theater, up the gangplank we go vicariously with E. M. Newman in the third and last of his season's Traveltalks to "The South Seas and Cannibal Islands."

This excursion heads directly for the Cocos Island, so far off the beaten track that few travelers ever reach it. For many years Cocos Island was the haunt of pirates and buccaneers. Thence to the Galapagos Group, then on to the Marquesas.

In these motion pictures, and for the first time, Newman is able to show court life in the home of the Cannibal King, surrounded by his numerous wives, a court jester and advisers.

Identification-Card Note.

This is understood to be the Cannibal King who eschewed the devouring of white men, because he once ate an American millionaire and found him too rich for his blood!

And that, little kiddies, is how our Traveltalker was able to take his pictures and come away feeling like a New man.

Miriam Hopkins and Joel McCrea, recently seen with Edward G. Robinson in "Barbary Coast," are the pictured principals in "Splendor," the United Artists' picturization of a screen play by Rachel Crothers, noted playwright, opening as chief film feature of the bill at Loew's Fox Theater tomorrow. Others in the cast include Paul Cavanagh, Helen Westley, Billie Burke, Ruth Weston, Katherine Alexander, Arthur Treacher and Ivan Simpson. Kay Francis is said to have one of the most congenial roles of her screen career in "I Found Stella Parish," First National's picturization of the story by John Monk Saunders, in which she is supported by Ian Hunter and Sybil Jason and a numerous company of others. The story is that of a beautiful and talented actress who abandons her career for the sake of her small daughter. On the stage the bill will be headlined by Ted Weems and His Orchestra, already well and favorably known to the Capital. Among those featured in the vaudeville are Helen Jane Behlke, Country Washburn, "Red" Ingle, the Weems Glee Club and, as an extra added attraction, Lela Moore, whose "Dance of the Lovers" was a late feature of "Life Begins at 8:40."

When "Thanks a Million" skyrockets across the screen at Loew's Palace Theater tomorrow, amusement seekers will find an entertainment bonanza unfolded before them. Recruited from stage, screen and radio is a cast that embraces such favorites as Dick Powell, Ann Dvorak, Patsy Kelley, Fred Allen, Paul Whiteman and His Orchestra, Rubinoff and his violin, Ramona and the Yacht Club Boys, in addition to a long roster of lesser film players. News events, comedy and house features will complete the bill.

Beginning tomorrow, on the screen at RKO-Keith's Theater, the major attraction will be the United Artists production of "The Melody Lingers On," in which the pivotal roles are played by Josephine Hutchinson, George Houston, Helen Westley and John Halliday, supported by a considerable cast of familiar names. The film visualizes a tender love story with the Great War as a distant background. The program also will include the third group of filmed amateurs presented by Maj. Bowes, who himself appears in the picture. Added short reels and Pathe news will round out the entertainment.

• • • •

"The Merry Widow," as filmed under the direction of Ernst Lubitsch, with Maurice Chevalier and Jeanette MacDonald starred, will take possession of the screen at the Little Theater today. The production is a gorgeous one, preserving all of the beauty of the Franz Lehar score—with Edward Everett Horton and Una Merkel leading the supporting cast.

• • • •

"Mutiny on the Bounty," the superb Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picturization of the book by James Norman Hall and Charles Nordhoff, with Clark Gable, Charles Laughton and Franchot Tone in the principal roles, will resume its F street popularity at the Columbia Theater as chief screen feature beginning tomorrow. Short subjects will be added.

Hollywood

By Sidney Skolsky

An Outline of H. G. Wells.

Hollywood, Dec. 4.

IT ISN'T the custom of this column to attend the average Hollywood cocktail party, because you meet a lot of uninteresting people. However, on Sunday, Charlie Chaplin gave a cocktail party at the Verdome for H. G. Wells, and I was glad to get an invitation.

GENE TUNNEY.

This was really a "double feature cocktail party," for Chaplin is a genial host, and I did want to meet H. G. Wells. What attracted me to Wells was not his literary fame. It was his entrance to Hollywood. Wells stepped off the train and posed for the photographers carrying an umbrella. I don't know if the California Chamber of Commerce liked this, but I did.

Upon entering the Vendome every guest was greeted by Chaplin. He stood there dignified, in gray, one arm in a sling, and extended the good hand to every one.

• • • •

It would make an amusing article to write that the guests mingled among themselves and never met Wells or forgot all about him, and made this party a continuation of their other parties. But this was not so. Wells was everywhere and met everyone. He seemed delighted to meet celebrities. He posed eagerly for the photographers with any actor or actress they shuttled him to, and the only demand he made was to know the names of the people after the photographs had been taken.

Wells enjoyed becoming acquainted with great people. In fact, I expected him to pull out an autograph book and ask for signatures.

OF COURSE, a gathering for H. G. Wells should be a literary gathering and this was one. Among the authors were Gene Tunney, Bill Tilden, Frank Moran and Victor McLaglen, who wrote a book about himself.

Mr. Wells was willing to discuss anything, even literature, with anyone. Tunney and Wells had a four-round bout with the classics. The classics got the decision. A scenario writer, entirely out of place but nevertheless there, was for asking Gene Tunney if Shakespeare wrote Shakespeare. His actress girl friend stopped him by saying: "If you've got to pick on some one pick on a flyweight. Don't start with the only undefeated heavyweight champ."

Wells was in fine form. After going four rounds with Tunney, he took on Bill Tilden for a couple of sets. They went through a set of Charles Dickens nad Eugene O'Neill. They finished "Love All."

• • • •

But Wells was also at ease with people who had never written a book. He appeared vastly interested in the motion picture business, and would ask a question about it whenever possible.

Wells admitted that he was having a good time, for he was meeting motion picture stars. He met Rouben Mamoulian and Lili Damita and Fredric March and—name your own favorite.

It was an amusing chat he had with the Countess di Frasso. The countess, who is going to buy a book, is always good fun.

• • • •

WELLS is a stocky man, neatly dressed, who talks softly. The other evening, Chaplin tendered him a dinner at his house. Among the guests were Paulette Goddard, King Vidor, Betty Hill, John Barrymore, Dorothy Parks, Alan Campbell, Constance Collier and Alexander Woollcott.

After dinner they sat around. With this collection of wits you'd believe that the conversation was sparkling; but it seemed that every one was a little fearful of talking. Each person had too much respect for the other, and conversation lagged.

H. G. Wells sat on the couch, closed his eyes, and acted as if he were sleeping. He would stay this way until he found an opening for a remark and then said it. That's his procedure.

The talk wasn't exciting until one person made a certain remark. Immediately another guest asked cynically: "What was that you said?" The person answered proudly: "That was a quotation from Shakespeare's 'Hamlet.'" Whereupon, John Barrymore barked: "I played in 'Hamlet' and know all the lines and I don't remember that . . ."

• • • •

However, to return to the cocktail party, which rambled on somewhat like this column. Practically everyone on meeting Mr. Wells had a question to ask him, but the prize of all concerns a certain picture producer. This producer said: "Mr. Wells, you wrote 'The Outline of History,' and you know all about history. There's one thing about this war that's puzzling me. Can you explain why the Italians are fighting Utopia?"

Worthless Hands.

It is far from pleasant to pick up a hand containing not a face card, but it does not follow that the unlucky holder might just as well take a short nap. Aside from the fact that obvious listlessness on the part of one defender must make declarer's play easier, by locating missing honors in the other hand, a lowly nine or ten, properly handled, may become the deciding factor. Incidentally, if one plays for the love of the game (and surely there can be no other good reason) an enormous thrill should result from victory with a "worthless" hand. East, in the hand shown below, stayed wide awake despite his horrible "bust," and it was he, not his honor-laden partner, who was able to defeat a vulnerable game contract.

West, dealer.

NORTH

♥ K Q J

♣ A 7 6

WEST
♥ A 8 5 3
♦ A K Q 8
♣ K J 9

EAST

SOUTH
♠ K Q 10 7 6 2

♣ Q 8 5

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
1 diamond	Double	Pass	2 spades
Pass	3 spades	Pass	4 spades
			(final bid)

West led two top diamonds, the second of which South ruffed. Two rounds of spades drew the adverse trumps, and then the heart king forced West's ace. Now the diamond queen was led, and ruffed by South. Two rounds of hearts stripped North and South of hearts and diamonds.

At this point declarer mentally reviewed the bidding. He was fairly sure that West could not have held six or more diamonds, because he probably would have rebid, indicating a possible "save" to his partner, when not vulnerable. East, then, was fairly well located with at least four diamonds. If he had held the club king as well, would he not have attempted at least a mild shutout bid over North's takeout double? His failure to do so implied that the king was in the West hand and that a finesse to the club queen would be unsuccessful. On this basis only one play would succeed: Throwing the lead to West in order to make him lead from his king up to the queen, or another suit that would afford a ruff and a discard.

So a low club was led from dummy with this objective. As I said before, if East had been asleep the coup would have worked. But he wasn't. He promptly came up with the ten of clubs, and declarer's Machiavellian scheme was ruined. The loss of two club tricks could not be avoided.

Today's Question.

Question—You recently wrote an article in which you mentioned the following bidding:

North	South
1 club	1 heart
1 spade	Pass

Isn't North's spade bid forcing? How can South pass?

Answer—North's rebid of one spade is only semiforcing, and South may, with a very weak hand, pass. Only the first one-over-one response is absolutely forcing.

Dickstein Seeks To Revive Quiz On Propaganda

Asserts 'Spies' of Foreign Powers Spread Subversive Doctrine.

A resolution to revive the recent McCormack committee, which conducted a sweeping investigation into Nazi activities and "subversive" foreign propaganda in this country, will be offered when Congress returns, Representative Samuel Dickstein (Democrat), New York, said last night.

Dickstein, chairman of the House Immigration Committee, said a study this fall of alien activity in New York has convinced him that the life of the committee should be extended, with strengthened powers of subpena.

He charged "spies" from some foreign powers not only have entered this country, but have gone through naturalization routine to allay suspicion while they distributed propaganda on a wholesale scale.

In addition, he said he had evidence to support charges that jobless aliens are taking out first naturalization papers "by thousands," most of them with mental reservations, "merely for the purpose of employment, or to get on Federal relief rolls."

The New Yorker now has a bill pending in Congress to bolster the powers of Congressional investigating committees to enable them to subpena witnesses outside the District of Columbia.

Postlude

By Ray C. B. Brown

Concert by the Marine Band Orchestra (Capt. Taylor Branson, conductor; John Auer, violoncella soloist) in the Marine Barracks auditorium last night. Program: "Marche Heroique," "Danse Macabre," Concerto for violoncello, Op. 33; Bacchanale from "Samson et Dalila" (Saint-Saens), Symphony No. 5 in E flat major, "The Swan of Tuonela," "Finlandia" (Sibelius).

Charles Camille Saint-Saens and Johan Julius (known as Jean) Sibelius, unlike in everything save that their surnames begin with the same letter, were honored by Capt. Taylor Branson at last night's concert, the former because the centenary of his birth fell on October 3, and the latter because he will celebrate his seventieth birthday December 8. Clever and urbane, versatile and superficial, Saint-Saens was as adaptable as a chameleon to the fluctuations of popular taste. Profound and cryptic, original and austere, Sibelius has consistently pursued his own way without regard for popularity.

In his span of 86 years, Saint-Saens contacted both the romantic and the modern epoens of music. One is so accusiomed to think of him as almost a contemporary that it is curious to recall that Liszt produced his "Samson et Dalila" for the first time in Weimar in 1877. It was not until 1890 that the opera was performed in France, and not until a decade later that it was firmly established in the repertoire of the Paris Opera.

The selections which Capt. Branson made from the large output of Saint-Saens were all thrice familiar, with the possible exception of the "Marche Heroique," which is mostly heard these days in the transcription for organ. Certainly the "Danse Macabre" is showing many signs of orchestral wear, and the violoncello concerto comes readily to the hands of every player of that instrument.

The two-tone-poems of Sibelius are also easily recognizable by the average concert-goer. But the fifth symphony is another matter. To describe this tonal masterpiece, Cecil Gray adopted an astronomical metaphor, calling it "the Red Giant, a Betelgeuse of music, a huge work in which the substance is highly attenuated and rarefied." The comparison is accurate to a degree, and one has to hear this symphony many times, to become accustomed to breathing its rare atmosphere, before understanding it.

Unfortunately, the orchestra's performance of it was not clarifying. Some of its passages sounded as though they were being read at sight, and the playing was in general loose and tentative, save in strongly rhythmic moments. In the balance of the program, the orchestral texture was much more firmly knit and coherent. But, whatever the imperfections, one was grateful for the opportunity to hear the fifth symphony again.

No better preparation for the major works of Sibelius can be found than the reading of the Finnish epic, "Kalevala," in W. F. Kirby's translation. From this ancient heroic poem, Sibelius has drawn repeatedly from his musical inspiration. One does not have to read far before discovering the resemblance between Sibelius and Vainamoinen, "old and steadfast, he, the ever famous minstrel, he, the great primeval sorcerer."

FAT GIRLS GET THE GO-BY—SLIM GIRLS WIN MEN

Lose Fat The Easy Way—Without Starvation Diets, or Back-Breaking, Reducing and Rolling Exercises.

There's a reason why so many people find dieting slow and often times futile in reducing. The reason, doctors say, is often because a little gland is not working right.

All the blood in your body goes through this tiny gland sixteen times every day. If it doesn't pour into the blood stream about one and one-half drops of vital fluid every 24 hours, many people take on ugly fat. This fluid helps Nature to "burn up" excess food and fatty tissue in much the same way as a good "draft" acts in a furnace.

Now, physicians combat this condition by feeding this gland the substance it lacks and millions of pounds of excess fat has been wiped out this way.

Marmola Prescription Tablets are based on the same scientific method used by doctors. So why not lose fat the easy way—without starvation diets or back-breaking, bending and rolling exercises? Start the Marmola treatment today that millions have used successfully to get rid of excess fat. The formula is in every box so you know just what you are taking. Don't wait—get Marmola today from druggists. Advt.

Dancer, Acting as Own Lawyer, Admits Love Guilt, Loses Case

By the United Press.

New York, Dec. 4.—Lisa Parnova Shaw, brunette dancer, appeared in Supreme Court today as defendant, chief witness and her own lawyer in a divorce suit. She lost the case when she put herself on the witness stand and confessed to committing adultery.

In 40 minutes a jury decided Miss Shaw was guilty. The court will rule later on whether to award a divorce to Holis B. Shaw, who also is suing Ellsworth Ford, the alleged co-respondent, for $500,000 for alienation of affections.

Miss Shaw, young, lithe and black-haired, found time to powder her nose and rouge her cheeks despite the fact she was busy testifying, cross-examining witnesses, objecting on legal points and addressing judge and jury.

She looked very professional in a tweed coat, black hat and red dress, and she lived up to the best legal traditions by scribbling furiously on a scratch pad during testimony. Somebody sneaked a look over her shoulder and found out she was drawing pictures of ballet dancers.

The high point of the trial, of course, was when Lawyer Shaw called out in a loud voice, "Lisa Shaw," and then walked to the witness stand. Lawyer Shaw looked at Witness Shaw in a tiny mirror and decided the latter could use a bit of rouge on the right cheek. It was applied while the court waited.

Witness Shaw needed no prompting from her attorney.

"Mr. Ford and I fell in love," she said. "Mr. Ford told his wife he wanted to marry me. Then he came to my husband and asked him to give me a divorce. I was willing. I loved Mr. Ford."

The court interposed a question: "Is it true that you committed adultery?"

In one voice Witness Shaw and Lawyer Shaw replied:

"Yes, it's true."

The jury seemed to think that settled the question, but Witness Shaw went right on talking: "I went to Bermuda. Mr. Ford wanted to go to Bermuda, too, but he couldn't because his wife was there with a gun."

Early in the trial Lawyer Shaw quit drawing pictures of ballet dancers long enough to jump suddenly out of her chair and yell, "I object." The court explained to her there wasn't anything to object to at that point; that nothing was going on except routine court procedure.

Safety Margin In Passing Cars Will Be Studied

Specialists to Be Heard at Meeting of Highway Research Board.

Proposals for reducing hazards of motor vehicle traffic, both in highway construction and in regulation of driving, will occupy the attention of the highway research board at its fifteenth annual meeting today and tomorrow at the National Academy of Sciences.

Because of the growing problem of traffic accidents, the engineers and research men have broadened their agenda beyond the technical aspects of improved road construction.

Such topics as "The Distance and Time Required to Overtake and Pass Cars" will be discussed by men who have made a painstaking study of the subject.

Dr. Bruce D. Greenshields, research engineer of the Ohio State highway department, has found, for instance, that 10 to 11 seconds and from 1,000 to 1,600 feet for average traffic conditions are minimum requirements for safe passing.

7,500 Autos Studied.

This is a greater period than recommended by the Bureau of Standards in 1934, but speeds of motor vehicles have been stepped up somewhat since then. The Standards Bureau found that the time required to pass a car on a comparatively level road at 50 miles an hour is six seconds, with at least 900 feet of clear road ahead.

Dr. Greenshields admits many drivers can pass cars within less than the recommended safe distance, but they are taking chances. His recommendation is based on a study of 7,500 cars whose behavior was recorded by a photographic method.

The highway engineers will be told by Hawley S. Simpson, research engineer of the American Transit Association, New York, that safety zones, while becoming increasingly necessary as highways are broadened, constitute a hazard unless properly built and adequately lighted.

Eldridge to Report.

M. O. Eldridge, assistant director of traffic for the District, will make a report on a study made of the theory advanced by Edward J. Creel, of Washington, that persons of "low ear" characteristics are more frequently involved in serious traffic accidents than drivers whose ears are normal.

Creel contends the "low ear" characteristic indicates that the possessor belongs to a class of persons whom he labeled "venturist," and that persons of this type are often outstanding leaders but they have a tendency to take chances in traffic as elsewhere.

With streamlining the trend in motor vehicles, an engineering analysis of wind resistance by various types of cars will be made by L. E. Conrad and E. R. Dawley, who made an exhaustive study of the subject with accompanying experiments.

Yesterday's sessions were devoted to committee meetings. Today there will be morning, afternoon and evening sessions.

Man Loots Church Poor Boxes To Get Money for His Wedding

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Baltimore, Md., Dec. 4.—The title of world's meanest thief today was conferred by police on an alleged robber caught in the act of breaking into a church poor box. He said he intended to use the proceeds to finance his marriage.

The robbing of two poor boxes—one at the Fourteen Holy Martyrs Catholic Church and the other at St. Martin's Catholic Church—today caused Capt. John Carroll to assign plain-clothes policemen to the two churches.

Shortly after noon a policeman in the Fourteen Holy Martyrs Church saw a man approach the poor box and attempt to break into it with a screwdriver.

Taken to police station, the prisoner said his name was Paul Clemens, 34, of the first block North Carey street.

Questioning elicited the information that Clemens had robbed the two church boxes in order to finance his marriage, and had returned for another attempt, police said.

The officers said they also brought out that if not enough money was obtained for marriage from the poor boxes, the prisoner intended to turn to holdups.

Tonight Clemens—still single—was peering through bars. He will be given a hearing tomorrow in Southwestern Police Court.

Coast Guard Takes 4 Off Sinking Ship

Two Massachusetts Fishers Also Are Rescued.

By the United Press.

Norfolk, Va., Dec. 4.—Coast Guardsmen rescued four men late today from a sinking yacht that had been in distress since Thanksgiving Day.

The rescued: Capt. Henry L. Van Der Hofen, owner and skipper of the schooner-yacht Therese White, and three members of his crew. All are of New York.

The Coast Guard cutter Sebago went to the rescue and started towing the yacht into Norfolk.

Six miles off Cape Henry, the yacht floundered in heavy seas. While she was sinking, Coast Guardsmen rescued the crew in a lifeboat.

The yacht crew had been manning the pumps six days before the Sebago arrived.

Orleans, Mass., Dec. 4 (U.P.).—Braving gale-swept seas, two brothers rowed 1 mile in a dory tonight to rescue two fishermen seriously injured when their rudderless dragger was battered against a shoal.

Attracted by distress flares, John and Everett Bonnell, of Brewster, put to sea and brought Herbert Eddy and Earl Youngren ashore from their disabled vessel. The injured fishermen were brought to their homes for treatment.

Line Quits Association 'Filled With Mossbacks'

New York, Dec. 4 (A.P.).—The Black Diamond Steamship Corporation resigned today from the American Steamship Owners Association.

J. Caldwell Jenkins, vice president of the corporation, said the association had stirred up opposition to Federal subsidies by treating the proposed aid as a benefit for all American merchant marine lines.

"The American Steamship Owners Association is filled today with a lot of old mossbacks," he said.

Oklahoma Combed For Five Fugitives

By the Associated Press.

Hartshorne, Okla., Dec. 4.—Conflicting reports sent heavily armed National Guardsmen, Federal agents and posses racing to widely separated sections of Oklahoma tonight in search of five escaped Federal prisoners.

The main body of searchers remained concentrated in this area, once roamed by the late Belle Star, famous woman bandit, and her gang of bank and train robbers.

The missing quintet, including four members of the disintegrated Walter (Irish) O'Malley gang of kidnapers and bank robbers, fled the city-Federal jail at Muskogee yesterday. A sixth plotter was slain and an officer wounded critically in a gun battle at the jail.

Arthur Napp, a Collinsville druggist, who said he knew Dewey Gilmore, O'Malley gangster, was one of the five escaped prisoners, insisted three of the men stopped at his store today. Collinsville is about 250 miles north of here.

Napp said the three were Gilmore, Dan Heady and Russell Cooper. Others sought in the Muskogee break are Leonard Short and Don Garrett.

Chapman, Writer, Dies.

Disputes Mark P. U. C. Study Of Gas Rates

'Scale Still Too High,' Says Roberts; 'Too Low,' Utilities Hold.

A profound difference of opinion as to the effect of the proposed new gas rates and sliding scale agreement for future rates was expressed by various interests at the Public Utilities Commission's hearing yesterday.

The new setup offers "no prospect of future reductions," said Riley E. Elgen, chairman of the commission.

The proposed rates are "too high," said William A. Roberts, People's Counsel, who predicted increased revenue for the companies.

"The proposed rates are too low," said Stoddard M. Stevens, jr., chief counsel for the companies.

"More gas will be sold during the next year and that will mean more revenue," Roberts said. "The rates are very promotional."

Richmond B. Keech, vice chairman of the commission, asked Robert Owers, gas official:

"Will you project an estimate as to where we will find ourselves next year under this proposal?"

Mr. Steven objected, but finally agreed that such a projection would be prepared.

"I am quite in sympathy with Mr. Keech's search for a real reason why this sliding scale should be approved instead of following the usual method," said William McKay Clayton, representing the Federation of Citizens' Associations.

Thomas Leads Split Of N. Y. Socialists

By the United Press.

New York, Dec. 4.—A split in New York Socialist ranks came to a head tonight when a "left wing" faction led by Norman Thomas, twice the Socialist Party's candidate for President, withdrew from the city central committee and set up its own organization.

The split came on a vote for reconsideration of a reorganization plan adopted by the committee two weeks ago calling for expulsion from the party of "left wing" elements.

The militant members of the committee were defeated in their move for reconsideration by a vote of 48 to 46. The minority of 46 then walked out of the meeting hall and set up temporary headquarters in offices of the Socialist Call as the "official Socialist Party in New York."

Louis Waldman and Algernon Lee are leaders of the conservative faction in control of the city central committee.

Abolish Liquor In White House, War Cry of Drys

Anti-Saloon League Also Urges Roosevelt Admit 'Failure' of Repeal.

By the Associated Press.

St. Louis, Dec. 4.—Launching a "new crusade" for prohibition, the Anti-Saloon League of America tonight called upon President Roosevelt to abolish the use of intoxicants at all White House and public functions and, as leader of the repeal movement which promised the saloon would not return to condemn "publicly and emphatically the violation of this pledge."

The resolution was drafted by Bishop James Cannon, jr., Los Angeles, powerful dry chieftain of prohibition days, and adopted amid the fervent whoops of anti-liquor crusaders gathered here from 40 States.

Deploring the "tragic results of repeal, the enormous increase in the sale of intoxicants with the consequent results of increase of drunkenness, especially in women and youth, the shocking traffic fatalities and the prevalence of crimes of violence," the resolution continued:

"We call upon President Roosevelt, who led the fight of repeal and promised that the saloon would never return, to show his recognition of the distressing conditions which now exist even in Washington, the Capital of the country, by publicly and emphatically condemning the violation of this pledge made during the campaign and also by abolishing the use of intoxicants at all White House and public functions."

Plane to Take Supplies To Missing Ellsworth

New York, Dec. 4 (A.P.).—F. Trubee Davison, president of the American Museum of Natural History, tonight announced plans to rush emergency rations to Antarctica for Lincoln Ellsworth and Herbert Hollick-Kenyon, his pilot, according to the New York Times and the North American Newspaper Alliance.

The pair have not been heard from since their radio failed on the transantarctic flight. Davison said that a sister ship of Ellsworth's plane Polar Star, will drop supplies at pre-arranged depots outlined by Ellsworth. Russell W. Thaw, pilot, and William H. Klenke, engineer, will leave for Magallanes Friday or Saturday, Davison said.

Vera Bloom Gives Party Honoring Zoe Patterson

By Evelyn Peyton Gordon.

Parties continue to be showered upon Senorita Zoe Patterson, daughter of the Ambassador of Cuba, and Mr. Ernest Schlatter, Attache of the Swiss Legation, whose marriage will take place at the Cuban Embassy December 16.

Yesterday a cocktail party was given by Miss Vera Bloom, daughter of Representative and Mrs. Sol Bloom, in honor of the young couple. Many members of the younger set attended. The Blooms' home on Columbia road is furnished with many old Italian pieces, and among them are antique plaques, framing copies of the old masters, which Mrs. Bloom has made.

Tea and cocktails were served in the wide hall of the house, where rich, soft colors of draperies and upholstery were warmed by the light of a roaring fire. Bowls of pink roses were placed on small tables and the buffet.

Miss Patterson arrived early with Miss Rabino, who makes her home at the embassy. The former wore black satin with a pleated skirt and collar of black and silver lame, and a small black hat. Mr. Schlatter appeared soon after.

Present were Mlle. Marie Therese de Laboulaye, daughter of the Ambassador of France and Mme. de Laboulaye, in a brown velvet frock with a turban of turquoise blue feathers; Mlle. Simone and Mlle. Madeleine Gaucheron, sisters of the First Secretary of the French Embassy; the Attache of the Belgian Embassy and Mme. Walravens, the Counselor of the Greek Legation, Mr. Nicholas Lely; the Charge d'Affaires of the Czechoslovakian Legation, Dr. Josef Nemecek, and the Minister-Counselor of the Cuban Embassy and Senora de Baron, who will entertain at a cocktail party for the engaged couple next Wednesday.

Other guests were Mme. Sokolowska, wife of the Charge d'Affaires of Poland; Dr. Stanley K. Hornbeck, Chief of the Far Eastern Division of the State Department; Mr. William K. Ryan, Miss Laura Tuckerman, Miss Florence Harris, Miss Stellita Stapleton, Miss Mary Louise Johnson, Miss Janet Ball, Mlle. Sibilla Skidelsky, the Second Secretary of the Polish Embassy, Mr. Edward Kulikowski; the Attache of the Embassy, Mr. Edward Weintal; the Counselor of the Swiss Legation, Mr. Louis Micheli, and the Counselor of Emigration of the Italian Embassy and Signora Bonardelli.

Still others were the Attache of the Swedish Legation, Mr. Stig Unger; the Secretary of the Norwegian Legation, Mr. Francis Irgens; the Secretary of the Czechoslovakian Legation, Mr. Otokar Kabalac; the Secretary of the Netherlands Legation, Mr. H. M. van der Wyck; Miss Alice Garrett Wilkins, Miss Helen Walker, Miss Caroline Thompson, Col. R. M. Guggenheim, who has come to Washington to spend the winter, and who will be joined next Tuesday by Mrs. Guggenheim; the Financial Counselor of the Rumanian Legation, Mr. Georges Boncesco, and the Secretary of the Portuguese Legation, Mr. Joao Ramos.

Mr. Schlatter has leased the home of Mrs. Henry Harwood Rousseau in Alexandria, and will occupy it with his bride after January 1. Capital to See First Exhibit Of New York Museum's Art

By Dudley Harmon.

At last residents of Washington are to have an opportunity to view in their own city an exhibition of paintings and sculpture to be loaned in January by the Museum of Modern Art in New York.

Mrs. Roosevelt heads a committee which has arranged with the museum to bring here an exhibition which includes paintings by Gauguin, Matisse, Modigliani and Picasso, and sculpture by Kolbe, Despiau, Epstein and Lachaise.

Yesterday afternoon some 20 prominent women, several of them artists themselves, gathered in the apartment of Mrs. McCook Knox, chairman of the committee, to discuss around the tea table, plans for the exhibit, the pre-view of which is set for January 5. The paintings will be on view at Studio House, 1614 Twenty-first street, for three weeks. The new headquarters of the Junior League, at Twentieth street and Massachusetts avenue, will house the sculpture, which will be shown for two weeks. The sculpture is privately owned, although its loan has been arranged by the Museum of Modern Art. The paintings are from the museum's own collection.

If public response warrants further showings, the committee plans to hold additional exhibitions, that Washington may enjoy in the future, as New York City enjoys today, examples of the best modern art from this country and abroad.

Among those enthusiastically discussing plans for the interesting experiment at the tea yesterday were Mme. Peter, wife of the Minister of Switzerland; Mrs. Michael MacWhite, who recently returned from a painting expedition of her own in the Southwest; Mrs. Duncan Phillips, whose gallery on Twenty-first street contains some of the finest examples of modern art; Mrs. Anne Archbold, Mrs. Harlan Fiske Stone, Mrs. Deane Acheson, Mrs. J. Fred Essary, Miss Anne Carter Greene, Miss Caroline Thompson and Mrs. Vinton Chapin, who is carrying on an artistic campaign of her own in her search through auction rooms for just the right furniture for the drawing room of her new home on Foxhall road.

The members of the committee sponsoring the exhibition, many of whom attended yesterday's tea, are Mrs. Roosevelt, the Minister of Switzerland and Mme. Peter, the Minister of the Irish Free State and Mrs. MacWhite, Mrs. Dean Acheson, Mrs. Anne Archbold, Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss, Mrs. Vinton Chapin, Mr. Olin Dows, Mrs. J. Fred Essary, Mrs. David E. Finley, Miss Alice Graeme, Mrs. Cary T. Grayson, Miss Anne Carter Greene, Miss Grace Dunham Guest, Mrs. James Meredith Helm, Mr. and Mrs. Alanson B. Houghton, Mrs. Alan G. Yuletide Near, Hair Troubles Demand Action

By Ruth Anne Davis.

IF YOU WANT to look your best when the Yuletide season is in full swing, better start in now! Unfortunately there are no fairy godmothers now who can wave their wands and bring us beauty at a moment's notice. No sir-ree! We have to start ahead of time taking stock of ourselves and slowly but surely righting the wrongs.

If one of your wrongs is a head of hair that's drab and straw-like, then you'll want to know about a certain person who can help you. She makes no claim to magic, but she surely does the next thing to it. Time after time women have gone to her with hair troubles, and time after time they've blessed the day they did.

She gives certain shampoo treatments (and suits them to the individual, too) that really do things to stubborn hair. If yours is falling out with alarming rapidity, or if it's so oily you can't do a thing with it, or if it's so dry it's almost brittle, then don't tarry. Let her diagnose your trouble and tackle it immediately.

The preparations she uses are made by a certain New York doctor who specializes in the scientific care of the hair, scalp and skin. He taught her how to use them to achieve the best results, and that's what she does!

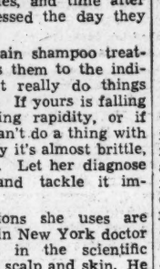
First of all she gives your hair a good brushing to remove the loose dirt, dust and dandruff. Then comes the scalp massage, gentle, firm, but so exhilarating. Next, she applies the doctor's own shampoo lotion, a soapless liquid with a clean fresh fragrance. Almost immediately you feel a mild tingling sensation that's both cooling and soothing.

The lotion is a natural solvent and goes right after the waste matter and cleans it up in no time. It has a regulating action on the oil-secreting glands and a direct effect upon the hair shafts, keeping them open and active.

You may have your treatment in the shop or buy the lotion and give yourself one at home.

Enticing Rain Hats.

PITTER PATTER on the pane is a musical sound when you're inside looking out. But pitter patter on, your new chapeau is never music.



In order to protect you and the best bonnet from the onslaught of winter rains a certain company offers some enticing models of rain hats. They're made of a translucent oil skin, with two or three inch brims which can be worn up or down, or both. They come in red, blue, dubonnet, brown, green and black.

The same store also shows some children's rain hats made of a soft rubber. The crowns are collapsible, the brims wired for tautness. Price, 25 cents.

Warm Undergarments.

THE DAY of the red flannels seems not so far removed. You'll be convinced when you see the giddy pantalettes making their debut in a downtown store.

They come in a fire engine red—or if you prefer—a canary yellow, king's blue, or mournful black. You slip them on over your flimsies and they'll keep you cozy and warm.

Just what could be "fitter" for sporting events? They're gay, amusing and guaranteed to protect you from chill wintry winds.

You may buy them in two lengths, to the knee, or below.

Pleasant HOMES

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin.

THE vogue for vitamins has put an end to the style for pale ladies and darkened sitting rooms. Now we strive by hook or crook to have sun in as many rooms as possible, and when that isn't possible we try to create the illusion of sun and light by judicious use of colors.

We were presented last week with the problem of a dark living room that wanted to seem lighter. The walls were creamy color and the rug was a grayish green . . . these two things had to stay, but the sofa and chairs could have new slip covers and the window curtains and lamps were going to be replaced. The question was—what colors for the new things? And should the ceiling be painted white?

We took our chin in our hand and meditated a bit. Then recommended flame color for the sofa slip cover and flowered material with a yellow ground for the two chairs. Then yellow curtains and the same flowered material for the draperies—but made so that they wouldn't cut out any light from the windows.

Send stamps for Miss Boykin's bulletin, "Color Schemes for Pleasant Rooms."

FAVORITE FOODS of famous folk

MRS. DANIEL C. ROPER.

By Pattie Ellicott.

ANGEL FOOD cake is Dessert No. 1 for Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper. And it is doubly desirable when it is made by Mrs. Roper herself from an old recipe that has been used in her household for years. Whenever the Secreatry and his friends foregather and tell about the special dishes they are happy to find on the table at dinner the Secretary is apt to say: "But, you should taste the angel food cake my wife can make!"

Mrs. Roper modestly refuses to wear the blue ribbon won by her prowess in the culinary art and nowadays, of course, since the Secretary has achieved cabinet rank and the duties of an official hostess press hard upon her she cannot always spare the time to indulge her cooking skill.

Angel Food Cake.

1½ cups fine granulated sugar
1 cup soft winter wheat flour
¾ cup of cold water
11 or 12 egg whites (1½ cupfulls)
1½ teaspoons vanilla
1 heaping teaspoon cream tartar
Pinch salt

Sift the flour, measure, then sift with cream tartar four times. Put sugar and water in saucepan, mix well, cook slowly at first, then faster (without stirring) until the first thread will spin from spoon. While syrup is cooking, beat egg whites very stiff, dry and ragged, pour hot syrup in a fine stream into whites, beating continuously while pouring. Beat with long strokes for 20 minutes, add vanilla while beating. Add flour gradually, folding over and over until smooth and well incorporated.

Drop batter with a large spoon in an ungreased angel-food pan, do not smooth off top. Start baking in a cold oven, increasing heat as baking progresses. If a coal range is used, begin baking in a slow oven, and increase heat. Time required, 1 to 1¼ hours.

When done, invert pan, cover with a dry cloth 20 minutes; remove cloth and let cake sweat out, do not remove from pan until perfectly cold. Loosen from sides with a spatula. Turn upside down on waxed paper, when cold, ice with thin boiled icing.

Today's Sample Dinner Is Based On Baked Beans

Brown Bread, Vegetable Salad and Fruit Dessert Complete Menu.

By Dorothea Duncan.

WHEN the sweet aroma of oven baked beans and Boston brown bread comes drifting from your kitchen you can be sure that no other call will be necessary to bring your family scurrying to the dinner table. These two favorite New England dishes supplemented by a crisp vegetable salad and a fresh fruit dessert make an ideal cold weather menu. Try baking your beans in the following manner.

Boston Baked Beans.

1 quart pea beans
¾ pound fat salt pork
1 tablespoon salt
3 tablespoons sugar
1 tablespoon to 1 cup molasses, according to taste
½ teaspoon mustard, if desired
Boiling water

Pick over beans, cover with cold water, and soak over night. Drain, cover with fresh water, heat slowly (keeping water below boiling point), and cook until skins will burst—which is best determined by taking a few beans on the tip of a spoon and blowing on them, when skins will burst if sufficiently cooked. Drain beans. Scald pork and scrape, remove one-quarter-inch slice, and put in bottom of bean pot. Cut through rind or remaining pork every half-inch, making cuts 1 inch deep. Put beans in pot and bury pork in beans, leaving rind exposed. Mix salt, molasses and sugar, and add one cup boiling water and pour over beans; then add enough more boiling water to cover beans. Cover the bean pot and bake 6 to 8 hours in a slow oven (250 degrees F.), uncovering the last hour of cooking, that rind may become brown and crisp. Add water as needed. If pork mixed with lean is preferred, use less salt.

Discusses Wives and Wayward Husbands

of radio and stage fame, is not married, but she has some definite ideas on roads that lead to the divorce court. She advises "plenty of laughter and loose rein on husbands."

Occasional Fling Will Cure Husbands of Stepping Out Is Benay Venuta's Advice to Possessive Wives

Keep Him Amused, She Says, Telling Results of Observations.

By Hope Ridings Miller.

"THE WAY TO HOLD a husband tightly is—to hold him loosely, and keep him amused."

Thus Benvenuta Crooke, better known as "Benay Venuta," radio star and personable comedienne of "Anything Goes," solved the problem of guarding husbands from those flights of fancy that upset firesides and pave the way to divorce courts.

It was breakfast time for the actress. Her ideas on men and marriage ("gained purely from observation") were divulged over a cup of coffee. "Of course I don't know any too much about either," she said, dimples dotting her cheeks at each corner of her mouth. "I haven't a husband, never have had; but I've been in show business (radio, movies, musical comedy) for ten years. And I've spent a good part of that time observing, and trying to figure out why so many marriages go on the rocks. So while my opinions aren't founded on experience, I've some pretty definite ideas. And as I see it . . ."

Forbidden Fruit Enticing.

As she sees it the trouble with wayward husbands lies largely with women, especially wives. Once a woman gets a man, she becomes possessive, reins him in as tightly as she can, keeps an eagle eye on everything he does and holds him accountable for every minute spent out of her sight. "And naturally, if he gets a chance to 'step out' and thinks he can 'put it over,' he's going to try," she said. "That's human nature. The old gag about forbidden fruit being terribly enticing still carries weight. So what's the answer? This is . . ."

If a man once feels he is free to go and come as he chooses, to have a night out or off, just like "one of the boys" any time the mood hits him, nine times out of ten "stepping out" will lose its attraction, according to Miss Venuta. She believes, in fact, that half the fun lies in playing hooky from the wife; that the other half is in being with someone who will make him laugh and feel "like a boy again," who will listen to him talk about himself and how his wife,"really the most wonderful little woman in the world, just doesn't understand him."

"And the funny part about that is that his wife really doesn't," she said. "If she did, she wouldn't worry lines into her face when he stays out late. She wouldn't sit home in a stew, waiting with a 'rolling pin attitude' for him to come home and 'explain.' She would consider his comings and goings strictly his own affair, rely on her sense of humor when he occasionally gets an attack of 'wandering eye' and devote more attention to her face and figure and outside interests."

Double Standard Here to Stay.

By "outside interests" Miss Venuta made it plain she didn't mean wives should retaliate by "stepping out" every time their husbands caused trouble. "That would only make matters worse," she said. "No matter how free and easy the modern code of living is supposed to be, the double standard still prevails, and probably always will. But every wife would do well to develop an absorbing interest in something besides her husband; let it be anything—clubs, art, music, charity or even a career.

"You hear a lot of talk about career-women being unsuccessful wives." Well maybe they aren't so hot as housekeepers, but from what I've observed, modern husbands are happier with working wives. A woman who has a career to occupy her mind doesn't smother her husband with attention, doesn't have time to worry every minute about what he's doing, who he's seeing, and whether he's 'being true.' "

Miss Venuta also pointed out that "women tend to lose their attractiveness as soon as they get a man in tow. Yet it's just as important for a woman to keep her hair set, her nails manicured, and her clothes neat after marriage as before. Most wives say keeping well groomed costs too much. It doesn't. What it chiefly costs is some time and a good deal of care. The result is well worth both."

The Magic of Laughter.

She also advises: "Making men laugh works wonders. Too many wives take themseives and their husbands too seriously. They forget to smile and grow grim and stiff-lipped long before they should. A few smiles could make them over, and make Friend Husband enjoy staying home."

But much as she had to say about the shortcomings of wives, Miss Venuta emphasized that she "likes 'em" and that "the average husband is no more infallible than his wife." Only there wasn't time to elaborate on what she had learned about men. There were rehearsals in the offing, Washington friends to be seen, business appointments to be filled. "I've been here three whole days and haven't yet found time to go by the Capitol and the White House," she said. "I've simply got to get around some, before I leave."

Dolls Galore Available for Christmas

Two-in-One Type Popular; Why Not a Gift of Puppets?

By Amos Parrish.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—The collection of dolls that St. Nick will unload from his giant bag this Christmas Eve will certainly cause bright-eyed youngsters to grow brighter eyed, and shriek with glee on Christmas day in the morning!

Baby dolls galore—cuddlesome and sweet—little girl and boy dolls by the carload—funny dolls—soldier dolls—black dolls and white dolls and dolls out of story books!

The British Grenadier doll sketched above stands stiff as a ramrod beneath his huge busby, and has quite a childish face in spite of his military trappings. After all, he's only a make-believe soldier. His dark blue trousers and scarlet coat make him look very handsome indeed.

Two-in-one dolls have a surprising way with them. Note the amusing "mammy" doll sketched. She looks for all the world like one doll—until her skirts are flipped over her head . . . when another doll emerges. This time a blonde with flaxen pigtails.

The very tiny miss will love a baby doll—with a pretty face and real hair—and small enough to carry about easily.

Youngsters who like a lot of responsibility will be enchanted with the quintuplet dolls. They're all there—Emelie, Cecile, Marie, Annette and Yvonne — as much alive — and as like their famous namesakes as five peas in a pod!

Sets of twins may suit the average size nursery better, however. And this year there's a goodly array to choose from—numerous sizes and types.

Why not a gift of puppets that the youngsters can work themselves? Many of these puppet dolls troop out of story books that the children know and love. There's Alice in Wonderland . . . The Duchess and the Mad Hatter . . . countless others to give small mortals a real thrill on the morning of December 25.

This BUSINESS of LIVING

Good Home Offered Woman as Nurse-Companion to Elderly Invalid.

By Mary Haworth.

DEAR MISS HAWORTH—After having exhausted other means I am turning to you to see if you can offer any solution to my problem. I am in search of a nurse-companion for my invalid mother. I want someone who would appreciate a good home rather than good pay, and in turn would render every service possible to add to the comfort and happiness of my mother; someone who would be content to live peacefully and congenially as a member of the family.

* * * *

I want to make it clear, though, that this job would be no easy one. Like other invalids, my mother is demanding and impatient. Her condition requires someone with her practically all of the time. The tasks are light but monotonous and confining. Our household, at present, consists of only my father, mother and myself. It is a pleasant home about an hour's drive from the city, located in a small town. We have a maid who does the cooking and housework. I work in my home town and am away from home during the usual office hours, and, of course, when I have worked hard all day I am in no mood to come home night after night and look after my mother, nor to sit up with her until the wee hours when she has her occasional attack of the "jitters."

* * * *

In order to save space in your column I am listing the outstanding requirements for the person I am looking for. One who does not fill each of these requirements would be unsatisfactory. She must be: Experienced in the care of sick people, particularly nervous cases. Unlimited in patience; gentle, pleasant, and interested in her charge. Capable of bathing, dressing, feeding and lifting her patient. Willing to accept a pleasant room, good food, and the small sum of $20 a month for her services. Willing to assume the additional tasks of keeping the patient's clothes in order, keeping her room neat and clean and to do occasional darning and mending, reading and letter writing for her patient.

* * * *

The above requirements make it obvious why I have not been able to find someone to suit me. Yet there should be someone somewhere who could fill those requirements, who has no family and would like a pleasant place to live. If you should contact anyone through your column and would refer them to me, I would appreciate it so much. Then I could call to see her at my first opportunity and talk it over with her. Thanking you sincerely for any help you might give me, I am

MANASSAS READER.

Margin of Security.

DEAR MANASSAS READER: While I have consistently attempted to dissuade readers from looking upon this column as an employment agency, and have repeatedly called attention to the fact that there are regularly established commercial and Federal bureaus for rendering such service to potential employers and employes, I feel it only common sense to make one more exception in your case. My reason for doing so is that your proposition as stated holds promise for a good home for some woman who, in these days of Nation-wide unemployment, may be seeking desperately for such margin of security.

* * * *

I shall be glad to give your name and address to any whose interest may be aroused through reading your letter. In the meantime, I suggest you solicit the help of the Kalorama Nurses' Association, 2400 Thirteenth street northwest, in locating a nurse-companion for your mother. Mrs. Clara Sherwood Waters is registrar of the association. Her telephone number is Columbia 6718. Mrs Waters is indefatigable in seeking and, in large measure, successful in finding the right person for places listed.

Miss Haworth will be glad to help you in solving your problems. Write her in care of The Post Woman's Page.

Citrus Fruits And Green Food Curb Disease

Child's Digestive Upset Is Often Due to Lack of Vitamin B.

By Dr. Irving S. Cutter.

SO much has been written about diet that is is no wonder readers have difficulty in separating the wheat from the chaff. In spite of, rather than by virtue of, the million of words that have appeared in both lay and scientific journals, we are forced to the conclusion that dietary deficiencies are real and of the greatest importance.

The history of scurvy, for example, is the tale of a prolonged struggle with a problem that now appears fairly simple. All we need to do is to make certain that each individual receives a relatively small amount of such foods as fresh fruits, especially citrus fruits (oranges, lemons, limes, grapefruits), and green vegetables. Any one of these foods will prevent the onset of the disease and relieve the symptoms once they have become manifest.

Vitamin B In Diet.

Sometimes the diets of prospective mothers are deficient in one or more necessary elements, and there are many instances in which newborn infants have succumbed because the blood of the mother was unable to supply adequate nourishment to the developing fetus.

Not infrequently digestive disturbances in children are found to be due to a deficiency of vitamin B: in fact, the average schoolchild must be watched for this particular vitamin fault, inasmuch as a diet of cereal from which the germ of the seed has been removed, starches, and meats is exceedingly poor in vitamin B values. Natural foods contain sufficient quantities of vitamin B; artificially refined foods may not.

Croghan Dies; Chief of Trade Press Bureau

Ickes Pays Tribute to Aid in Commerce Department Since 1920.

Work halted momentarily in newspaper offices and in press rooms of Government departments yesterday afternoon as word flashed over the news tickers and thence from lip to lip that "Pete" Croghan was dead. Since 1920, Paul James Croghan had been chief of the press information division of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce. He died at 11:20 a. m. yesterday at Sibley Hospital of a complication of diseases. He had been ill for several months.

At his press conference yesterday, Secretary of Commerce Roper paused to say of Croghan: "He was a lovable character whose personality endeared him to all with whom he came in contact, of exceptional ability and devotion to duty. No man served the public more frequently than he. He will be sorely missed in this department."

Mr. Croghan was born in Washington 47 years ago, entering Federal service in 1908 as clerk in the office of the Judge Advocate General. He was transferred to the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce in 1914, and served for many years as assistant chief of the correspondence division before his final promotion in 1920. Last year while a hospital patient, he was made a Kentucky colonel. He was also a member of the National Press Club. One sister, Mrs. Rhetta Walsmith, of Washington, survives him. He lived at 5101 Eighth street northwest.

The Press Club nominated the following committee to attend the Croghan funeral:

L. M. Lamm, chairman; Bascom N. Timmons, Lorenzo Martin, Harold F. Lane, Paul Wooton, Lee Poe Hart, Fred A. Emery, Parke F. Engle, Irvin D. Foos, Bertram F. Linz, Felix Thomas Cotten, William L. Bruckart, Louis E. Van Norman, Harry R. Daniel, Conrad Shamel, A. E. Heiss, Raymond Clapper, Russell Kent, Paul Mallon, J. C. Atchison and Harry B. Gauss.

Funeral service will be held at the S. H. Hines Co. parlors, 2901 Fourteenth street northwest, at 2 p. m. tomorrow. Burial will be in Glenwood Cemetery.

W. E. Gilbert Rites At Laurel Today

Former Mayor Was Retired Wholesale Druggist.

Funeral services for William E. Gilbert, who died Tuesday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. William Stanley, in Laurel, Md., will be held at his home at 2 p. m. today, followed by burial in Loudon Park Cemetery, Baltimore.

A resident of Laurel most of his life, Mr. Gilbert was 81. For a number of years he was mayor and active in politics there. He was engaged in the wholesale drug business in Baltimore until a few years ago.

Mr. Gilbert is survived by his wife, Mrs. Janet Lee Gilbert; two daughters, Mrs. Stanley and Mrs. William Raburg, of Tucson, Ariz., and two sons, Lee Gilbert, of Laurel, and Barney Gilbert, of Relay. He also leaves ten grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

Cabs Collect Toys.

Matching their service to The Washington Post Toy and Doll Fund last year, the officials of the Terminal Transportation Cab Co. offered the services of their cabs to collect toys and bring them to the headquarters of the toy and doll fund in The Washington Post Building.

Any person having new or used toys in good condition which they wish to send to The Post Fund need only call "Decatur 5130" and a taxicab will call for them and they will be taken to The Post Building without cost.

Early yesterday morning the director of The Washington Post Toy Fund received a telephone call from a friend of little children who, with her husband, "wants a little boy to care for over Christmas." She said she will take charge of the child over the holiday period, buy him toys and necessities and then return him with the memory of a glorious Christmas.

When asked whether she wanted the loan of a boy or girl for such Christmas purposes, she responded quickly:

"A little boy not over 5 years old."

Whatever the story behind the request, the woman kept it in her heart. Perhaps it was the story of a little boy who lived to be loved and died to be mourned. Or perhaps it was the story of a boyless mother.

Toys, Money Needed.

Toys may be purchased in Washington for $1 or less that would make happy many a Capital boy or girl, the managers of The Post Toy Fund pointed out yesterday.

All contributions of money made to The Post Toy Fund should be sent to the cashier of The Washington Post, and due acknowledgement will be made in the columns of The Post.

Persons shopping for their own children are urged to buy an additional toy or two and mark it to be delivered to The Washington Post Toy Fund, where it will be passed on to the egaer hands of some needy child on Christmas Eve. In Washington institutions the managements are awaiting the customary toys from The Post Toy Fund, which do so much to bring a merry Christmas to desolate children in homes where every penny of the budgets must be used to purchase food, clothing and necessities and where nothing can be spared for Christmas toys.

Street Car Fire Brings $25,000 Damage Suit

Caught in the rush of passengers seeking to escape from a burning street car in front of the White House, Oscar R. Hecht, 1740 Euclid street northwest, yesterday in the District Supreme Court filed suit against the Capital Transit Co. for $25,000.

Through Henry Quinn, attorney, Hecht said he was injured permanently when he was knocked down by panicky passengers, with the result that his leg and ankle never will be restored to normal use.

Sisters' Burial To Be Held Today

Last rites for Mrs. Lillie M. Baird, 62, wife of William J. Baird, and Mrs. Laura V. Wagoner will be held at the graves, with the Rev. H. C. Jope, pastor of the Ninth Street Christian Church, officiating.

Bunche Speech, Banned Once, Is Rescheduled

The discussion of "Academic Freedom," by Prof. Ralph Bunche, of Howard University, at the Capital City Forum, originally scheduled for November 22 and then halted by the police on the assertion that the building could not be used because it lacked a third floor fire escape, has been rescheduled, the forum managers announced last night.

Saying that the fire escape had been built and an occupancy permit obtained, the announcement added "we plan a test of civil rights in the District," and said Bunche would speak to the group tomorrow at 8:15 p. m. The meetings are held at 1502 Fourteenth street northwest.

Tax Body Studies District Revenues

Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen yesterday called on the special municipal tax committee to prepare and submit estimates on revenues which might be expected from new and increased taxes.

In the order appointing the committee the Commissioners directed it to consider revised and increased taxes on public utilities, automobile-weight tax, increased gasoline tax and inheritance and income taxes. In its partial report the committee made no reference to new or increased taxes, simply calling on the Commissioners to determine on the limits of a future expenditure program as the first step necessary.

Public hearings on the subject are to be called by the Commissioners soon after December 15, Commissioner Hazen said. The tax committee suggested a future annual capital outlay of $7,500,000 for the next ten years.

Educator Demands Teachers Have Right to Spank Pupils; Fourth Textbook Hit as Red

Dr. Johnson Will Seek Physical Punishment Permission.

One Woman May Lose Arm Bitten by Child; Second Hurt.

With two teachers undergoing medical treatment as a result of attacks upon them by school pupils and with one of them likely to lose her arm, Dr. J. Hayden Johnson, member of the Board of Education, gave notice yesterday that he would ask that teachers be permitted to punish their pupils physically if necessary.

At a meeting yesterday he said the board should consider the rescinding of its order now forbidding corporal punishment.

Dr. Johnson, who has been president of the District Medico-Chirurgical Society, and who is senior member of the board, spoke after such action had been urged by Dr. C. Herbert Marshall, another physician and president of the Rock Creek Citizens Association.

"I am highly in accord with Dr. Marshall's point of view," Dr. Johnson said. "It has been my intention to bring the matter up myself. We have been faced with an epidemic of just such happenings.

Plans Official Action.

Preferring not to cite names, Dr. Marshall reported that one woman teacher whose arm had been bitten by a pupil had only just been released from Freedmen's Hospital, still facing possible amputation. Another, he said, had been struck in the abdomen, the seriousness of the injury still undetermined.

It received 43 communications on the subject, including an attack on a new textbook, Stull and Hatch's "Our World Today," which its special textbook committee had not yet considered.

The board finally absolved the Wilson Teachers College curriculum of any blame for recent failures of graduates in the primary teachers' examinations. Dr. Ballou revealed that of the 11 out of 14 graduates who failed in June, eight took another examination in October, and seven out of those eight failed again.

Regarding his own investigation and report, approved by the board yesterday, he said:

"I don't find, as a result of this inquiry, that anything need be done either regarding the examinations or the college."

Three of Twelve Pass.

The October examination for kindergarten and primary teachers were passed by three persons, out of a total of 12 who took them. A new examination will be given probably in January.

Action yesterday included:

Approval of the Northeast section as the general location for a new dental clinic for the white schools.

Permission to Dr. Ballou to seek either a deficiency appropriation or funds from unexpended District balances to finance bus transportation for school children after May 15, 1936, when present appropriations run out.

Appointment of Dr. Paul O. Carr, specialist in colonial history and now head of Muskegon (Mich.) Junior College's history department, as professor of history and social studies at Wilson Teachers College.

General discussion elicited a hint from Dr. Ballou that a new administration building might be sought in planning the proposed five-year building program.

Expansion of vocational school facilities was urged by Edward J. Murphy, past president of the Board of Trade and now chairman of a special committee of the Vocational Educational Association. Murphy was seconded by Miss Louise McGuire, director of social work for the Juvenile Court; Miss Patricia Morss, of the child welfare division of the Board of Public Welfare; Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley, of the District Federation of Women's Clubs, and John Locher, president of the Central Labor Union.

DR. RAY LYMAN WILBUR, president of Stanford University and former Secretary of Interior, wired the Board of Education to defend Carl Becker, author of a book used in the District Schools, as an "outstanding historian."

'Our World Today' Held Aid in Fostering Class Hatred.

Dr. Wilbur Defends Becker, Author of Histories.

A fourth textbook faced anti-communistic fire yesterday as the special Board of Education textbook committee announced it had no report for the board, and the Federation of Citizens Associations announced it would examine not only textbooks, but also the periodicals and magazines used in District schools.

Simultaneously, Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of schools, told the board that every employe of the school system had signed a statement that he had neither taught nor advocated communism during November. This is in line with a requirement under the new District budget.

The latest textbook to be assailed was Stull and Hatch's "Our World Today," used as a supplementary geography in the junior high schools, according to the complainant, Joseph W. Cheney, a printer, of 2615 Myrtle avenue northeast. Members of the board's textbook committee had not heard of it before, they said, nor had George E. Sullivan, chairman of the federation's committee. Both investigating groups said they would look into it.

Others Under Fire.

Already under fire are two books by Harold Rugg and one by Carl Becker, as well as eight supplementary history readings.

Referring to pages 333 and 337 of "Our World Today," a book not immediately available at the Franklin Administration Building, Cheney wrote to the board that:

"I am led to believe that this book inculcates class hatred; that it works upon the trusting child's acute sympathies to lead them to believe that communism is a great liberator and not a despotic dictator; that it gives no impartial information of the communist mode of governmental operation by which a child could know the real state of affairs.

"To my mind it is an influence for evil rather than good."

Further telegrams and letters yesterday brought to 15 the number of universities represented by historians who suddenly rallied this week to the defense of Carl Becker. One defender yesterday was Ray Lyman Wilbur, Secretary of the Interior in the Hoover Administration, now president of Stanford University.

Evasion Assailed.

The Federation of Citizens Associations, through Sullivan, made another attack on Becker yesterday, and Sullivan, in a statement, said:

"The concerted effort by a group of educators to evade and scoff at the concrete and unanswerable showing made by the executive committee of the federation is important only as showing that the parents of those attending educational institutions to which such educators are attached owe it to their children and to this Nation as well to carefully scrutinize what is being taught to their children in such institutions regarding communism."

Sullivan attacked past works by Becker—"The United States, an Experiment in Democracy," "The Heavenly City of the Eighteenth Century Philosophers" and "The Declaration of Independence, a Study in the History of Political Ideas"—and said Becker's books were "plainly laudatory of Marx and Lenin and of the plan or scheme advocated by them."

"These texts are further noteworthy for their strange omission of any clear and informative disclosure of the evil and atrocious aims, purposes and effects of communism," Sullivan asserted.

To Inspect Complaints.

In a letter to the Board of Education yesterday he asked for a list of periodicals used in the public schools and for an opportunity to inspect written complaints about textbooks addressed to the board in the past. The board promised to grant both requests.

Rallying to Becker's defense yesterday were, besides Wilbur, Herbert E. Bolton, chairman of the history department, University of California; Waldo G. Leland, secretary of the American Council of Learned Societies, and David S. Muzzey, of Columbia University.

Wilbur wired:

"I consider him an outstanding historian and thinker. His statement on the Marxian philosophy of history in his book, "Every Man His Own Historian," is a fine exposition of a sane attitude. He does not advocate communism but as a historian recognizes the necessity of understanding what communism is and may mean in the world."

When Mrs. Helen Grattan Doyle, president of the Board of Education, called upon Robert A. Maurer, textbook committee chairman, for report yesterday, he said merely:

"No report, Mme. Chairman."

No board member commented on the communications announced yesterday, totaling 43.

Youth Projects Face Criticism, Says First Lady

But It's 'Understandable and Healthy,' View of Mrs. Roosevelt.

Mrs. Franklin Delano Roosevelt last night termed the program of the National Youth Administration as "new, experimental, temporary" and likely to bring much criticism because of the divergent opinions of the young people who "range from Communists to D. A. R.'s."

But that is both "understandable and healthy," she told a banquet of the Research Club, an organization of school teachers and other educators, here. It was good, she thought, to have young people of divergent views arguing with one another.

Mrs. Roosevelt revealed she had spent a whole day recently poring over reports of the NYA from the different States. The program is going very well, she said, concluding:

"If youth takes this thing and cooperates, saying 'we don't like this and that, but it gives us a chance perhaps to get something we do want,' and then goes to work to achieve a success of some kind, we will have done a tremendous thing."

Smuggling Aliens Into U. S. Assailed

Granddaughter of a President of the United States and former wife of a Tsarist Russian prince, Mme. Julia Cantacuzene-Grant last night assailed smuggling of aliens into this country, especially while Americans are out of work.

She also urged that any books portraying communism in a favorable light be eliminated from the public schools. The association took up a resolution instead to indorse the teaching of communism in the local schools but, after a favorable vote had been protested on the ground that certain members were financially ineligible, the subject was tabled.

Divorces Here Near a Record, 13 Are Granted

Thirteen divorces, all of them based on the liberalized provisions of the District's new divorce law, were granted by Justice Oscar R. Luhring in the District Supreme Court. The day's total is two shy of the record of 15 in one day, achieved several weeks ago. The fourteenth case was postponed because of the absence of a witness.

In all instances, the divorces were granted after two or three witnesses, in addition to the plaintiffs, testified in substantiation of charges made in the suits. Five were granted to husbands and eight were given wives whose husbands had either separated from them or had deserted them.

First case yesterday was one in which Mary L. Callenberger obtained a divorce from Kirk A. Callenberger; others were William K. Trunnell, who won a suit against Hazel Flynn Trunnell; Easter Kabrich, who was granted a divorce from John M. Kabrich; Bion B. Bierer, jr., who was divorced from Allie Mae Bierer; John E. Collins, divorced from Ethel V. Collins; Olga Catherine Nottingham, given a divorce from Ellis Thornton Nottingham.

Madeline Key Groome, divorced from William Albert Groome; May E. Norton, divorced from Cornelius J. Norton; Rumanda Oden, divorced from Robert A. Oden; John Eby, divorced from Helen Virginia Eby; Anna G. Windham, divorced from James A. Windham; Bennie Goldman, divorced from Fannie Goldman, and Sybil Gile, who obtained a divorce from Philip L. Gile.

In each case the defendant, represented by counsel, merely entered an appearance and did not contest the action. Some of the orders granting the divorces were signed yesterday.

Old Divorce Suits Voided by New Law

The voiding of several hundred suits for limited divorce brought under the District's former divorce statute was indicated yesterday with the dismissal of one of these suits in District Supreme Court by Chief Justice Alfred A. Wheat.

The suit dismissed was an action brought by Joseph W. Douglas against his wife, Edna Douglas, on grounds of desertion. It was filed in 1934 when the statute permitted a limited divorce for desertion and other causes.

With the present statute an absolute divorce may be obtained after desertion for two years. Raymond A. Neudecker, counsel for Mrs. Douglas, asked that the case be dismissed on the grounds that the present law repeals the old. Justice Wheat agreed.

Case Worker Protest Made On Relief Cut

Mass Meeting Is Told Many Will Be Near Starvation.

Allen Will Try to Obtain Additional Funds to Avert Suffering.

Employes of the District Relief Administration last night registered their first complaint about the handling of relief here.

Seventy-five case workers, mostly young college graduates, jammed into the tiny assembly hall of the Community Chest Building at 1101 M street northwest, in a mass meeting to protest the contemplated 25 per cent cut in direct relief and in the staff of the Public Assistance Division.

The meeting, presided over by Ross Pollock, president of the Federation of Social Workers, listened to a summary of grievances by slim, dark-haired Edna Kury, decided to send a telegram of protest to Harry Hopkins, Commissioner George E. Allen and Melvin C. Hazen, and to Elwood Street, and to draw up a petition to circularize other relief administration workers.

"Ultimate Cost More."

Miss Kury pointed out that Commissioner Allen's proposed cut of 25 per cent in direct relief would leave many families on the verge of starvation; that the elimination of rent payments would shift a large burden to the shoulders of the city's landlords, and that the decrease of case workers would bring great suffering to the relief clients and in the end cost the District more money.

Confronted with the prospect of having further to cut relief payments and administrative expenses, Commissioner Allen earlier yesterday announced he intended to seek appropriation of a substantially additional sum to supplement the remaining District relief funds.

How much additional money will be required he was not prepared to say, Commissioner Allen said, but added that further study might show as much as $1,000,000 might be needed.

10,500 Now on Relief.

Relief expenditures are to be cut 25 per cent this month. This cut will be applied horizontally — all along the line the payments to relief clients, both employables and unemployables, will be reduced.

Congress appropriated only $2,000,000 out of District revenues for relief for the current fiscal year. Federal funds have been cut off. Hope is held that $100,000 may be advanced for this month, when expenditures will total $278,000, it is estimated.

There are now 10,500 persons on relief here. Some 3,000 are to be transferred to WPA projects. If sufficient additional WPA projects, mostly for white-collar workers, are approved additional persons will be transferred from relief rolls. The lowest estimate of the residue which will remain on relief is 4,500 to 5,500 who have been classed as unemployables.

Portable School Destroyed by Fire

Flames from an overheated furnace destroyed a portable frame building at the Armstrong High School shortly before school sessions began yesterday. Thirty-five students were forced to move into the school's auditorium to study.

Robert E. Howard, a laborer, was working in an adjoining building when he discovered the blaze. He ran to sound the alarm but strong winds had whipped the flames over the roof and through the interior of the structure when firemen arrived.

There were no students about at the time of the fire.

Arts Club Will Be Told About Amazing Artist

Ridges to Lecture Tonight on Russian Painter and Rise From Depths.

Brryman Ridges, the blond and effervescent Danish-American who is responsible for one of the most amazing success stories of the generation, has come to Washington to tell the town's esthetes about a Russian refugee, who in five years has made himself the "Hans Christian Andersen of the paint brush."

Tonight, in an illustrated lecture at the Arts Club, he will describe the unique painting of Baron Ernst von Maydell, a White Russian, who survived war, revolution, tuberculosis and abject poverty to make the former Kaiser, Mrs. Henry Ford, Mary Garden and other luminaries conscious of such things as a fairy bathing in a Jack-in-the-pulpit.

The story, reminiscent of Horatio Alger, even if its hero was born into the nobility, begins in 1923. Ridges, connoisseur and inveterate globe trotter, was traveling through Europe. He stopped at Salzburg, Austria. Quite by chance he met a Russian refugee, who was painting cheap pottery to keep his wife and himself, both suffering from tuberculosis, alive.

Baron Ernst von Maydell, age 39, titled veteran of both the Czar's imperial army and the British air force, was decorating souvenirs to keep body and soul together. Ill, penniless, and deprived of his estate, he still found inspiration to draw the flowers and insects that abounded near his rude hut.

Ridges thought the drawings "had something." He backed up his conviction by sending the Baron and Baroness to a sanitarium for treatment. Encouraged, Maydell went to work in earnest. A worshiper of Hans Christian Anderson, he would give the story teller's characters life in water color.

About five years ago the artist's genius began to be recognized not only in Europe but also in the United States, Asia — practically everywhere art collectors exist. The former Kaiser, in exile at Doorn, bought his pictures. Through the efforts of Ridges, such celebrities as Rafael Sabatini, Mrs. Henry Ford, Argentina (the dancer), Robert Woods Bliss and scores of others became Maydell fans.

Doing most of his work in Italy and Austria, Maydell now produces about 20 aquarelles a year, says Ridges. At present 159 are on order. Small and dainty, they command up to $400 apiece. A few days ago, while Ridges was in Milwaukee, he received a cablegram requesting one Maydell immediately. Neither the price nor even the subject mattered.

Maydell has never visited the United States. If he came here, he would find that Robert Woods Bliss and Dr. William M. Mann, director of National Zoological Park, are two of his most enthusiastic collectors.

Dr. Mann's latest accession is a painting of three grasshoppers. He calls them the three musketeers.

Woman Dead In Car Crash; Toll Now 109

Mrs. Elizabeth Swartz Victim of Accident to Auto Son Drives.

Safety Conference Called by Secretary Roper for Dec. 18.

Death took its daily traffic victim yesterday.

It was the seventh consecutive day in which a person had perished in the city's streets.

The death list for the year rose to 109.

The new name added was Mrs. Elizabeth Swartz, 46, of Laurel, Md. She was killed in a collision at Eighteenth and Hamlin streets northeast.

With increasing deaths in all parts of the country, Secretary of Commerce Roper yesterday invited a score of national organizations to attend his safety conference December 18.

Car Driven by Son.

Mrs. Swartz was riding in a car driven by her son, Joseph G. Swartz, 26, of 917 East Capitol street.

The car was in collision with a machine driven by Benjamin H. Nolt, 20, of 2508 Eighteenth street northwest.

Mrs. Swartz was removed to Sibley Hospital by police. She was dead when she reached there. Her skull was fractured.

Police held both drivers for action of the coroner.

Walkers Beat Autos.

Pedestrians can easily outdistance motorists in the congested sections of Washington's streets, according to a survey presented yesterday at a meeting of the advisory board of the American Automobile Association.

This survey showed that during peak congestion hours traffic along F street between Tenth and Fourteenth streets moves at little more than 5 miles an hour—slower than a brisk walk.

The meeting will be held at the Friends Meeting House, 2111 Florida avenue, and will be the final annual conference of Friends in Virginia, Maryland and the District. Mrs. Mary Goodhus Carey, of Baltimore, will preside at the forum.

Selection of C. U. as Vanderbilt's Foe at Miami Expected Today

With Shirley Povich

OUT of the mail bag:

"Dear Mr. Povich: I understand that this was Tuffy Leemans' last year as a football player at George Washington. I am not sorry to hear it. In saying that I suppose I am being needlessly cruel, inasmuch as the truth is that I have never seen the fellow play.

POVICH.

"However, I do read the sports pages and for the past few years I have become thoroughly fed up with the subject of Leemans. It has been Tuffy this and Tuffy that, but darn little about his teammates. Why don't they call the G. W. team the Tuffy Leemans' A. C.? You'd think nobody else on the team mattered.

"The fact is, I have built up for myself a distaste for Tuffy that probably is not only unreasonable, considering that I never saw him, but probably no fault of Tuffy's. Maybe you guys who write sports are to blame and, maybe its the publicity agent of G. W., but there is such a thing as too much hero worship."

If giving a guy his due is excess hero worship, then this department pleads guilty. It is not difficult to imagine what the records of George Washington teams would have been without Leemans during the past three years. No one athlete ever governed the success or failure of his team to the degree that Leemans held the fate of G. W. The fellow, in fact, was the G. W. football team.

NO WONDER my correspondent is fed up, as he says, with the Leemans publicity. He admits he never saw Tuffy perform on the football field and I admit that such wide ballyhoo as Leemans received in the local public prints might easily inspire unfavorable reaction, but to appreciate Leemans one must have seen him perform.

Every time Leemans jaunted out on the field for the start of a game, he had, figuratively, two strikes on him. He was supposed to live up to his press notices, that were always couched in the superlative, and he had precious little help out there. He had to beat both his bungling mates and his opposition; he was a man marked by every team he ever played against, and the opposition knew that to stop Leemans was to stop George Washington.

Under those circumstances, Leemans won the press and public alike. A comparatively little fellow, Leemans won his admirers, perhaps, because of the sympathy they might have felt for him. But he cemented their esteem with his performances. The target of the opposition in every game, he was bruised and battered horribly in his every start yet never failed to justify his ballyhoo. He had to be good—and he was.

Washington colleges may have possessed a better ball carrier than Leemans, they may have produced his superior as a passer and kicker, but they never developed his equal as a triple threat. And, with the possible exception of Harry Costello, Washington gridirons never saw a defensive player superior to Leemans. His tackle in the Vanderbilt game a year ago when he feinted two blockers out of the way and pulled down the ball carrier from behind was a defensive classic. Verily, he had to be seen to be appreciated.

In Short—

Leemans will not want for a job after his graduation next June . . . in recognition of his distinguished service, G. W. athletic officials will use every influence at their command to obtain him a position as a high school coach . . . Clark Griffith will pursue his fight to gain a 25-cent admission charge for boys and girls to all major league games when the annual big league meeting is held at Chicago next week . . . Business Manager Ed Barrow, of the Yankees, admits that they have made Clark Griffith an offer for Outfielder Jake Powell . . . but the Washington club still denies it . . . Any bill to legalize racing in the District of Columbia will meet with the stern opposition of Senator Tydings, of Maryland, whose State is now the sole beneficiary of Washington race interest . . . The $35,000 worth of rubber checks with which the Agawam track attempted to pay off its obligations may cost the life of legalized racing in Massachusetts . . . where Jack Sharkey has already endangered legalized boxing by his sour bout with Unnown Winston . . . The feats of Jesse Owens, who broke three world track records and tied one on the same afternoon may go officially unrecognized . . . because the A. A. U., which approves all track records, has no working agreement with the Big Ten Conference which supervised Owens' performances . . . the Big Ten holds the same regard for the A. A. U. as the proverbial mongoose holds for the proverbial cobra.

Silas to Ask Ruling on Welter Title Due to Furr's Overweight

By Bill McCormick.

Silas today will ask the commission for a ruling on the matter of weights, which in some States would have made him officially the champion when Furr failed to make the 147-pound limit at weighing-in time.

"Furr weighed in at 149½ at 2 o'clock the day of the fight," Silas points out. "His failure to make the welterweight limit in a bout for the title would be accepted in some States as an open admission that he no longer can make the poundage, and I would be automatically the champion, even before the fight, as I came in a half-pound under the limit."

Silas indicated further that he did not want to be put in the position of "crying" or "squawking" as he considered himself beaten fairly and squarely, but thought the commission would like to make a ruling for future fights.

"If Furr can not make the welterweight limit, as indicated in the last bout, then he isn't a welterweight," Sidney averred. "If he isn't a welterweight, then he certainly isn't the welterweight champion. If he's not the best 147-pounder in the District, then I certainly am—and I should have the title."

The commision will act on the matter at its next regular meeting next Monday afternoon.

The next colored fight card, whenever it comes off, probably will find Billy Eley and Gene Buffalo, the participants in two previous bouts which evoked storms of discussion over the official decisions, indulging in 15 rounds of fisticuffing in an attempt to settle once and for all the question of superiority.

Just who will promote the bout remains a matter of conjecture, but at the present writing it would seem John Carter, president and promoter of the Lincoln Athletic Club, has the inside track.

Walter Johnson, Walter Young and Earl McDonald have suggested to the boxing commission that they will promote every other week at the Turner Arena, if Turner consents to their using the site, and that they would like to open with Buffalo and Eley over the long distance.

McDonald was approved last summer as a promoter, but did not go through the formality of taking out his license as plans for a bout involving Joe Louis failed to materialize. Carter insists that he has the Lincoln Athletic Club, holder of the only active colored promoting license, well under control. He also insists further that he has the Eley-Buffalo match in his hands.

Promoter Turner, who holds the key to the situation in the form of his new arena, says he has not been approached on the subject of renting out the site for colored fights, but indicated they "probably would be permitted."

Joe Temes, styled by Matchmaker Ahearn, the fighting Greek bulldog, will return to the wars in an eight-round semi-final to the Terry Mitchell-Bob Godwin main event at Turner's Arena next Monday night.

Temes has drawn as opposition Ray Borree, a main eventer down South, who has fought such piffawmers as Frankie Covelli, Bucky Burton and others, but who should be a great favorite here because he once scored a first-round knockout over Baby Miller.

Borree has become a member of the Godwin Stable, with headquarters at Bob's Herald Harbor training camp, and hopes to achieve quick local fame by stopping Temes.

Phil Furr, who recently successfully defended his District welterweight championship against Sid Silas, and his brother, Homer, will be interviewed by Joe Holman over Station WOL at 8 o'clock tonight.

Furr will discuss his knockout victory over Silas and brother Homer will tell of his plans for launching a professional career in the near future.

Delegates Assembling; 'Old Guard' Favors U. S. Competing.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—With American participation in the 1936 Olympic games the paramount issue, delegates to the annual three-day convention of the Amateur Athletic Union, starting Friday, began to arrive in town today.

Rival factions in the dispute over the Olympic question remained outwardly silent, although within ranks members were storing up ammunition which is expected to be tested at a caucus meeting of the executive committee Friday and then fired at the general assembly of the convention Saturday.

Mahoney Awaits Support.

Jeremiah T. Mahoney, president of the A. A. U. and a doubtful candidate for re-election if the convention does not sustain his fight for an American boycott of the international sports carnival at Berlin, awaited the arrival of sympathizers from the South and nearby Eastern A. A. U. districts, which already have gone on record as opposed to United States participation.

The helmsman of the proponents, Avery Brundage, president of the American Olympic committee and former president of the A. A. U., was scheduled to arrive from Chicago tomorrow afternoon. Brundage has been conducting an aggressive campaign to gain support for American participation fully in the Olympics.

Both Brundage and Mahoney have apparently unalterable attitudes on the matter. While the question at present is a group affair, there is likelihood it may develop into personal warfare with Brundage opposing Mahoney for the presidency in the event the incumbent decides to run again.

"Old Guard" Against Boycott.

Advocates of an Olympic boycott claim the support of at least 9 of the 34 section associations of the A. A. U., with additional strength in others which have not put them-

Rockne, Jr., to Enter Notre Dame in 1936

Special Dispatch to The Post.

New York, Dec. 4.—Knute Rockne, jr., son of the famous coach, will enter Notre Dame next September. Weighing 140 pounds, he has been a veritable spark plug as quarterback of the Miami (Fla.) Military Academy team. Those who remember the father as a member of the Northwest Division High School in Chicago say that the tow-headed youngster is showing ability just as promising as Knute displayed in his high school days. Three of the four touchdowns scored by Miami over Hollywood School recently were the result of long runs by the Rockne lad.

Hughes, Coach at Gallaudet, Quits Eighteen-Year Tenure

FREDERICK H. (TEDDY) HUGHES, head coach at Gallaudet College for 18 years, has resigned, The Post learned last night.

Hughes submitted his resignation to the college athletic advisory board, stating that he wished to confine his duties at the college to teaching and the supervision of the physical education program.

Hughes' action followed a wave of dissatisfaction expressed by Gallaudet students during the past two seasons, when Gallaudet's football fortunes have been at their lowest ebb. Hughes' football teams won but one game each season.

Gallaudet is expected to find Hughes' successor among other members of the coaching staff with Wally Krug, assistant football coach, and head basketball coach, believed to be the choice. "Bingo" Flynn, former Catholic U. star tackle, who was on Hughes' staff last season, is also believed to be a candidate.

The diminutive Hughes enjoyed outstanding success at Gallaudet during the early years of his regime. Several of his charges have won places on All-District football teams, notably Deere, Ringle, Massinkoff, Langenberg, Hokanson, Zieske, Monaghan, Rose and La Fountain.

Ringle was perhaps his outstanding product, Coach Curly Byrd, of Maryland, declaring him to be the greatest player ever to oppose Maryland in the College Park Stadium.

Paulino Is Still Tough, Says Sparmate

By the United Press.

ORANGEBURG, N. Y., Dec. 4.—Ancient Paulino Uzcudun will give young Joe Louis "a great fight," Sparmate Larry Johnson said today. Marse Johnson considers himself well qualified to give expert testimony on this subject.

The tall, muscular Negro from Chicago and points South served as punching bag for Louis when the Brown Bomber was preparing for Primo Carnera and Maxie Baer. At other times he was training target for Baer and Primo.

Marse Johnson was staggered with surprises this afternoon when a group of wallop correspondents told him that "Old Olzie" appeared pathetically futile during eight rounds of sparring with four exercise boys—including Johnson.

Fails to Impress Scrubs.

These boxing writers told Johnson that Paulino was slower with his highly-touted left hook than a one-armed mucker shoveling sand; that he was easier to hit than unknown Winston on a Sharkey springboard, that he had no more ring technique than King Levinsky, and that he would be massacred when he met Lous on Dec. 13 at Madison Square Garden.

"Ah hates to hear you boys talk that way about Paulino," Johnson admonished. "An' ah hopes y'all ain't sending that stuff into your papers, 'cause you're crossin' your bridges befoah your chickens is hatched. Ah been in this fightin' business 'bout 11 years now. An' ah knows concernin' what ah speaks when ah says you're all wrong."

Paulino, who had left the gymnasium and retired to the rubbing room, was pictured by his Negro sparring partner as a tough hombre who was still poison for any man to meet in the ring, despite his 36 years.

Johnson, still in black gym trunks and gray jersey, raised a taped hand for emphasis and said:

"First off, y'all got to remember Paulino always looks just awful in trainin'. He ain't got no gymnasium show-off. And he don't try to knock out his partners like Louis. But he hits plenty hard when he bears down. Ah never got whacked in the belly so hard as out here. His left hook to the belt is sho'-nuff dynamite."

Manhattan to Meet Kentucky and Detroit

New York, Dec. 4 (AP).—Manhattan College's 1936 football team will meet the University of Kentucky and Detroit University for the first time, the nine-game schedule, announced today, shows. The game with Detroit will be played October 24 and that with Kentucky November 7, both in New York. Manhattan's game with Georgetown next year is scheduled for November 14.

Notre Dame Will Play One New Team in 1936

South Bend, Ind., Dec. 4 (AP).—Elmer Layden, Notre Dame's director of athletics and football coach, returned from New York today and immediately announced the 1936 Irish football schedule of nine games.

Washington U., of St. Louis, replaces Kansas on the chart with all other 1935 opponents being retained.

Pivot Plays Are Eliminated, Menton Reveals; All Phases of Popular Indoor Game Are Discussed.

COMPLETE elimination of pivot plays within the free throw lane, an offensive feature of basketball introduced by professional teams, apparently is the major aim of the rules committee, according to an interpretation of the 1935-36 regulations made last night by Paul Menton at the opening session of the first annual National Capital Basketball Clinic.

Addressing more than 300 coaches, players and fans, the well-known Baltimore official pointed out the new three-second rule, which prohibits players from remaining within the lane more than that length of time, precludes all possibility of successfully working the pivot, or block play.

Menton also elaborated on the new rule giving a team possession of the ball out of bounds after its opponent has successfully attempted a foul shot. Other topics discussed were elimination of intentional fouling and imposition of severer penalties for deliberate roughness. In cases where a player is fouled deliberately to off-set a certain field goal, the referee will try to give the player attempting the field goal time to make a shot before calling the foul.

Deliberate and unnecessary roughness may be penalized by awarding the victim two foul shots, instead of the customary one, and in cases of flagrant violation of the rules the officials are not only authorized, but compelled, to banish the offender.

Upset of S.M.U. Ambition of Aggies

Sole Aim of Texans Is to Stop Rose Bowl-Bound Team Saturday.

By the Associated Press.

COLLEGE STATION, Tex., Dec. 4.—A rising urge to score an upset of upsets Saturday by checking the Rose Bowl-bound Southern Methodist University football machine was nursed tonight at Texas A. and M. College here.

Coach Homer Norton said he feared for a time his Aggies would not be able to "steam up" for S. M. U. after having only recently played A. and M.'s "traditional" game with Texas University.

"But, he added, "they are slowly rising to the peak again—all because they want to beat the Methodist before Coach Matty Bell and his boys leave for California.

"We may win Saturday. Much will depend on the blocking, tackling and charging of our forwards. That's where we plan to give Southern Methodist a battle."

Line Is Hope.

Aggie hopes for victory in the game here lie chiefly in the line because the Methodist backfield has a decided edge in performance to date. A. and M. has won only three of nine games. S. M. U. is unbeaten and untied.

The hopes seem forlorn at that, as the Mustangs' line rates as one of the strongest in Southwest Conference history. But Bill James, chief line aid to Coach Norton, has turned out one of the finest forward walls Aggieland, once noted for sterling line play, has seen in years.

There is little difference in weight between the two lines. The Mustangs, however, have an edge in experience and reserves.

"It's really the choice between two evils for us," Coach Norton said, "as the Mustangs have the most powerful line in this section, but I guess we'll try our luck at running for the most part. That will be our game and our touchdown will depend on the success of our linemen."

Mack Is Evasive On Sale of Foxx

By the Associated Press.

Philadelphia, Dec. 4.—Connie Mack, manager of the Philadelphia Athletics, would neither "affirm nor deny" a report tonight from a Chicago source, that he had sold Jimmy Foxx, his star slugger, to the Chicago White Sox for $75,000 in a cash transaction.

"There have been all sorts of rumors about Foxx," Mack said. "When the time comes we will adjust the matter for the satisfaction of all concerned."

Villanova Also Bidding for Game; Catholic's Record Superior.

By the United Press.

Miami, Fla., Dec. 4.—Miami's Orange Bowl committee tonight selected Vanderbilt to represent the South in a New Years Day post-season game and probably will ask Catholic University tomorrow to carry the North colors. Support for nomination of Catholic University increased to the point where the Washington school took a place of preference over Villanova, the erstwhile favorite.

Both Villanova and Catholic University have indicated to the committee they will accept invitations.

THE selection of Catholic University as the Northern contender to oppose Vanderbilt, the Souths' representative, in the annual Orange Bowl football game at Miami, Fla., on New Year's Day, is expected hourly, The Post was advised last night.

The choice of the Orange Bowl committee lies between Catholic U. and Villanova, with the committee failing to make a selection despite a meeting that lasted for several hours in Miami last night, according to the Associated Press. The committee adjourned with the announcement that it would make a decision today.

As a result of a preference expressed by Dan McGugin, head coach of Vanderbilt, Catholic University is expected to receive the invitation. McGugin talked with Head Coach Arthur (Dutch) Bergman, of Catholic U., yesterday, and declared that he would urge the selection of Catholic U.

C. U. Would Accept.

Catholic University would accept the bid if it were offered, Bergman declared. The Cardinals, beaten only once this season, are eager to extend the most successful football campaign in the school's history, and Bergman is prepared to send his charges back in training if C. U.

Furled Flag Wins Charles Town Feature to Pay $20 Mutuel

Track Marks Broken in 2 Events

3,000 Turn Out Despite Chilling Wind; Low Double Paid.

By Walter Haight,
A Staff Correspondent.

Furled Flag Pays $20.

Furled Flag, winner of a race here on opening day at good odds, paid a $20 mutuel today while under the handling of Sammy Palumbo, who rode two oher winners. The American Flag gelding ran the mile and a sixteenth in 1:47 3-5, just three-fifths of a second over the track record.

Two track records fell and another was equaled during the program run over a course with a frozen bottom. Stool Pigeon hung up 0:50 3-5 for 4½ furlongs and Postponement ran the Charles Town course, slightly more than 6 furlongs, in 1:16 3-5 to clip four-fifths of a second off Chief Mourner's mark set in December, 1934.

Helen Bab, in the final, matched the previous best time of 1:54 for a mile and an eighth scored by Fusco in June of last year.

Although a cold wind swept the plant, it was coming from the rear of the grandstand and with the aid of a bright sun customers numbering some 3,000 were fairly comfortable.

The daily double betting was the heaviest of the meeting, with the pool totaling $2,942. Those who teamed Gifted Lady and Stool Pigeon collected a $13.60 mutuel, one of the smallest on the twin bet in the history of the track.

Gentleman Takes Opener.

Gentleman, a first-time starter, made friends with his backers by taking the first race at a $6.80 win mutuel and a $7.60 place mutuel. Gentleman, a son of Westy Hogan, was a hot paddock tip. He was capably ridden by Jockey V. Wisner. Luke Phantom was second, after being ridden all over the track, and Fashion Queen pulled up in third money.

Gifted Lady, a daughter of Bright Knight, in the role of favorite, won the second race in decisive fashion, although bumped by Surprise as the field left the gate. Jockey Sammy Palumbo saved ground with the winner and was drawing away at the finish. Peggy Can, the pacesetter most of the way, was second, ahead of Radiator. Gifted Lady paid $5.20.

Stool Pigeon Wins Easily.

A. L. Redan, of Washington, sent a winner to the post in the third race. It was Stool Pigeon, a popular gelding on the smaller tracks. Ridden by Freddie Faust, the Washington jockey, Stool Pigeon was hustled to the front going to the first turn and there were no anxious moments for his backers thereafter. Royal Veil saved ground along the rail to be second, and Small Change, early leader, was third. Stool Pigeon was a favorite at a $4.60 mutuel.

The Washington atmosphere carried over to the fourth race when Postponement, owned by C. E. George, Capital hotel operator, won by some seven lengths. Tuleyries Wand, backed into favoritism, was second and Veritas was third. Postponement paid a surprising $16.20 mutuel.

Dark Loveliness took the sixth at a $12.40 mutuel, coming from behind in the stretch run. The final went to Helen Bab, the leader all the way. The latter paid $6.

Latter moved into contention with a rush at the final bend, secured racing room on the inside and was wearing the winner down slowly at the close. FASHION QUEEN forced a steady pace early and held on with good courage under punishment. ROYAL SPLENDOR swerved to the outside going to the first turn, displayed good speed after being straightened out but could not threaten. CHIEF HOLLIS showed a flash of early speed.

GIFTED LADY, slow to get going, saved ground at the first turn to reach her field, moved up on the inside of the leaders when nearing the home stretch, won. PEGGY CAN down and came out gradually under punishment. PEGGY CAN showed good speed while setting the pace shook off strong contention from BY SURPRISE and held on well when challenged. RADIATOR went forwardly under strong pressure but weakened in the last three furlongs. POSTPONEMENT, away fast and having good speed, opened up a long lead after reaching the back stretch, saved ground and held sway until the end. TULEYRIES WAND, forced to race on the outside of the leaders while in the first flight, closed gamely but was unable to menace the winner. VERITAS secured racing room on the inside on the back stretch and held on gamely. ADO broke poorly and closed a good gap. GENIE PALATINE could not better her position. CURRANTS tired after going forwardly for a half mile. WISE KING and SILVER ARCH were outrun.

FIFTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $400; 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:37. Off at 3:40. Winner, C. Feltner's ch. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—FURLED FLAG, $20.00, $5.20, $3.60. MASTER LAD $3.00, $2.40. COMING BACK, $5.80.

FURLED FLAG, working his way up steadily after the first six furlongs, rallied strongly after moving into contention at the final turn, responded to vigorous urging in the closing drive and was up in the last few strides. MASTER LAD stalked early and made contention from SUNNED, saved ground while setting a steady pace, but failed to withstand the winner after being placed to punishment in the closing furlong. COMING BACK moved prominently in the early racing, but faltered after making a bold effort nearing the home stretch. CORNER BOY was hard ridden but was not good enough. UP AND UP could not reach contention. SUNNED tired after six furlongs. BRAW SCOT and BILLOWY WAVE had no mishaps.

DARK LOVELINESS, racing strongly from the beginning, came with belated speed after falling back, swung to the outside to catch the leaders entering the home stretch, then drew out readily. BROWBEATEN was rushed hard while setting the pace but had little speed left when the real test came. SPEAR moved up stoutly at final turn but faltered during the closing drive. GUARDIAN ANGEL could not make up any ground when put to a drive. EASTER LAD broke well but lacked speed.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $300; claiming; 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:34. Off at 4:35½. Winner, J. Bishop's br. m. HELEN BAB took command at the start, stalled off persistent contention from FILEAWAY in the first seven furlongs, responded stoutly when shaken up and drew out, smashed the closing furlong. POLITEN, slow to get going, improved his position gamely and was racing stoutly at the close. FILEAWAY was rated close to the winner in the early racing but failed to stay when the real test came.

Premier British Jockey in U. S.

STEVE DONOGHUE, outstanding rider of the British turf, pictured on his arrival in the United States on the liner Majestic. Donoghue, who has ridden six English Derby winners, is en route to Australia. He plans to stop briefly in California, where he may take a mount in the $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap.

New Contract Is Signed by Workman

IN denying reports from a New York source that he would soon leave the employment of the C. V. Whitney Stable, Raymond (Sonny) Workman, Washington jockey, revealed last night that he had signed his 1936 contract with the famous turf establishment in New York yesterday. Workman admitted that he had received a substantial raise in salary.

Regarding rumors to the effect that he would retire soon, Workman said that he would ride as "long as I can get around." He also said that his weight, given as the cause of his "coming retirement," was under better control than it has been in the past four years.

Workman does not intent to resume riding until Hialeah opens in mid-January. The C. V. Whitney horses will campaign there exclusively during the winter. Workman intends to leave on a motor trip next week and may visit Buddy Myer, captain of the Nats, at his home in Ellisville, Miss. He may continue on to Florida, select a house for the winter season, and then return for his family.

The ear ailment which forced Workman temporarily out of the saddle has healed.

Apprentice Jockey Charlie Eye who made a big hit with race fans in Maryland last fall, underwent an opeation on his nose in New York yesterday. He will leave in a few days for California where he will join Silvio Coucci, Harry Richards, Bernie Fels and other Eastern jockeys who will ride at Santa Anita.

Joskey Alfred Robertson, who will ride for the Milky Way Stable, next year, is vacationing in Florida after winning the watch for leading the Bowie riders. Robertson is due to report at Santa Anita for the opening of the West Coast track.

Maryland Racing Rule Change Slated

Baltimore, Dec. 4 (AP).—Jervis Spencer, jr., chairman of the Maryland Racing Commission, said yesterday that two of the commission's rules will be changed before the spring racing season.

One is that dealing with future engagements of a horse taken out of a claiming race. The present rule provides that the horse's engagements are included when he is claimed.

New York and Kentucky rules, however, provide that such agreements do not go with the horse unless there is a specific agreement between the party claiming it and the previous owner who had nominated the horse. The Maryland rule will be changed to conform with those of New York and Kentucky.

Spencer said the commission also would rule that all agents for stables doing business in Maryland must be registered here.

Women Golfers Will Install Mrs. Payne

A NEW regime for the Women's District of Columbia Golf Association will be set up this afternoon at Kenwood Golf and Country Club, with the election of Mrs. Ralph W. Payne, of Congressional Country Club, as president.

Nominated a few weeks ago, Mrs. Payne will be installed in office around 2 p. m. today, when the annual meeting and election is scheduled to start.

Mrs. Don Scott, of Congressional, chairman of the nominating committee, announced that the meeting is open to all members of the association and others interested in golf.

Others to be elected are Mrs. J. Franklin Gross, of Indian Spring, first vice president; Mrs. Roy C. Miller, of Kenwood, former tournament chairman; Mrs. David McPherson, of Manor, secretary, and Mrs. Theodore Peyser, of Woodmont, treasurer.

Shortly after her inauguration Mrs. Payne will announce the committees for the 1936 season.

Roland Mackenzie, Congressional Country Club pro, may not go to the Coast after all. It was learned yesterday that he may spend the next three months in the South, confining his winter play strictly to Dixie tournaments.

The wintry blasts that swirled o'er District courses yesterday put a crimp in the playing hopes of golfers. Only four braved the cold and wind at Columbia. Over at Rock Creek some 20 bundled-up golfers fared forth. Volney Burnett, Indian Spring champion, being among the boys.

3 Local Schools Consider Conference

Seven Teams To Comprise Track Body

Delegates Will Discuss Organization Soon in Baltimore.

ORGANIZATION of a track conference in the south-Atlantic sector, with Catholic University, Gallaudet and American University represented locally, is expected to be completed at a meeting of delegates scheduled for Baltimore within the next two weeks.

Announcement of the proposed league was made yesterday by Dorsey Griffith, Catholic University track coach, who is fostering the movement.

Four schools, in addition to those situated in Washington, have been offered memberships. They are the University of Delaware, Washington College, Randolph-Macon and Johns Hopkins. Catholic, Delaware, Washington College and American University definitey have accepted, and the others are known to view the movement in a favorable light.

Probable Title.

Griffith's plans call for a series of meets between member schools, with a championship meet to be staged the first week in May, probably at Baltimore. The conference in all probability will be known as the Chesapeake Track and Field Conference, a title used by a group of schools several years ago.

The first league disbanded because of a lack of interest. It was comprised of Hopkins, Catholic U., Gallaudet, Loyola and Baltimore University. Two meets were held in 1928 and '29, Hopkins winning both. Pointing out that the sport had been introduced at Loyola and Baltimore at that time, while it is well organized at the schools expected to affiliate with the new conference, Griffith is optimistic concerning its prospects.

None of the schools have scholarships for trackmen, and virtually all are limited to squads of 20 men. Thus, all will be competing on an equal basis.

Olympic Boycott Contest Looming

selves on record, but it is generally believed the organization's "old guard," which favors Olympic participation, will exert controlling influence over the convention.

The Metropolitan A. A. U., which tabled boycott action, is expected to join forces with the central association in combating the forces already lined up, on anti-Nazi grounds, in opposition to holding the Olympics in Germany.

Committee meetings will occupy the delegates all day Friday, with general assembly meetings Saturday and Sunday. Assignment of the 1936 national championships and Olympic trials and action on more than 200 records submitted for adoption are among the major items on the general business docket. A banquet will be held Saturday night.

Chicago, Dec. 4 (U.P.).—Even if the athletes have to pay their own expenses, the United States will participate in the 1936 Olympics, Avery Brundage, president of the American Olympic committee, promised tonight.

"Out of 139 athletes who have written me, 138 favor participation," he said, in answering attacks of those who oppose participation because the games will be held in Nazi Germany.

"Our women skiers, competing in the Olympics for the first time, raised their own funds in a few days, and if malicious propaganda against the Nazi religious persecution makes it necessary, members of the summer teams will do the same."

"If anyone expects any bombs to burst during the convention he is sadly mistaken," Brundage said.

"The A. A. U. may not even discuss the Olympics, because a great majority of the delegates are in favor of participation. But if the question is brought up and the A. A. U. does vote against American competition, we still will be represented in the Olympics.

"The A. A. U. is but one of 70 athletic organizations affiliated with the American Olympic committee, and so you see the committee can get along without its sanction. The committee has the Olympic say, not anyone unit or dozen units."

Complete Gun Club Is Plan of Goddard

Plans are in the making to organize a gigantic gun club here in Washington, it was announced last night. Lieut. Col. Calvin Goddard, nationally famous ballistics expert, is contacting representatives of all local rifle, pistol and skeet clubs with a view toward getting them to visit the 92-acre Drain estate on the Mount Vernon Memorial highway next Sunday morning.

The property belongs to Gen. James A. Drain, former president of the National Rifle Association and editor of Arms and the Man. A preliminary survey indicates that the land is suitable for a 200-yard small-bore range, a 50-yard pistol range, and a few .30-caliber targets at 200 yards. Present plans envision a complete club service, with restaurant, reading rooms, arms museum, and a library stocked with volumes on arms and ammunition.

Maj. William Ray Baldwin, who controls the Drain estate, plans to meet with such club representatives as are interested at 10:30 a. m. next Sunday in the lobby of the University Club, Fifteenth and I streets northwest. Lieut. Col. Goddard can be reached at 3533 Quebec street northwest.

Donovan Faces O'Mahoney Tonight

By George Considine.

DAUNTLESS DANNO O'MAHONEY, world wrestling champion in this and a few other sections, will do a bit of inaugurating tonight. He will inaugurate the local season. He will inaugurate wrestling in Promoter Joe Turner's Fourteenth and W streets arena. And he will inaugurate Jack Donovan into the ever-growing Legion of Men Who Tried.

The champion comes to town boasting a string of victories, which, if laid end to end, would reach from Dublin to Jerusalem by way of Hyattsville. Name somebody, anybody, and it's an even chance that Danno beat him sometime, someplace, somehow. For nearly two years, now, the 6-foot 3-inch 215 pound boxing, weight-throwing strong man son of Ballydehob, County Cork, has been cleaning up in the grapple game.

Both principals in tonight's world championship are reformed boxers.

Precedent Loses.

Precedent will be thrown for a loss by the O'Mahoney-Donovan tet-a-tet. Ever since the ancient art of wrestling joined the entertainment field, every struggle-tussle has become a melodrama with a hero, brave, staunch and true, and a wicked, mustache-fingering villain. Tonight the management presents two heroes, the novelty of which should pack Turner's bright new arena to the bulging point.

Another angle that seems potent enough to lure the rassle fan from his fireside will be the clash of O'Mahoney's famous Irish Whip against Donovan's Irish Flip. The latter gentleman has crawled far out on the proverbial limb of late, allowing as how it is an insult to the Flip to be mentioned in the same breath as the Whip.

In the 5-minute semifinal Goodtime Charlie Strack will take on Fearless Floyd Marshall, the retired Northwest Mountie, who has to find a man (whom he can beat). And just to put the customers in the proper distemper, Dean Detton, the only reason ladies attend wrestling shows, plies his trade with one Don Nolan, and Chief Chewaki entertains Joe Cox in the half-hour prelims.

The curtain will rise at 8:30 p. m.

No. 5 Police Boys Get Baseball Cup at Banquet

A hilarious throng of 125 kids joined with a gathering of notables in honoring the champion Fifth Precinct Police Boys Club baseball team last night in the annual sports banquet, tendered by Maj. Earnest W. Brown at Scholl's cafeteria.

A silver cup, emblematic of The Post Association title in the midget class, was presented by Maj. Brown to Fred Caponiti, captain of the No. 5 team.

High School Highlights

By John R. Vosburgh.

SOME of you guys recently dared question the Highlighter's description of a play in the Tech-Eastern game. The sum total of your remarks, as we recall 'em, was to the effect you didn't believe Moe Schulman, Tech's All-High center, could snap the ball, then pull out of the line to run interference and take out a player with as neat a block as ever dumped a man's face into the dirt.

Well, it happened. We checked up on it with Coach Hap Hardell. We thought possibly we may have been bothered by delusions or something on that particular day. Mr. Hardell calmly admitted it happened. In fact, he pointed out that his Mr. Schulman took out not one man but two, which corresponds with the testimony of other witnesses near the Tech bench.

And, come to think of it, Schulman did knock one Eastern man reeling out of the play just before he sailed into Allen Miller with such resounding effect that when that star Eastern end eventually staggered erect he shook the Schulman paw.

"It was a Statue of Liberty play," explains Coach Hardell, "an old Michigan play. Schulman and the whole right side of the line are supposed to come around to do the blocking. Crimmins, of course, fakes to pass and Wells comes around and takes the ball out of his hands. But the only man that did much blocking that day was Schulman. He passed the ball and then took out two Eastern men. One of them got up and shook his hand."

This Fork Union team which Devitt will play in Richmond, Saturday, and which holds the prep school championship of Virginia, is composed of exactly four Virginians and seven Northerners.

Table Tennis Title.

Elias Schuman, District table tennis champion, and Ken Lafferty, fifth-ranking player, made it known last night that they will compete for the Middle Atlantic States title, which will be decided next Thursday and Friday at the Hotel New Yorker in New York City. The title will be defended by National Champion Abe Berenbaum, of New York.

Paul Jr. High in Action.

Section 9-A-5, of Paul Junior High School, will open its defense of the intramural basketball championship against Section 9-A-1 tomorrow at noon in the Paul gymnasium.

Gaithersburg Outlook Dull On Court

COACH HARRY BERTSCHEY at Gaithersburg High School is grateful that his soccer team brought the second straight championship to the Montgomery County school because his prospects for the basketball crown are mighty slim.

Reed, Perrell, Smith and Walker from last year's club which finished fourth in the county circuit, Reed the second high-point scorer, are lost via graduation. Ed Hardy, facing his third year as a regular, looms as the mainstay of the quintet. Doug Hammin, guard, is another regular. Gordon Mills, center; Merrell Miller, guard, and Charles Walker, last year's lettermen, will start.

A brighter outlook on the campaign, however, is a group of sophomores who may see action in a few of the home games. Last year, Bertschey rounded up a gang of freshmen on a hurry call from Rockville for a junior game. They lost by 2 points and so encouraged, they played several other games, winning all by comfortable margins. The same boys are back and, although green in actual high school experience, will be carried along and will be the nucleus of the squad next season.

The schedule:
December 11, Bethesda at home; 17, Bethesda at Bethesda.
January 14, Sherwood at home; 17, St. John's at St. John's; 29, Charlotte Hall at Charlotte Hall; 31, Rockville at home.
February 4, Poolesville at Poolesville; 14, Poolesville at home; 18, Rockville at Rockville; 21, Charlotte Hall at home; 28, St. John's at home.

Eighth Street Tossers Win Game, 27 to 20

The Eighth Street (S. E.) Business Men's basketball team, in new uniforms, surprised the American Stone Co., winning, 27 to 20, in the Southeast Community Center League at Hine Junior High School.

Government Printing Office won from the Marvins, 26 to 14, and the Trojans defeated Northeast Businessmen, 42 to 11, in the other two games. Stipe and Reid scored 20 points between them. Myskowski and Clar were in the limelight for G. P. O.

Rosslyn Girls Now 4 Games In Front

Lucky Strike Bowlers Drop Set; City Cab Rolls to Commercial Mark.

THE Rosslyn girls took a huge stride toward the championship of the Ladies' District League last night at the Rosslyn drives, defeating the contending Lucky Strike team three games to gain a four-game lead. The visitors rolled all games over 500 aided by Rena Levy's 132 cluster and Lucy Rose's 345 set.

Arcadia, in third place, triumphed in an odd-game decision over the Bill Woods, at Lucky Strike, featuring the match with a 551 game. National Beer upset Convention Hall twice, the losers only win resulting from a 536. Georgia Hayes carried away the individual honors with games of 122, 120 and 101.

City Cab chalked up a season record game last night in the Commercial League at Convention Hall, shooting 612 to win an odd-game decision from the pace-setting Continental Bakery team. Howard Parsons led the Cabmen with an even 400 set. Jones' 140 game enabled the Evening Star to win twice over Diamond Cab.

With Mike Shugrue banging the maples for a 146 game and 402 set, the Lucky Strike Barbers tied the total pinfall record of 1,693 in the Petworth League at the Petworth drives. The Barbers' top effort was a 591 game.

Pete Cocuzzi and Leo Rinaldi led the list of individual feats in the Civic Club League at Arcadia, shooting a 134 game and 361 set, respectively, enabling Lido to total 1,638 for the best team effort. Silver Spring Lions chipped in a 583 game.

Honors in the Bankers League at Arcadia were annexed by American Security, No. 3, with a 569 game and 1,673 set. Mehler's (City Bank) 148 game and Keene's (Riggs) 377 set, topped the individual efforts.

Catholic U. Seen As Miami's Choice

is selected for the Orange Bowl game.

The Orange Bowl committee yesterday investigated the records of both Catholic U. and Villanova. The Villanovans, with victories over Penn Military College, Ursinus, Western Maryland, Bucknell, La Salle, Temple and Detroit, have lost two games to Detroit, which they played in a home-and-home series, and Penn State.

Catholic U.'s only defeat was suffered at the hands of De Paul, of Chicago, which scored a 9-to-6 victory over the Cardinals at a time when five C. U. regulars were out of the line-up with injuries. C. U. has to its credit victories over La Salle, Duquesne, Detroit, St. Mary's of Texas, West Virginia Wesleyan, Western Maryland and North Carolina State.

Despite earlier reports yesterday that Villanova appeared the most likely choice of the Orange Bowl committee, Keith Phillips, chairman, declared that "Catholic U. came in with a very strong bid." The preference expressed by McGugin is expected to carry a deal of weight with the committee.

Vanderbilt was advised of its selection as the South's representative by the committee early yesterday. The Commodores accepted the invitation with the provision that Southeastern Conference permission must first be obtained. The conference does not look with disfavor on post-season games.

District to Have Three-Cushion Billiard Championship Play

JUST as soon as a shipment of the modern claret-shade billiard cloth and a couple of the new-fangled balls of bilious hue are received at the Lewis & Krauss academy of table golf, Washington will have a District three-cushion billiard championship.

There was a time when the very thought of making a shot purposely by bouncing the cue ball off more than one or two cushions was unheard of to any but the best players, but that was back in the good old days when billiard parlors were "pool halls" and nobody but "old fossils" played billiards anyway.

That was back in the days when the presence of a pool table immediately branded an establishment a joint in which one could do anything from wager on a horse to indulging in a bit of high, wide and handsome manipulation of the dice.

Misspent Youth.

In those days the habitues of pool halls were almost invariably capped and usually wore turtle-neck sweaters. Such an atmosphere it was that prompted one philosopher to remark, "Show me a man who shoots pool well, and I'll show you one whose youth was misspent."

Such is not the case now. The billiard rooms of repute are crowded with some of our most representative citizens who look askance at the very occasional "chiseler" who darkens the doorways of their establishments.

Doctors, lawyers, bankers, merchants and all classes find the skill, steadiness and poise needed to play a good game of billiards not only help to settle their nerves after a strenuous day at business, but give them much-needed relaxation as well.

Development of the three-cushion game, which rapidly is pushing the balk-line type of play into the background, is largely responsible for the increase in the number of those who play billiards instead of pool.

The three-cushion game can best be likened to a wide-open type of football with plenty of laterals and forward passes. Like the open football game, the three-cushion billiard contest is much more exciting to watch than the old balk-line game in which one nursed the balls close together as much as possible.

The three-cushion game, in which there is quite an element of chance, also offers a weaker opponent some possibility of defeating a better opponent, just as a team which throws plenty of passes may beat a much better gridiron aggregation if the breaks go in its favor.

On the Air Today

BING CROSBY begins his Music Hall appearances tonight—a premiere which will lead to full possession of the Music Hall hour just after the first of the year. Paul Whiteman for one month only will continue in the weekly spot he has occupied for a long, long period.

Tonight's show will feature Whiteman as usual from New York; Crosby, backed by Jimmy Dorsey's orchestra, from the West Coast. For Crosby and Dorsey, the new show is in the nature of a reunion. They roomed together years ago when Bing was a member of Whiteman's "Rhythm Boys" and Jimmy a clarinet player in the band.

For the present, Crosby will serve as master of ceremonies for the two pick-ups from Hollywood. Bazooka Bob Burns is expected to fill that role after the first of the year.

Conrad Thibault is really the "home town boy who made good" tonight. He's up at Northampton Mass., acting as a judge in Smith College's all-student voice contest. Following the auditions tonight, Thibault will bring the winner to Radio City for a guest performance on his "Log Cabin Revue" show next week.

Graydon Walker and Charles Stofberg, who quizz the passing public on matters of sense and nonsense in front of The Post Building each noon ("Curbstone Queries," WMAL, at 12:20), invited Lowry Hall to say a word or two yesterday in the course of the program. Hall is the unemployed gentleman who resorted to a small sandwich sign on his back in the interest of attracting attention to his situation. Within an hour after Hall's questioning on the air, a half-dozen listners had phoned offering employment, two had left contributions of money at The Post's first-floor front counter. Hall gratefully accepted one of the offers of work.

Tonight is Spelling Bee night—another in the series to assume a more serious tone. The teams will be formed of Department of Agriculture and Patent Office employes. The former, under the captaincy of Mrs. Dorothy Tanty, won the first brush with the syllable-spillers from the Government Printing Office recently. Miss Mary Bontz will be tonight's pronouncer. "Pops" Bill McCormick will be back next Thursday night with teams from McKinley and Eastern high schools. Post Spelling Bees, each Thursday night at 8, WMAL. J. H. H.

Steel Output, 57% Capacity, Continues Rise

Pig Iron Production Is 7.9 Per Cent Higher in November.

New York, Dec. 4.—Pig iron production in November totaled 2,065,913 tons, or 68,864 tons a day, compared with 1,978,411 tons, or 63,820 tons daily, in October. The gain, in terms of daily rate, was 7.9 per cent. Furnaces in blast on December 1 numbered 122, as against 116 November 1, a net increase of six. The production rate December 1 was 70,095 tons per day, compared with 67,655 tons one month previous. These figures are from Iron Age, which says today:

"Steel production, despite the failure of a broad advance of finished steel prices to develop, continues to rise. At 57 per cent, one point higher than last week, ingot output is at the highest level since the third week in June, 1934, when production was sharply stimulated by forward covering prior to an increase in code prices. Anticipatory buying may have helped swell current tonnage, though the fact that operations have continued to expand following the reaffirmation of prices suggests that protective commitments were not heavy.

Pressure for Deliveries.

"In many cases such orders were merely tentative, scheduled to go into effect when word came through that prices were actually being advanced. Pressure for deliveries of finished steel on order has been relieved, but few buyers have ordered shipments suspended, notwithstanding the approach of the inventory period.

"In the case of sheet steel the specifications of the leading mill have increased rather than declined, raising its operations to 80 per cent of capacity and sustaining the average for the sheet industry at 75 per cent. At Chicago a leading steel producer has postponed necessary mill alterations for a second time, and ingot output in the district has risen one and one-half points to 63½ per cent of capacity.

"Raw steel production is also up 2 points to 60 per cent in the Valleys, 1 point to 41 per cent in the Philadelphia district, 2 points to 82 per cent at Cleveland, 9 points to 42 per cent at Buffalo and 4 points to 50 per cent in the South. The Pittsburgh district alone shows a decline—from 46 to 44 per cent."

Rise of Rails to New Highs Spurs Stock Market Trading

Last Hour Wave of Buying Reflects Better Earnings Reported for November; Bonds Active and Higher.

By Frank MacMillen,
Associated Press Financial Writer.

New York, Dec. 4.—Rail shares, with net gains of 1 to 4 points, ran up to a new 1935 high for the second successive session in a last-hour burst of speed on the stock exchange today. Measured by the Associated Press average of 15 rails, this group rose 1.4 to 31.2, a new peak since July 18, 1934. The advance was the widest since November 23, when a rise of 1.6 was scored.

Demand for the carriers, which was attributed to estimates of improvement in November net operating income, helped to stiffen the rest of the market which had run into fits of profit-taking earlier.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was up 0.5 to 55.6. It was the accumulation of rail issues, brokers said, which stoutened volume to 3,002,741 shares, compared with 1,941,920 on Tuesday. It was the largest turnover since November 25.

Although the market was selective at times, the oils and the coppers found ready takers. The latter somewhat more consistently than the former.

Copper Shares Strong.

Anaconda and Kennecott both kicked up to new tops.. Purchases were attributed in brokerage quarters to the somewhat improved statistical position of copper and the belief that general industrial improvement will benefit the red metal.

The financial district's liking for the oils was described in terms of recent gossip of a possible price rise for crude midcontinent oil. Officials of large companies would not confirm the rumors, however.

Some analysts explained the buying of oils as the result of recent revival of inflation talk, pointing out that the shares represent a hedge against changes in the purchasing power of dollars.

ADD 2-24 STOCKS

The spectacular behavior of the rails did not obscure the day's budget of trade news, most of which was on the favorable side. Reports of either dividend extras or increases came to the market from Sunshine Mining, American Snuff, American Rolling Mill, American Cyanamid, U. S. Tobacco, L. S. Starrett and several other concerns.

Rails at New Highs.

Gains of from 1 to more than 4 points were chalked up by the following rails, each of which touched a new high for the year: Santa Fe which closed at 58¼, Union Pacific at 111½, New York Central at 29¼, Illinois Central at 22 and Pennsylvania which finished at 32⅜.

Anaconda's gain of 1½ to 27⅞ was made on heavy trading, while Kennecott rose ⅛ to 28¾, also on active turnover.

Prominent gainers of fractions to more than a point among the oils were Phillips Petroleum at 36⅞, Standard of New Jersey at 49 and Continental at 29½.

Chrysler ran into selling and backed down ⅛ to 83⅞, but advances of fractions to more than 2 points were made by U. S. Steel at 48¼, General Motors at 55⅜, Westinghouse Electric at 94½ and U. S. Smelting at 106⅞.

Bond Market Active.

In the most active market since March 6 the bond market was steady, featured by a brisk demand for medium and low-priced rails. Transactions totaled $20,542,000.

The weekly review of Iron Age bore out the financial community's impression that the steel industry remains on a firm footing. It noted rising production in spite of the failure of the expected price advance to materialize. "Anticipatory buying may have helped swell the current total," it said. It added that "protective commitments were not large."

The output of 1,876,684,000 kilowatt hours reported by the Edison Electric Institute for the week ended November 30, represented a more than seasonal decline, according to the adjusted index of the Associated Press, which declined from 104.9 to 104.2. Production, nonetheless, was more than 11 per cent ahead of the like week a year ago.

Wheat ended unsettled, ⅜ to 1½ cents a bushel lower. Corn was ½ of a cent lower to ¼ higher. Cotton gave up 45 to 95 cents a bale.

In the foreign exchange market the pound sterling was ¼ of a cent higher at $4.93½. The French franc was unchanged at 6.58¾ cents.

The objective is to reduce the annual fixed charges and to provide convenient access to additional working capital for interim and permanent financing, if and when needed.

Realty Bonds 31.3% Higher In 11 Months

Issues of Housekeeping Apartments Lead With 50.2%.

New York, Dec. 4.—Real estate bond prices, which advanced 33.6 per cent during 1934, have maintained a comparable upward trend during the 11 months of the present year, according to data on the market action of 200 typical Eastern realty issues compiled monthly by Amott, Baker & Co.

Including a 2.7 per cent improvemen in November, the 200 issues have increased 31.3 per cent in indicated market value since the first of the year. This has lifted the average bid price per $1,000 face value from $294 at last December's close to $386 at the end of November. Compared to the average low of recent years for this type of security, the current bid is more than double the average price of $187 per $1,000 face value which prevailed in January, 1933.

Of the five cities represented in the Amott-Baker compilation, Pittsburgh has the best record for the last 11 months, its 12 issues having advanced 73.2 per cent in average price since the first of the year. In terms of underlying security, housekeeping apartment issues are the 11 month leaders, 50 issues of this type having appreciated 50.2 per cent during the period.

Housekeeping apts.	50.2	$356
Apartment hotels	43.5	330
Hotels	34.0	315
Theaters	32.7	511
Office buildings	20.0	138

Each of the 200 issues considered in these averages was originally outstanding in an amount of $500,000 or more. All prices are based on dealer to dealer indicated bids.

Wheat Slumps Threatened by Canadian Sales

Drop of Nearly 2 Cents Follows Weakness in Winnipeg.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Dec. 4.—Wheat fell 1⅝ cents here today, largely because of Winnipeg market weakness following announcement Canada's wheat surplus would be sold at world competitive prices.

Numerous Chicago traders inferred that Canadian wheat would be available whenever wanted, and that since Canadian wheat is being imported into the United States a weakening of Winnipeg quotations could not be disregarded. Competition of Canadian wheat in the Chicago market was illustrated by arrival of 300,000 bushels of bonded wheat here today from Fort William, Ontario.

Wheat closed unsettled, ⅜ to 1½ under yesterday's finish; May, 95½ to 95⅝; corn, ½ off to ¼ up; May, 58⅜ to 58½; oats at ¼ to ½ decline, and provisions 2 cents to 7 cents down.

The Federal Diary

Registered in U. S. Patent Office.

By Morgan Baker.

E. CLAUDE BABCOCK, president of the American Federation of Government Employes, will leave Washington Saturday for Chicago for the convention of State, county and city employe groups, which opens at the Morrison Hotel on Monday.

BAKER.

The purpose of the convention is to work out a mechanism for organizing members of these groups under the A. F. G. E., which was given jurisdiction over all civilian Government workers not eligible to membership in existing American Federaton of Labor unions.

Cecil E. Custer and David R. Glass, national treasurer and charter president, respectively of the A. F. G. E. will be the other representatives of the national offices here to go to Chicago.

Two State organizations, those of Wisconsin and Minnesota, are expected to be represented at the meeting, and about 30 organizations of city employes. Most of these are now organized under Federal charters granted by the A. F. of L. Two groups, however, the Minnesota State Employes' Association and the Seattle Municipal Employes' Association, have obtained charters from the A. F. G. E. in the last two weeks, as they were not heretofore organized in the A. F. of L.

The organization problem is regarded as difficult in some respects, for the activities of employes of the Federal Government, of which AFGE has thus far been composed, naturally center in Washington, while the others must deal with State Legislatures, and city councils. There is also the question of autonomy for each group to be considered, but several plans have been devised to meet these contingencies, Mr. Babcock says.

Luncheon Canceled.

Mrs. Gertrude Scott (C), Veterans Administration, who is secretary-treasurer of the California State Society, announces the society's luncheon and dance, scheduled for December 7 and 14, respectively, have been canceled.

A new meeting-place has been selected by Agriculture Post, No. 36, American Legion, the next gathering to be held in Room 6520, South Building, at 8 p. m. Friday, according to J. L. Koehl, Telegraph and Telephone Division, post commander.

UNDER sponsorship of the Athletic and Recreation Association, Agriculture employes are planning one of the outstanding dances and entertainments of the season to be held at the Washington Hotel Saturday night.

A. C. Edwards, BAE, is chairman of the arrangements committee, assisted by Joe Bertolini, AAA, ticket chairman; Ethel Terry (P), budget, finance and cards. Other committee members include Frank B. Curran, Public Roads, ARA, president; W. C. Robbins, AAA; Adelaide Zipperstein, AAA; Mrs. Amelia Boberg, BBS; Virginia Freitas, BBS; Irving Naiman, Weather Bureau, and Joseph D. Cooper (F), BBS. Ticket sales headquarters are in room 6736 South Building.

New Research Section.

Dr. Lyman J. Briggs, director of the Bureau of Standards, has recently announced the formation of a new section in the bureau of research on organic plastics. Dr. Gordon M. Kline, who has been made chief of the new section, has been a member of the staff for six years.

Verne E. Chatelain has been made acting assistant director in charge of the National Park Service's new branch of historic sites and buildings, Washington office, the establishment of which was authorized in the 1936 Interior appropriations.

Plate Printer Retires.

After 48 years of Goverment service, Lewis Porter Randall, plate printer at the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, has been retired. Randall, who lives at 1439 Whittier street, learned his trade of plate printing at the bureau, entering the service when only 17 years old. His fellow workers at the bureau presented him with appropriate gifts on the occasion of his retirement Saturday.

To Speak on Yellowstone.

George M. Wright, chief of the Wild-life Division of the National Park Service, will present tonight at the Government auditorium, Constitution avenue and Thirteenth street, an illustrated lecture on the wild life of the Yellowstone National Park. His topic will be "The Wilderness That Did Not Vanish."

Mr. Wright was one of the organizers of the wild-life division, and is well known as a naturalist. In 1926 he discovered the nest of the surf-bird in Mount McKinley National Park, an ornithological event of much significance. He is also the author of several publications on wild animal life.

Ralph W. Smith (P), Weights and Measures Division, Bureau of Standards, recently attended a meeting of weights and measures officials of the State of California in Los Angeles, and also of the State of Michigan at Flint. He was one of the speakers at both meetings.

Address Engineers.

Besides H. E. Roethe, Chemistry and Soils, mentioned in yesterday's Federal Diary, the following members of the Division of Mechanical Equipment, Bureau of Agricultural Engineering, were among the speakers this week at the meeting of the American Society of Agricultural Engineers in Chicago:

W. M. Hurst, associate agricultural engineer, who spoke on the use of combines in harvesting soybeans.

R. M. Merrill, agricultural engineer, who reviewed the merits of mechanical methods in controling insects, pests and plant diseases.

Commodity Credit Corporation.

Q. What is the Commodity Credit Corporation and its purpose?—Julian N. Goldman (F).

A. This corporation was created in 1933 to deal in agricultural commodities and lend or borrow money upon them; also to encourage farmers, producers and others to enter into marketing agreements and plans to bring about essential reduction in farm acreage and production of agricultural commodities for market. It is incorporated in the State of Delaware, and Lynn P. Talley is president.

Social Securities Board.

Q. Where are the offices of the Social Securities Board and who is in charge of it?—Mildred R. Sommes (C).

A. In the Department of Labor Building, Fourteenth street and Constitution avenue. John G. Winant is chairman.

Program Studied By Miners' Union

Delegates Discuss Scales of Wages and Hours.

Proposed demands were discussed yesterday at a convention of three divisions of the United Mine Workers of America in the Willard Hotel.

Some 300 delegates from the Pennsylvania anthracite region attended. They will decide shortly what wages and hours to ask when the existing agreement between workers and operators expires April 1.

The convention, devoted chiefly to organization yesterday, will last until decisions are made on current problems, probably until the end of the week.

New York, Dec. 4.

MARVIN SCHENCK and myself, returning from a Thanksgiving jaunt to Atlantic City, pulled up at night in Toms River, N. J., bustling Jersey coast town. It was a Saturday night and the main street of the town was abustle with energy. Cars were parked, nose to the curb, hundreds of them. Through plate-glass windows, white-jacketed grocery clerks and meat market clerks could be observed in a frenzy of salesmanship. A man directed us to the Ocean House for a belated dinner. The two city slickers, true to our New York training, looked condescendingly at the dining room into which we were ushered. "This hotel been here long?" Schenck asked the waitress, to make conversation. "Yes, sir," was the surprising answer, "since 1787."

• • • •

The dinner was one of the finest I've ever eaten, mackerel that melted in your mouth, and baked beans that your mother used to make. As we ate, the owner, a gray-haired gentleman, came in, greeted us, inquired if we were enjoying the food. We engaged him in conversation about the history of this 149-year-old hotel, and he told us the Revolutionary War background of the town, pointed through the window in the direction of the blockhouse and arsenal that once stood there; indicated the location of Huddy Park, where the British hanged Gen. Huddy. "Sorry that Mrs. Holman isn't here," said the fine old gentleman. "Her dad, Gen. Rawlins, was chief of staff to Gen Grant." By this time Schenck and myself were completely astounded. "I'll show you something of interest," said the proprietor. He returned with a leather case, withdrew from it a long, yellow sash of finest silk. Printed on it, in faded ink, was this: "This sash, worn by me through all my battles and campaigns from and including the battle of Belmont to and including the surrender of Vicksburg July 4, 1863, is presented to Brig. Gen. John A. Rawlins, my chief of staff, in evidence of my appreciation of him as an officer and friend.

"U. S. GRANT,
"Lieut. Gen., U. S. A."

Notes: M. B. Comerford, theater chain tycoon and father-in-law of Frank C. Walker, Roosevelt confidant, was killed in an auto accident outside of Scranton, Pa. . . . Marjorie Bickell, sister of the multimillionaire Canadian gold mine owner, Jack Bickell, was married here to the Rev. Dr. Paulen . . . Charlie Weeghman opens a new restaurant on E. Fifty-eighth street this week . . . Ruth Ermini's dad, wealthy and social Clevelander, visiting here Thanksgiving, died the next day en route to Palm Beach . . . Mrs. Bugs Baer, noting Cornelius Vanderbilt, jr., at the Persian room, wondered out loud if he was penning "Farewell to the Persian Room" . . . Jay Faggen, one of the better press agents, takes over Rocco Vocco's spot with the Bobby Crawford outfit . . . Faggen very generously is turning over his p. a. accounts, 18 of 'em, to Sammy Blake . . . Edgar Allan Woolf is seriously ill on the Coast, erysipelas . . . Three doctors and five nurses are in attendance . . . Dolores Farris has clicked at the popular Kit Kat (but then she always does) . . . Who was the eyeful who took her shoes off to dance with A. C. Blumenthal at Marion Cooley's hot spot? . . . Sid Solomon is out of Medical Center and Larchmont — recuperating . . . James Rennie would be a great flicker bet now . . . A 50-page diary will turn the Adolph Spreckels-Gloria Debevoise case into Page 1 copy.

Shuddery stuff. Max Factor, host at a party on the Coast, told his press agent to invite the entire film colony. So the press agent culled the address books. Invitations were sent to Wally Reid, Ernest Torrence, Sam Harry, Gordon Westcott, Paul Berne, Lloyd Hamilton, Dorothy Dell and Russ Columbo—all of whom have died.

Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn of Ontario is one of the most interesting men this reporter has ever met . . . At 39 Canadians hail him as second only to famous Sir John McDonald in statecraft, but despite the plans of the Liberal Party, he wishes to retire to his 900-acre farm and forget politics . . . He was telling me that the Dionne quintuplets had an unusual and interesting reaction . . . Ontario decided to hold an Adoption Week . . . In three days the 3,600 babies and children in Ontario institutions had all been adopted into good homes . . . The premier and his wife had wanted to adopt a baby boy and girl . . . The rush was so tremendous, however, that they had to be satisfied with the boy . . . The 3-year-old youngster is the apple of his eye . . . "He's lighted up the whole house," he tells you . . . Dick Merrill, crack Rickenbacker pilot, and myself escorted him to some Stem night clubs . . . He tried to act interested, but I fear he was bored by the noise.

You hear more and more cheap profanity on Broadway stages. Kid actors step out on the stringpiece and deliver billingsgate that a hardy West Side dock worker would hesitate to employ. Fragile actresses startle you with vulgarity that would singe the lips of a truck driver. Anemic actors crash into a volley of oaths that raises the hair on your head. First night audiences do not seem to object to it, because they have become too bored to object to anything. Audiences on subsequent nights, however, do object strenuously to the cheapness that is besieging the stage. Churches will step in, if the producers are not careful, and install a censorship that won't be shaken off easily. There is a vast distinction between realism and refuse pails.

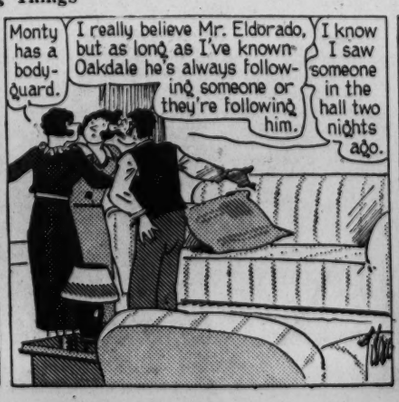
Listen...they almost got Hartford! Last night. Two red-hots. Followed him for miles. Every time he stopped so they'd catch up with him, they stopped too.
Reg U.S. Pat. Off. 12-5

I saw him at lunch. He was very cool. When I talked about notifying the police, he just lighted a cigarette and laughed. What a man.
What's that? Someone following Hartford, too?
McNaught Syndicate, Inc., N.Y.



Monty has a body-guard.
I really believe Mr. Eldorado, but as long as I've known Oakdale he's always following someone or they're following him.
I know I saw someone in the hall two nights ago.

Shh! Listen...across the street. Someone standing in the shadow. Behind a fence. Looking right up here. He's moving.... he's...my word! It's only a cat walking along the fence.

Bauer Reports Geysers Not Affected by Quakes

The several earthquakes which have been felt recently in Helena, Mont., have not affected "Old Faithful" and other geysers in Yellowstone National Park and the geysers had nothing to do with the quakes, Dr. C. Max Bauer, Federal naturalist and geologist, reported yesterday to the National Park Service.

"Although Yellowstone Park was a region of active volcanism throughout a long period of the geologic past, and the hot spring and geyser basins are the direct result of that volcanism, still, so far as we know, there has been no active volcanism of the explosive type in this region since the Great Ice Age," Dr. Bauer said.

Threats Laid To SEC Agents In Meehan Case

Wall St. Broker's Lawyer Charges Brow-Beating of Witnesses.

By the Associated Press.

Counsel for Michael J. Meehan charged yesterday that securities commission investigators had threatened and brow-beaten witnesses in their inquiry into the veteran Wall Street broker's activities.

Monroe Goldwater, Meehan's lawyer, made the accusation in an otherwise placid hearing on the New Yorker's plea that the case be shifted to New York and that he be given more details on allegations that he participated in stock manipulation.

"Is this not for the purpose of publicity in a procedural hearing?" asked J. J. Burns, commission counsel, who previously had objected that "Mr. Goldwater is speaking to the jury."

Goldwater retorted that "we have never sought publicity in"—but the rest of his words were lost in spectators' laughter.

Questions Are Studied.

The procedural questions were taken under advisement by the commission, which must decide whether Meehan should be expelled or suspended from the New York Stock and Curb Exchanges and the Chicago Board of Trade.

Meehan has been cited for allegedly causing "a false and misleading appearance of active trading" in Bellanca Aircraft stock between April 5 and October 26, 1935. This was done, the commission alleged, by using "matched orders."

In a general way, matching orders means that one person buys stock from himself and sells it to himself. In this way considerable activity is indicated on stock tickers.

After Goldwater had pleaded for further details on the charges, Burns asserted that in effect Goldwater was asking for the commission's files.

Requests Transcripts.

"I should like very much," replied Goldwater, jumping to his feet, "to have the files of this commission and I would like very much to have a stenographic transcript of evidence, because I think this commission should know that witnesses have been threatened and to my mind have been brow-beaten if I am correct in my interpretation of what that term implies in judicial procedure.

"They have been put in a position, one at least, where he was told he would be kept until midnight—and this was six o'clock in the evening—if he did not answer in the way the interrogator would like to have him answer."

Chairman James A. Landis of the commission said, "These are matters you will be given a chance to prove."

Burns Backs Proceedings.

Burns asserted Goldwater, although complaining of the insufficiency of the commission's bill, "has a surprising amount of knowledge of the Government's witnesses and what they have testified to.

"I have inquired thoroughly into this question and to my mind it has been orderly and in strict accordance with law and judicial procedure."

Meehan's case originally was set for hearing in Washington about a month ago, but was postponed on his request until December 11.
